OUR NATIONAL PARKS

Glowing Descriptions of the Yosemite, The Sequoia and General Grant Parks

The Yosemite National Park lies near the crest of the Sierra Nevada in western central California. Its 1,100 square miles contain scenic features of beauty so unusual and variety so wide that adequate description reads like romance.

The famous Yosemite Valley is a small part of this extraordinary holiday garden—a mere crack in its granite mountains seven miles long by less than a mile wide.

For the rest, the park includes, in John Muir's words, "the headwaters of the Tuolumne and Merced Rivers; two of the most beautiful streams in the world; innumerable lakes and waterfalls and smooth silky lawns; the noblest forests; the loftiest granite domes, the deepest ice-sculptured canyons, the brightest crystalline pavements, and snowy mountains soaring into the sky twelve and thirteen thousand feet, arrayed in open ranks and spire pinnacles groups partially separated by tremendous canyons and amphitheatres; gardens on their sunny brows; avalanches thundering down their long white slopes, cataracts roaring gray and foaming in the crooked rugged gorges, and glaciers in their shadowy recesses working in silence, slowly completing their sculptures; new-born lakes at their feet, blue and green, free or encumbered with drifting icebergs like miniature Arctic Oceans, shining, sparkling, calm as stars."

This land of enchantments is a land of enchanted climate. Its summers are warm but not too warm; dry, but not too dry; its nights cool and marvelously starry.

The world-famous Yosemite Valley was discovered in 1851 by mounted volunteers pursuing Indians into their fastnesses. Because of its extraordinary character and quite exceptional beauty it quickly became celebrated; but it was not until 1874 that a road was built into it. Until then it was approached only by trail.

No matter what their expectation, most visitors are delightfully astonished upon entering the Yosemite Valley. The sheer immensity of the precipices on either side of the valley's peaceful floor; the loftiness and the romantic suggestion of the numerous waterfalls; the majesty of the granite walls; and the unreal, almost fairy quality of the ever-varying whole, can not be successfully foretold.

This valley was once a tortuous river canyon. So rapidly was it cut by the Merced that the tributary valleys soon remained hanging high on either side. Then the canyon became the bed of a great glacier. It was widened as well as deepened, and as a consequence the hanging character of the side valleys was accentuated.

There were hundreds, thousands, of other ice-filled canyons in the Sierra; but in none did the glaciers accomplish as much as they did in the Yosemite Valley. Why? Because there the Sierra granites, as a rule solid and exceptionally resistant, were traversed by thousands of fissures and therefore readily scooped out.

The Yosemite Falls, for instance, drops 1,430 feet in one sheer fall, a height equal to nine Niagara Falls piled one on top of the other. The lower Yosemite Fall, immediately below has a drop of 320 feet or two Niagaras more. Vernal Falls has the same height, while Illilouette Falls is 40 feet higher. The Nevada Falls drops 600 feet sheer; the celebrated Bridal Veil Fall 620 feet, while the Ribbon Falls, highest of all, drops 1,612 feet sheer, a straight fall ten times as great as Niagara. Nowhere else in the world may be had a water spectacle such as this.

Similarly the sheer summits. Cathedral Rocks rise 2,500 feet perpendicular from the valley; El Capitan, 3,600 feet; Sentinel Dome, 4,100 feet; Half Dome, 4,900 feet; Cloud's Rest, 6,000 feet.

Among these monsters the Merced sings its winding way.

The falls are at their best in May and June while the winter snows are melting. They are still fine in July but after that decrease rapidly in volume.

The Yosemite Valley, extraordinary though it is from both the scenic and the scientific point of view, is an exceedingly small part of the Yosemite National Park; but until the summer of 1915, when the Department of the Interior acquired possession of the old Tioga Road, the magnificent

SCHOOL OPENING DELAYED

Public Schools Will Not Open Until Tuesday, September 19

At a special meeting of the school committee held in Boston on Tuesday it was voted to postpone the opening of the public schools in this city until Tuesday, September 19 instead of the usual time, Monday, September 11th. This action was taken on account of the public excitement regarding infantile paralysis and after the committee had gone over the matter quite thoroughly with Dr. Francis Geo. Curtis, chairman of the Newton Board of Health. Dr. Curtis is most emphatic in the opinion that the postponement is entirely unnecessary and this position is also endorsed by the State Council of Health and the State Board of Education. The committee feels however that the delay will give time for the agitation to die down and that the parents will feel safer if their children do not come in contact with others while any danger is possible.

BODY IN LAKE

Belmont Man Found Lifeless in Crystal Lake, Newton Centre

As George F. Toplin of Centre street, Newton Centre and Allen Symonds of Crofton road, Waban and Arthur M. and Francis B. Southwick of Waban avenue, Waban were passing Crystal Lake early Wednesday morning they discovered the body of a man lying in about four feet of water near the shore. They recovered the body and notified the police and Medical Examiner Dr. George L. West. Later in the afternoon the body was identified by Hugh Murray of Woburn as that of his brother Alexander Murray, who lived in Belmont. Murray was about 55 years of age and had been employed as a clerk in the B. & M. railroad office. He was placed in Danvers asylum a few years ago on account of mental trouble and had recently been discharged from that institution.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

Editor of "The Graphic" Newton, Mass.

Through the generosity of a former resident of Ward Seven we have a beautiful little Park that everyone is proud of and where thousands during each week in the summertime pass many happy hours.

It is the wonderment of many who those who are in charge of the same allow the pretty shallow sheet of water, which adds much to its beauty, to be disfigured by dead leaves, old newspapers, sticks, etc. As the pond is concreted the water ought to be drawn off and the debris removed at least once a fortnight. This, at very small expense, would add much to the beauty and neatness of this otherwise beautiful spot.

MAN DROWNED AT NORUMBEGA

Watertown Resident Loses Life in Canoe Accident, After Saving His Companion

The first drowning accident of the season at Charles river took place Sunday afternoon, when Otto Cochrane of Watertown lost his life after assisting his companion, Miss Althea Giggey to a place of safety following the overturning of the canoe in which they were paddling. The accident occurred near Norumbega Park. Miss Giggey was saved through Cochrane's efforts to hold her to the surface until help arrived although he himself was unable to swim. He sank as soon as she was rescued and did not reappear, his body being later recovered in about ten feet of water.

The accident occurred while Cochrane was showing his companion how to manage a paddle, the craft suddenly upsetting. A power boat, operated by F. W. Thompson, was in the vicinity and hastened to the scene of the accident. Mr. Thompson pulling Miss Giggey out of the water as Cochrane released his hold on her and sank.

A number of officers from the Metropolitan Police station were sent to grapple for Cochrane's body and it was brought to the surface about half an hour after the upset. The body was immediately taken to the station house where every attempt to resuscitate failed. Cochrane was employed in the Brookline office of the Hood Milk Company and roomed at 9 Dana terrace, Watertown.

BOSTON BOYS AT NEWTON Y. M. C. A.

Newton, during the summer months, has provided different groups of boys from the poorer districts of Boston with an opportunity to enjoy a day's outing.

Every week a group of forty boys under the leadership of one of the city missionaries are the guests of the Y. M. C. A. The boys arrive at 10 o'clock, full of "pep", and their energy is directed to the big field where unlimited opportunity is given them to show their prowess. Next on the program comes the best treat of all, a long refreshing plunge in the cool water of the natatorium. Here the mermen forget all about paper routes and grocery errands and are content with diving and plunging in the tempting water.

After a time a whistle sounds and the boys scamper to the locker rooms and hurriedly dress, for it has been rumored that the "cats" are ready. Very few seconds elapse before forty hungry individuals sit down to a repast prepared and served by the Ladies' Auxiliary that would be most appetizing to the most critical person.

The school committee has yielded to the force of public opinion in postponing the opening of the public schools for a little more than a week, in spite of the opinion of the State Council of Health, the State Board of Education, and the advice of Dr. Curtis, chairman of the Newton Board of Health. The facts and figures regarding infantile paralysis show that the public agitation on this matter is wholly needless. So much publicity has been given the details of an alleged epidemic in New York city that it is rather interesting to learn that the death rate of that city is normal and that the death rate for children under five years of age is also normal, and while there has been a large increase in cases reported of infantile paralysis, there is a notable reduction in other cases of children's diseases—a fact that throws considerable light on the entire situation. Newton parents have little to fear on this question at the present time.

The sad accident in which a Newton Centre child lost its life this week emphasizes the tremendous need for additional traffic regulation on Commonwealth avenue. While it is impossible, of course to have a traffic officer every hundred feet or so along this much used roadway, it is very evident that additional service of this nature is imperatively demanded.

Let us hope that the threatened railroad strike will not materialize. Few of us can realize the far reaching effects of the failure to receive customary supplies. Food, of course, is the greatest factor in the situation, but if coal is exhausted, our electric light and power will cease, and hundreds of wage earners of all descriptions will have to remain idle.

PARENTS' DAY

Parents' Day was observed at all the Newton playgrounds last Wednesday and there was a good attendance of friends and relatives of the children. The program at each of the playgrounds included exhibition of games, sports, athletics and folk dances under the direction of Superintendent Ernst Hermann and his assistants. There was also a fine exhibition of occupation work at all the largest playgrounds, with hundreds of pieces of bead work, basketry, raffia, leather, carpentry, whittling and cane sewing. Yesterday marked the end of the regular season of the playgrounds but the postponement of the opening of the public schools gives further opportunity for the Playground Department to continue its good work. The cost of the full work is about $250 a week, and Mayor Childs has been requested to recommend an additional appropriation to allow the work to be continued.

CHAPERON

By JANE OSBORN.

I've known a great many pretty girls in my life, but only two or three times before have I seen a girl so exquisite as Gwendoline. She had brown eyes that reflected the golden light of the sun, lashes that turned up like a baby's—I am not very adept at description, but in every way Gwendoline was charming. Had she been a little sturdier and fired with a little more girlish spirit she would have been a goddess. But had she been sturdier there would be no story to tell, for it was because of Gwendoline's rather delicate health that we lingered at the beach after Mrs. Penfield had gone to open their home in the mountains.

To me, of course, it didn't much matter where I stayed, and an excuse like that of chaperoning Gwendoline was sufficient to make me stay three weeks longer at the beach than is my usual habit.

"Now, Sophie Jones," Mrs. Penfield said, "I know you are capable of the task if you keep your mind on it. But I want you to know at the outset that Gwendoline usually attracts too much attention. She is much too indolent to fall in love anyway, and if she were in a mood for romance there are three or four very desirable affairs that she dropped in a half-finished stage when we came to the beach. For one, Tom Lowther will have all his father's millions."

Gwendoline and I got along famously—barring, of course, the fact that she, like most excessively pretty girls, was almost entirely incomprehensible to me.

Every morning we would start off somewhat after ten and walk along the seashore, Gwendoline finding apparently infinite delight in picking up shells from the sand and later spending hours in sorting them out under the shade of her beach parasol.

I mustn't forget Busoni—or Mr. Henri Busoni as we soon learned to call him, though at first we, like the rest of the people at the beach, simply thought of him as Busoni—Busoni and his orchestra. Every one knew him. In fact, he was one of the chief attractions at that resort. He was more than the usual boardwalk orchestra conductor. I had always known that Busoni was of finer clay and it was because of my admiration for his work that I had been especially glad to stay longer at the beach with Gwendoline. But Busoni was middle aged and, as the women who rocked for hours on the porch at our hotel all told us, he was quite without a heart. Never had he been seen with a woman.

Gwendoline likes music almost as well as I do myself, and it was quite by mutual consent that we daily went to hear Busoni. It was during the morning concert, when we were seated in our usual seats at one side of the auditorium in what I thought was a secluded corner, that he first noticed us. After that number Busoni sent his first violin to us. Every one in the audience was interested, and it was quite clear to every one that Busoni had been struck by the girl's beauty. The messenger told us that Busoni had sent him to ask if we wished to suggest the next number; that he had often seen us and could not fail to see that we were lovers of music.

It was dreadfully conspicuous and every one at once knew why, for Gwendoline was so irresistible.

Then Busoni asked to call and I consented. No, I didn't forget Gwendoline's mother's injunctions. I simply decided that I could take matters in my own hands. Busoni was no ordinary admirer and clearly Gwendoline did not want to have me refuse for her. He called more than once and then one evening we went driving, we three, in the twilight through the grove of pine trees just northwest of the beach.

Meanwhile several letters had come from the men at home. Then one from Tom Lowther, who was to be worth millions, saying he was coming down for the final answer that week end, and the next mail brought one from Gwendoline's mother, who had heard of Tom's intentions, saying that she was coming too.

Then Busoni telephoned to the hotel. He said he wished to call that evening. He had something important to say. He must come. When I tried to make excuses he would not listen. He would come anyway.

Of course, I knew exactly what to do as chaperon. In view of the coming of Gwendoline's mother the next day and of young Lowther, too, Gwendoline ought not to have to face the decision of a proposal from Busoni. Gwendoline laughed a queer little whimsical laugh when I told her that I would see Busoni and make her apologies, and then she went off to bed. And I went down to Busoni.

And then Busoni told me. Can you imagine what? Busoni the genius, the recluse—Busoni whom every woman at the beach would have adored—Busoni there and then in the little private reception room of our hotel, actually went down on his knees and proposed to me—poor little middle aged, blue-eyed me.

Gwendoline did accept Tom Lowther and I suppose in her way she is happy. But I sometimes wonder—but no! How absurd! It is only because I love him so myself that I fancied every other woman at the beach made an idol of Busoni.

EVIDENCE

By CATHERINE CRANMER.

"So you refuse to tell me whether or not you intend to go to that plebeian public masque ball?" Gerald shifted his hat and stick, which he held in readiness for departure.

"I refuse to be bullied. So I refuse to answer your question because you flung it at me as a demand to account to you in advance for my movements."

"Now, Dot, you can't think that; it is all from my desire to exercise the right and the privilege which our engagement gives me to protect you."

"Protection actuated by jealousy and intolerance isn't what I want or expect. As for our engagement, why—" She began to fumble with her ring.

"Please, Dot," said Gerald quickly, "don't say anything about that now, and please think seriously before you join those feather-brained Gilbert girls and Charley Mason in a lark at that public masque."

"Good afternoon," was Dorothy's only reply, but as the front door closed behind him she crumpled up on the big davenport and sobbed.

Gerald's pleading failed to keep Dorothy away from the public masque ball, although she did decide to wear a black domino instead of the fantastic costume she first had in mind. The Gilbert girls, Charley Mason and the two other young men in her party dressed as a band of gypsies, and they were surprised and disappointed when Dorothy appeared in her domino. Once in the gay crowd, though, all entered heartily into the merriment. Here and there through the hilarious crowd other domino-clad figures were scattered, giving a needed touch of black to the kaleidoscopic whirl of color.

Some energetic domino-clad man undertook to gather all the dominoes together and line them up in mock protest at some of the gayeties going on about them. Dorothy was drawn into his group, and she gayly, though silently, tried to induce a tall, broad-shouldered fellow-domino to become also a fellow participant in making things gay. Reluctantly, at first, but gradually more willingly, the tall figure began to move about with some show of life.

As the crowd grew more mirthful Dorothy became less and less gay. Her tall companion could see that she was vainly searching for someone. He squeezed her hand reassuringly and broke the long silence between them.

"I see that you have lost your friends," he said simply. "Will you allow me to help you find them or to take you home if you can't find them?"

A few moments later, they were entering a taxi, to whose driver Dorothy gave the half of a visiting card containing her residence number, having nodded a vigorous negative when her escort asked her destination.

As they were whirled along in the taxi, the man softly asked her to speak to him, as he was sure her voice must be as charming as were her grace and ease in dancing. He even squeezed her hand lightly, and although she was unresisting she still shook her head and remained silent. This seemed to add to the young man's determination, for he began to plead eloquently, but was astounded to be roughly pushed away with two tiny but determined hands.

As the taxi turned a corner, Dorothy realized that she was nearing her home, and she quickly sprang up and covered the eyes of her escort with her hands.

"Swear you won't look," she whispered hoarsely, and with those soft hands pressing his eyelids, the man willingly promised. A few moments later, the taxi came to a full stop, and Dorothy electrified her companion by kissing him full on the mouth and springing from the door the instant the driver opened it.

Quite forgetting his promise, he sprang after her, but took in his surroundings with a dumfounded glance. About six strides took him the distance that Dorothy had covered in sixty rapid steps, and he overtook her just as she reached the marble-lined vestibule to her home.

"Dorothy, dear," he pleaded, "why didn't you let me know it was you?"

"Just because I wanted to see how far you'd go in doing the very things you tried to forbid me doing when I hinted I was going to this ball," she eyed him defiantly, like a plucky fighter at bay. "Your tender pleading for the sound of my voice and your gentle squeezing of my hand when you thought I was somebody you didn't even know convince me that you are at least human enough to be inconsistent and also that you're not to be trusted."

"Which ought also to convince you that it's time to treat me like a human, and take me for better or worse." Then, very softly, he added: "Don't you know, dear, that it was only because I wanted to look after you that I went to that old ball?"

Dorothy had backed up against the bell so that with her elbow she had managed to press the button without Gerald's knowledge.

"And don't you know," she retorted, "that it was only because I recognized you by your dancing that I pretended to be lost from my friends and enticed you into bringing me home?"

The silent footman opened the front door and Dorothy vanished through it with a softly spoken good night before Gerald fully realized the unexpected good fortune that had come to him.

JANE LAWRENCE

By ELLIS DICKSON.

"If I had known about Jane Lawrence I never would have become president of the board of managers of St. Prisca's home. But then how was I to know? But if I had known of the case of Jane Lawrence I really couldn't have done it. I have actually stayed awake nights over it. And this afternoon, when I ought to be spending all my time at the tailor's and dressmaker's, I have to have a board meeting here just to discuss the matter."

Mrs. Stoddington had been sitting for fully ten minutes before she began her complaint, at the little spindle-legged desk in her study.

Tom Blaine, younger by ten years, was sitting impatiently waiting at her side. Besides being the wealthy widow's only brother, he was her attorney.

"The trouble with Jane, Tom, is simply this: She is very pretty. Not just rather pretty, but dangerously, absurdly pretty, and a girl in an institution of that sort really has no right to be pretty."

"Whatever are we going to do? She is only eighteen now and she has not left the home, but in a month she must begin to go out to earn her living."

"For several years we have realized that Jane was different from the other children in the home. She is really a beauty. The matron has been wonderful, too. She has done all she could to keep the girl from realizing. When the other girls have had pretty hair ribbons Jane has had none, and she has been made to brush her hair as plainly as possible. When the other girls have gone on excursions Jane has been kept at home. In her little room the matron even took down the mirror so she would not be tempted to be vain. Still the girl seems to crave pleasure, still she seems to be at heart quite a coquette. If we could only get her married off to some honest, hard-working person who would give her a home with plenty of work she would be all right."

If Tom felt any special interest in the case of the little orphan girl he did not show it.

"To begin with," he said in his most professional tone, "you have gone about it in the worst possible way. It doesn't take a lawyer or a deep student of human nature to tell you that the best way to arouse a girl's interest in pretty things is to deprive her of them."

Tom paused for a moment and thought, "Here's my remedy," he resumed. "Call off this board meeting this afternoon. Then give the girl a real taste of happiness. If she is well behaved invite her to your own home, treat her as you would a guest, provide her with a few pretty clothes and take her about with you. Let her see the normal side of life. Let her realize that a woman can be pretty and attractive without being a sinner."

It was two weeks later, and Mrs. Stoddington was again seated before her spindle-legged desk. Tom again sat before her in apparent impatience.

"That plan is a failure, just as I thought it would be," she began. "Why I ever thought you could advise me in the case of young orphan girls is quite beyond me. Oh, yes, she was very sweet and lovely for a while and all my friends declared she was beautiful, and two or three of the bachelors who never look at a debutante suddenly discovered a decided fondness for my drawing-room chairs—I needn't tell you that for you are much in the same boat yourself. There was nothing in the least bit forward about her though. She was as sweet as a girl of our own class—and then suddenly she went off yesterday. And at the tea-time she came in smiling and refused to tell me where she had been. She is up stairs in her room now. I am going to have her packed up tomorrow sent back to St. Prisca's. It is really too disgraceful. Gone a whole day and won't tell where she went! Tom, it is all your fault."

Tom drew his chair closer to that of his sister and this time showed evident interest in the case of the little orphan girl.

"Suppose I could tell you where the girl was yesterday. Suppose I could prove to you that she left the house on an expedition to find the one to whom she felt indebted for her little thing in the world of normal pleasure and happiness. I believe she did ask you who it was and you told her. And then, of course, suppose you knew that that humble benefactor, quite in spite of himself, persuaded the girl to have luncheon with him downtown, and then sent her home with a promise not to tell where she had been, would you blame her very much? I thought that I might explain it more easily than she could."

Tom had risen, as if to go, but of course, he had no such intention, for he had not yet seen the little girl in question that day.

"You know your idea was a good one, perhaps even better than mine," he told his sister. "You know you said you would feel your task complete when you had seen her married to some honest, hard-working person. I am quite sure that I am hard-working and, in spite of my profession, I make certain claims to honesty. It is a rather hasty decision, but I have gained Jane's consent. We are just waiting for your permission."

A DOG AND A CAT

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Madeline dipped the hot sirupy strawberries out of the big kettle on to four large platters on the table, and turned out the burners of the gasoline stove. She surveyed her morning's work proudly.

Lifting one platter at a time in her strong, white arms, she carried them to a bench on the back deck of the houseboat on which the Cardwells spent four months every summer.

On an island a short distance below, was Greenglade, a fashionable summer resort, with an immense hotel in its center.

Madeline, leaning over the water, heard a whistle, and listened intently. "There's the steamer with the new arrivals at the dock. I wonder if Austin Maycourt, the much-expected, is among them. Here I am up to my ears preserving berries for mother to give as Christmas gifts to our relatives next winter, and every other girl within a radius of ten miles is primping for the dance tonight."

In a few minutes, a figure in a blue silk swimming suit and rubber cap climbed to the top of the rail, gave a little spring and disappeared like a knife blade under the smooth surface of the water.

"Bravo!" cried a young man in flannels, who had just appeared on the island shore unseen by the water nymph. "That was a bully dive, by George! Here, Krist, come back, sir!" to his dog. But Krist, a big wolf hound, was in the water headed for the boat and refused to turn.

Madeline, swimming under water, came up on the opposite bank, then turned and to her horror saw a dog swimming for dear life toward the boat. "My berries!" she cried in dismay and plunged instantly into the water again. "If he gets there first he'll ruin them!"

But the dog won the race! Just at first, he didn't see the berries, but kept sniffing around for Taj, the Persian cat, that Madeline had locked in the dining room. But giving it up as a bad job, he returned to the porch, and, lo, the berries! A long, red tongue shot out and he tasted, he lapped awhile, essayed another search for the cat, and then returned to sample another platter.

Madeline pulled herself up the steps and saw the devastation of her morning's work. She gave a little scream of dismay. "You nasty, horrid beast, get out of here! I—I'd like to kill you!"

"Krist, here, Krist!" And this time, being satisfied, Krist went.

Madeline went to the dance that night in a belligerent mood. "Now, dear," admonished her mother, who had returned, "be careful what you do and say."

"Oh, mother, dear, pigeonhole that particular lecture, please. That man had no business to let his dog get away. I'm sure it was Austin Maycourt, and that only makes it worse. He's spoiled and petted wherever he goes, and he thinks the king can do no wrong."

That evening Austin Maycourt asked for a dance after he had been presented, and Madeline refused, saying she was tired.

"Well, I'd rather sit it out with you anyway, if I may," he suggested.

Madeline did not answer. "I take it that silence gives consent," as he sat down. "You see, I'm anxious to find out what my dog did today."

She told him briefly and forcibly; also what she thought of the whole matter.

"But you'll let me pay for the berries, surely!" he cried in consternation.

"You can settle with mother if you like, but I gave up a good game of tennis for those berries, and I can't see that you can help that much." And, do what he could, Austin could not make Madeline unbend.

The next day Madeline, armed with her racquet, turned her boat for the mainland. In the stern sat Taj, the cat. "You must be very good today, puss. Remember, you owe this vacation to the cut on your paw that I want the doctor to see. And while I'm playing tennis you must take a nap and be very quiet."

So Madeline played in a double set and Taj, with a bandaged foot, slept near by. But by and by he woke up and, feeling like exploring, slipped away unnoticed by his mistress. A row of cottages stood across the street from the court and several windows were open. Taj leaped through one of these. Then Madeline missed him.

"Puss, here, puss! Kitty, kitty, kitty! Oh, I must find him," she cried.

She left the court and gave chase to her pet. In the middle of the road she met Austin Maycourt and bowed. But before they passed Taj appeared with something green in his mouth. Austin leaped for the cat and caught him, taking a dead bird from his mouth.

"It's Peter! My pet parakeet," he cried. "We let him run over the house because he was so tame. Poor little Peter!" stroking the lifeless little bunch of feathers.

Madeline wept softly as she touched the bird. "I'm so sorry! It's all my fault. I let my cat get away. Oh, what can I do to make up for it?"

"Be a little kind to me," suggested Austin promptly.

"I will," she promised. "Come over to the boat and I will give you a cup of tea."

The two volumes which comprise the William Roscoe Thayer's Life of John Hay are spoken of as "delightful volumes, made up largely of Hay's own letters and journals, and sparkling at every turn with his wit and high spirits. Like Mr. Thayer's admirable life of Cavour, this life of John Hay will take its place without challenge among the foremost books of its class. The intimate talks with Lincoln recorded in Hay's diary are sometimes rather startling in their frankness, and one gets many glimpses of Lincoln in homely undress. The biographer notes that the German menace during the Spanish war gave Hay many anxious hours." EH3221.T

The letters which Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, wife of Hon. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, wrote to her mother between October 8, 1913 and April 23, 1914, when diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico were broken off, have since been brought out under the title "The Diplomat's Wife in Mexico." These letters give an intimate picture of what was happening in those days and throw light on the situation which later came to a head. F958 O82

"Safety in the foundry" is the title of an important compilation of M. W. Alexander. This is based on careful investigations by the Committee of Safety and Sanitation of the National Foundrymen's Association. Passing fads of impractical safety engineers have been eliminated and the recommendations are stated to be reliable. In addition to descriptions of approved safety, lighting, and ventilating devices, there are chapters on protective clothing, safety goggles, first aid, and physical examinations. TJCA37

Arnold G. Cameron favors the adoption of the Torrens system in the United States, in a book of the same title, these being a collection of articles originally published in the Wall Street Journal. He shows how the system has been successfully adopted in many foreign countries and several states in America, and gives the opinions of legal writers as to its advantages. KRQC14

"American and Foreign Investment Bonds" is a volume by William Lee Raymond, founded on a series of talks to bond salesman. The object of the book is to show the principles governing the value of different varieties of bonds, while some account is given of the history of bond issues in the larger countries and the states and cities of the United States. HWLR21

The New York Times rightly calls "The Life of Monsignor Robert Hugh Benson" a work of formidable proportions. It is issued in two large volumes, but it is not like so many biographies of men of letters—a mere chronological record padded with excerpts from letters and diaries. It is a most elaborate life story. EB4438MI

In writing the Life of William McKinley the author, Charles Sumner Olcott did not have letters and diaries, the usual sources for material from which to draw. For it is said that McKinley never kept a diary and that he was a disappointing letter writer. So it is to the friends and associates that the author went for his information, and he found, it is said, that the name of William McKinley is "open sesame" to the hearts of all who knew him. OUR NATIONAL PARKS country north of the valley was known only to a few enthusiastic mountaineers who went in yearly with camp outfits. The old Tioga Road was built in 1881 to a mine soon after abandoned. Its recent repair by the Government has opened to all one of the finest scenic sections in America, a country dotted with splendid snowy summits, grown with glorious forests, and watered with rushing trout streams.

And thus is added to the amazing water spectacle for which the valley is famous still another kind of world-wide celebrity. The Tuolumne River, descending sharply to the head of the Hetch Hetchy Valley, becomes, in John Muir's phrase, "one wild, exulting, on-rushing mass of snowy purple bloom spreading over glacial waves of granite without any definite channel, gliding in magnificent silver plumes, dashing and foaming through huge bowlder dams, leaping high in the air in wheel-like whirls, displaying glorious enthusiasm, tossing from side to side, doubling, glinting, singing in exuberance of mountain energy." The crowning feature of this mad spectacle are the water wheels which rise fifty feet or more into the air when the slanting river strikes obstructions.

In addition to its many other attractions, the Yosemite National Park contains three groves of sequoias, the celebrated "Big Trees of California." One of these trees, the Grizzly Giant, has a diameter of 29.6 feet and a height of 204 feet.

The Sequoia

And they said, Go to, let us build us a city and a tower whose top may reach unto heaven.

Thus is recorded, in the eleventh chapter of Genesis, the building of the Tower of Babel. While this tower was a useless still standing, and a hundred years or two before the birth of Abraham, a tiny seed in the warm soil of a mountain slope on quite the opposite side of the world thrust into the light of day a slender green spike which was destined, during an existence of more than four thousand years, to become itself a lofty tower; noble in form, "with a physiognomy almost Godlike," as John Muir puts it, pulsating with life to its topmost leaf-let more than three hundred feet above the ground, and giving forth a babel of bird song to the accompaniment which the sunbeams winds played upon its many millions of tiny leaves.

On the stump of this prostrate sequoia tree, one of the noblest of the celebrated Big Trees of California, John Muir counted more than four thousand rings, a ring for every year of its life. Its trunk, exclusive of bark, was thirty-five feet eight inches in diameter. As the bark of the very largest sequoias is two feet or more in thickness, this giant must have measured forty feet in diameter when it was still growing on one of the slopes of the Kings River.

In the Sequoia National Park, upon the upper slopes of the Sierra Nevada Mountains in central California, and in the little General Grant National Park six miles away and under the same management, grow 1,165,000 sequoia trees, of which 12,000 are more than ten feet in diameter. Some of the others have these dimensions:

General Sherman Tree: Diameter, 36.5 feet; height, 279.9 feet.
General Grant Tree: Diameter, 35 feet; height, 264 feet.

Abraham Lincoln Tree: Diameter, 31 feet; height, 270 feet.
California Tree: Diameter, 30 feet; height, 260 feet.

George Washington Tree: Diameter, 29 feet; height, 255 feet.
William McKinley Tree: Diameter, 28 feet; height, 291 feet.

Dalton Tree: Diameter, 27 feet; height, 292 feet.

There are sequoia trees of great size in several other parts of California also, notably in the Yosemite National Park, where three distinct groves are found; but by far the greatest number, and the individual trees of greatest size, are in the Sequoia National Park and its little neighbor.

It is extremely difficult to realize what the dimensions of these trees really mean. To visualize as best you can the greatest of those now standing, the General Sherman Tree, measure off and stake its diameter, 36 feet 6 inches, upon the ground in front of a church the height of whose steeple you can readily ascertain. Then stand back a distance equal to the height of the tree, 280 feet, and look hard at the stakes whose distance apart represents the thickness of the trunk.

Now raise your eyes slowly, imagining this trunk rising in front of the church, tapering very slightly as it rises. When you are looking upward at an angle of forty-five degrees from the spot where you are standing (and this will not be difficult to calculate) you will be looking at the point where the top of the General Sherman Tree would be if it were growing in front of your church instead of in the Sequoia National Park. The known height of the steeple will help you verify this calculation.

It will help your comprehension of the great size of these trees to know that a box big enough to have easily held the ill-fated ship Lusitania, one of the largest ever built, could be made from inch boards sawed from any one of these great sequoias, with boards enough left over to build a dozen houses. Automobiles and six-horse teams have been driven up and down the fallen trunks of several great sequoias, and there are regular wagon roads running through gaps in the trunks of several others in our national parks. Two parallel street car lines and a driveway might be run through the trunk of several of the very largest.

But the age of the sequoia is still more difficult to realize. It is beyond compare the oldest living thing.

Several of the trees now growing in hearty maturity in the Sequoia National Park were vigorous youngsters before the pyramids were built on the Egyptian desert before Babylon reached its prime. Hundreds of them were thriving before the heroic age of ancient Greece—while, in fact, the rough Indo-Germanic ancestors of the Greeks were still swarming from the north.

Thousands were lusty youths through all the ages of Greek art and Roman wars. Tens of thousands were flourishing trees when Christ was born in Bethlehem.

But with all its vast age, the sequoia to-day is the embodiment of serene vigor. No description, says Muir, can give any adequate idea of its majesty, much less its beauty. He calls it nature's forest masterpiece. He dwells upon its patrician bearing, its suggestion of ancient stock, its strange air of other days, its thoroughbred look inherited from the long ago. "Poised in the fullness of strength and beauty, stern and solemn in mien, it glows with eager enthusiastic life to the tip of every leaf and branch and reaching root, calm as a granite dome, the first to feel the touch of the rosy beams of morning, the last to bid the sun good night."

The sequoia is regular and symmetrical in general form. Its powerful, stately trunk is purplish to cinnamon brown and rises without a branch a hundred or a hundred and fifty feet—which is as high or higher than the tops of most forest trees. Its bulky limbs shoot boldly out on every side. Its foliage, the most feathery and delicate of all the conifers, is densely massed. The bright green cones are about two and a half inches long, generally seeds scarcely more than an eighth of an inch across. The wood is almost indestructible except by fire. Fallen trunks and broken branches lie for centuries undecayed and almost unaltered.

The sequoias are the glory, as they were the cause, of the Sequoia National Park. Scattered here and there over great areas, they cluster chiefly in thirteen separate groves, and it is in these groves that they attain their greatest size and luxuriance.

But they are by no means the only attractions of this national park, which many frequenters declare nature has equipped best of all for the joys and pleasures of mountain living.

It is the ideal place to camp out. It is a country of magnificent mountain scenery, easily accessible when once you are in it. Its peaks are among the loftiest, its canyons among the deepest and most romantic. Its summer temperatures are even and bracing. Its summers are practically without rain.

Across its borders north and east opens up a mountain region, on the crest of the Sierra, of unexcelled grandeur. Mount Whitney, the highest mountain in the United States, 14,501 feet, lies upon its eastern boundary. The Kings and the Kern Rivers have few scenic equals. These and its many other rushing streams abound in trout.

CALEDONIAN PICNIC

People of Scottish blood and lovers of good, clean sport in this vicinity and in Boston are looking forward to the Twenty-sixth Annual Picnic and Games to be held at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, by the Associated Clans of Boston and vicinity on Labor Day, Monday, September 4, 1916.

This is an organization composed of subordinate clans of the Order of Scottish Clans, with which many of our fellow citizens are affiliated.

Through years of experience commencing on Labor Day 1889, a splendid set of games has been developed. This year, with few exceptions, the games will be run on a professional basis; this, it is believed, makes for better and keener competition.

There are several events which deserve special mention. The Five-a-side Football competition for gold and silver medals are always strenuously contested. This game is "Soccer" at its best. Results are obtained by speed and quick thinking, so that mental and physical ability of a high standard are necessary to win.

The events confined to members of "The Order of Scottish Clans" are always hard fought and many professionals belong to the Order.

The games open to the world include the usual purely Highland events. These vigorous dances of Scotland, namely the Highland Fling and Sword Dance will be the drawing cards in this class.

There will be a brass band, also the bagpipe and drum band of the Highland Dress Association of Boston. An orchestra will supply music for dancing in the large dance hall at the Grove.

The committees having details in charge have perfected plans which will result in the coming picnic being the biggest and best ever.

SUPREME AT CHESS BOARD

Paul Charles Morphy, American, Was One of the Greatest Players the World Has Ever Known.Paul Charles Morphy, the famous American chess player, is classed as "perhaps the most remarkable chess player of modern times." He was born in New Orleans in 1837, and was notably precocious as a child; he showed his precocity particularly in games of chess, and before he was thir-teen had defeated many well-known amateurs. For several years he studied law at the College of South Carolina, and played chess only occasionally. But in 1857, at the first American Chess congress, held in New York, he easily defeated the best players that could be brought against him.In 1858 Morphy went to England, and there defeated Loewenthal, Boden, and Bird, and performed the most astonishing feats in simultaneous games without the board. When he was in Paris, the same year, he won five out of eight games with Har-witz, and gave many exhibitions of blindfold playing. It was these last that were responsible for the early breakdown of his health. After his return to the United States, in 1859, he defeated the visiting German ex-pert, Anderssen, in seven out of eleven games. He was admitted to the bar, and began to practice law in New Orleans.

But the strain of his blindfold con-tests had been too great for his mind, and he was forced first to give up chess altogether, and then to abandon all mental occupation. He lived in retirement until his death, in 1884.

His activity thus covered a comparatively short space of time. Morphy's skill is described as inexplicable. He never was a close student of chess.

He played his games easily and quickly, with no preparation and little hesitation. Yet his combinations were "remarkable for finesse, depth, elegance, and soundness." He also possessed a phenomenal memory.

WHY CHILDREN HATE MUSIC Too Often They Are Taught With Little Regard to Capacity of Their Understanding.Why do children hate music? asked an English contemporary some time ago, and then proceeded to answer its own propounded question by saying, according to the Musical Leader, that:"The truth is that children are too often the helpless victims of incompe-

The KITCHEN CABINET

Every established mental condition is an acquired habit, and it has become such by continuous repetition of thought. Despondency and cheerfulness, anger and calmness, covetousness and generosity indeed are all states of mind—are habits built up by choice, until they have become auto-matic. A thought constantly repeated at last becomes a fixed habit of mind, and from such habits proceeds the life.

COOKING LOBSTERS.

These delicate shellfish are so well liked that although in many states they are hard to get, a few ways of preparing them will not be amiss.
Those who are fortunate enough to have them in plenty will appreciate a new dish. A medium-sized lobster is the best to choose, those which are lively and heavy in weight. Lobsters should be killed immediately be-fore boiling. If a pointed knife be run into the back between the body and tail shells, death will occur at once.
No lobster is of good flavor that has been killed hours before it is cooked.
A fresh boiled lobster has a stiff tail, which will, if gently raised, return with a spring to its curled condition.
Care should be taken never to pull the tail straight, as it will never respond again.Lobster Toast.—Canned lobster may be used for this dish. Pick over to remove any pieces of shell. Add one dessertspoonful of warmed butter, red pepper, capers and pickled cucumber.
Pound till well blended, add salt. Heat hot and serve on buttered toast.Creamed Lobster.—Remove the meat from the lobster and chop finely. Beat the yolks of two eggs and mix with a quarter of a cupful of cream, a few drops of onion juice, a half a teaspoon-ful of salt, a pinch of red pepper and a grating of nutmeg. Melt two table-spoonfuls of butter, add the minced lobster, cook and stir for a few minutes; then add the cream and other ingredients. Stir until the combina-tion thickens. Serve on toast.
Broiled Lobster.—Kill the lobsters as before described, and with a sharp knife and a mallet or with a cleaver split down the back on the line which runs down the middle of the shell. Re-move the stomach and intestines, place the two pieces with the shell part down over a moderate fire. When half cooked, moisten well with butter, and sprinkle with pepper, salt and lemon juice. Crack the claws before serving.

SUGGESTIVE DISHES.

For a simple little cake to serve with a cup of tea, the shortbread enjoyed so much by the Scotch will be worth add-ing to your cookbooks.
Scotch Shortbread.—
Take a cupful of butter, creamed; one-half cupful of cornstarch or arrow-root, one-half cupful of rice flour and two cupfuls of wheat flour with one-half cupful of sugar. Cream the butter, add the sugar, and mix in the flour, knead-ing it well with the hands until well mixed. Pat it on a board until a fourth of an inch in thickness, and cut with small cutters, pricking well with a fork before baking. Bake in a slow oven.Walnut Catchup.—When the black walnuts are green and still soft enough to pierce with a needle, pick a hundred. Allow six ounces of small onions, a clove of garlic, two quarts of vinegar, two ounces of anchovies, two ounces of pepper, one-fourth of anounce of mace, one-half an ounce of cloves. Pound the walnuts in a mortar until well broken, then put them into a jar with the vinegar, onion and gar-lic, cut fine, with salt to taste. Let stand for two weeks, stirring twice a day. Strain off the liquid, add the rest of the ingredients, and boil 30 minutes.
Skim well and strain when cold, and bottle.Labscosh.—Butter a baking dish and fill with alternate layers of sliced raw potatoes and hamburger steak; season with pepper and salt and butter. When the dish is nearly full, pour over one-half cupful of finely chopped onions and one cupful of tomatoes, either cooked or fresh. Then pour over a cupful of sweet cream and set into the oven to bake. This should bake slowly an hour and a half. The tomatoes may be omitted if the combination is not enjoyed.Mock Guava Jelly.—Wash and soak overnight a pound of home-dried apples. The next morning cook them slowly in the water; then strain through a jelly bag. There should be five cupfuls of juice; add to the boiling hot juice five cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of lemon juice; cook 20 minutes; skim and strain into glasses.

CHILDREN'S MUSEUM NOTES

Recent visitors at the Museum are noticing the horns and antlers displayed on the walls of the main hall.
On either side of the fireplace are fine specimens of elk antlers. One pair secured in Nebraska is remarkably symmetrical and of excellent color.
The other, found in Crazy Mts., Mon-tana, is weather-blenched to a silvery gray shade. Looking at the magnificent spread of these antlers, it is difficult to believe that the elk sheds a pair each year—usually in March—and that the new pair is completely grown in about four months.In contrast to the large elk antlers are those of the caribou. The Museum is fortunate in possessing a head of this odd-looking member of the deer family. The thick, closely-matted coat of fine wool-like hair may be readily seen and the many-pointed antlers with their times of various shapes make this head very distinctive. Thecaribou is well fitted for his life on the arctic waste above Great Slave Lake, on the coast of Greenland or about Labrador Bay. His legs are thick and strong and the hoof is ex-panded and flattened until it forms a very good snowshoe. He walks over snowfields and muskegs when the moose would sink in and plough thru them. The natural food of the caribou is moss and lichens and a full-grown animal can eat about seven pounds daily.The huge moose head in the Museum crowned with its massive antlers is one worthy of this largest member of the deer family. Looking at it one can imagine the strength necessary to enable the animal to carry such an unwieldy load and to run at great speed for long distances over the rougher kind of timbered country. It is a satisfaction to know that for twenty years the moose supply in Maine has held out practically unchanged.That state, with New Brunswick, seems destined to furnish moose hunting for an indefinite period.Over the large south window of the main hall the polished horns of the water buffalo attract attention. This animal, now used as a beast of burden in India, is found wild in the swampy jungles at the foot of the Himalayas.It is an animal of great size and strength, with short brown hair and immense long, narrow, flattened horns.

It is almost aquatic by preference, passing many hours of the day wall-owing in the water or standing in a deep pool with only the tips of its nostrils and its horns out of water, and with the exception of the tiger, is con-sidered the most dangerous animal in India.
The Museum is very fortunate in having this beginning of a collection of horns and antlers and some of the Saturday talks during the autumn will deal with their histories and uses.

DEATH OF MR. OLIVIGNI

Victor O. Olivigni, for the past fourteen years in the employ of James

RECRUITING STILL GOING ON

There is quite a general impression that recruiting for the regiments on the Border is at a standstill; this is not correct as is evidenced by the fact that there are now at Fort Banks, over one hundred and sixty recruits awaiting transportation to the Border. These men have all enlisted in the period since the Recruiting Offices ceased sending their men to Framingham.
 All recruits are now being sent to the Coast Artillery post at Fort Banks in Winthrop, Mass. Here all the facilities for receiving and equipping the men are at hand, and the men are receiving their uniforms and arms in most cases during the first day after their arrival. Recruits home on pass report that the food is plentiful and excellent and that they are experiencing none of the inconveniences which attended the early days of the Mobilization at the Framingham Camp.
 The men are organized into provisional companies, and instructed in drill, rifle shooting and duties of camp life start at once, under this system rapid progress is being made in fitting the men for joining their regiments at the Border.
 Sufficient men are now enlisting to make up a trainload so steps are now under way to forward them to the Border. After this trainload is forwarded the recruits arriving will be organized for forwarding as soon as another group of men are assembled.
 The impression that the troops would be coming home too soon to permit recruits joining now getting to the Border is erroneous. Orders have just been published covering a three month period of instructions and war maneuvers on scale never before possible in this country. At the completion of this period the National Guard Organization on the Border should be in condition to render effective service in future crisis.
 The Recruiting Station for this district is at the State Armory, Newton, Mass. This Station is recruiting for all the outfits at the Border and Capt. Gunby or his men will give any desired information to men applying to them.

WILBUR THEATRE—It is rather a remarkable fact that the delectable musical comedy, "Very Good Eddie," which starts on its fourth triumphant week at the Wilbur Theatre, with a holiday matinee, Labor Day, should have even exceeded in popularity its companion play, "Nobody Home," which the same producers, Elizabeth Marbury and P. Ray Comstock, presented at this house just a year ago. It is all the more notable when one recalls the extremely hot weather of the past few weeks. It is a tuneful joyous offering, by Philip Bartholomae, the author of "When Dreams Come True," with a cast of many favorites, including Ernest Truex, Alice Dovey, Ann Orr, Magna Paxton, Oscar Shaw, Denman Maley, and those exquisite dancers, Josephine Harriman and William Reardon. The "Harriman Cake Walk" introduced by this pair the past week has made a decided hit and will be continued all the coming week.
 There will be an extra holiday matinee on Monday, Sept. 4th, Labor Day.

THE KITCHEN CABINET
If you can't get to be uncommon through going straight, you'll never get to do it through being crooked.—Dickens.

There is nothing little to the truly great in spirit.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Cut thin slices from the center of a good ham, cover with sour milk and let stand over night.

In the morning rinse well with water and broil. Cook very quickly, as long cooking toughens the ham, as does standing after it is cooked.

Curry of Mutton or Lamb.—Brown a tablespoonful of minced onion and one teaspoonful of curry powder in two tablespoonsful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour and brown thoroughly.

Add one-half teaspoonful of chopped mint and two cupsful of cooked, chopped lamb; stir for a minute to mix, then add two cupsful of stock and cook until the sauce has thickened. Season and serve in a rice border.

Cherry Pie With Rose Leaves.—Line a deep pie dish with rice pastry. Fill with ripe stoned cherries, add a cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful of flour; spread over top the petals from two or three roses, cover with crust and bake. Serve cold the same day it is baked.

Cream of Pea Soup.—Cook thoroughly one and a half cupsful of shelled peas. Brown a slice of onion in one tablespoonful of butter, add the peas, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one sprig of mint and one-half a bay leaf. Simmer 25 minutes or until tender, then press through a sieve. Scald three cupsful of milk. Mix two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour together, then add a little milk, stir until smooth and add to the remainder of the milk. Stir and cook until thick, add a cupful of cream and the puree of peas. Season to taste, using parsley or celery salt, or both if liked. One-fourth of a cupful of finely chopped almonds is a most agreeable addition to all cream soups. Add for variety a cupful of finely shredded lettuce to the soup just before serving.

Creamed Sweetbreads.—Parboil them and carefully pick out every bit of fiber; then prepare a rich white sauce, seasoned with a touch of onion juice. Fill patty shells with the sauce mixed with the sweetbreads.

Few of us make the most use of our minds. The body ceases to grow in a few years, but the mind, if we will let it, may grow almost as long as life lasts.—Sir John Lubbock.

It is very good for strength. To know that someone needs you to be strong.

—E. B. Browning.

DELICIOUS TIDBITS.

Olives stuffed with caviar make a most tasty tidbit to serve as a garnish for roast duck. The best way is to use the olives already stuffed, removing the pepper or almond, or whatever it is stuffed with. This may be used in sandwiches. Fill the olives with caviar, being careful not to break them.

Lemon Jelly With Apples.—This is a delicious dish to serve as accompaniment to roast fowl. Cut good-flavored, firm apples in quarters or eighths and cook in hot sirup until tender; then place in a fancy dish and pour over a lemon jelly and set away to mold. When unmolded and chilled it makes a most attractive dish.

College Sandwiches.—To those who have never tried these nourishing sandwiches, there is something to look forward to. Spread peanut butter on two half cakes of sweet chocolate and put together in the form of a sandwich.

Lempinor Sauce.—This is an unusual sauce to use for a steamed pudding. Beat an egg and add brown sugar enough to make it of the consistency of hard sauce, then flavor with a few drops of lemon, pineapple and orange extract.

Banana Whip.—Mash six ripe bananas with a cupful of granulated sugar, the juice of a lemon and a pint of whipped cream, with vanilla to taste. Mash the bananas, add the sugar and the lemon juice, put over the fire until the sugar is dissolved, but do not boil; add a fourth of a teaspoonful of vanilla and put aside to cool. When cold fold in the whipped cream, which has been sweetened with two teaspoonfuls of sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Beat together carefully and serve in sherbet cups garnished with chopped walnuts.

Lemon Ice.—Take three pints of water, the juice of six lemons, three cupsful of sugar and the whites of two eggs. Cook the sugar and water together ten minutes. Cool, add the lemon juice and freeze. When partly frozen stir in the beaten whites.

The KITCHEN CABINET
It is easy to do what is agreeable, to keep at the thing we like and are enthusiastic about; but it takes real grit to try to put the whole soul into that which is distasteful and against which our nature protests, but which we are compelled to do for the sake of others who would suffer if we did not do it.

HOT WEATHER DRINKS.

There is nothing so cooling or so refreshing as a tinkling, icy drink on a hot day. The root beers which may be so easily prepared and are not expensive are very good. A glass of ginger ale with a snappy ginger cookie is a delightful lunch, with which to refresh a warm visitor.

Strawberry Punch.—Boil together a pint each of sugar and water, then set it away to cool. Crush three quarts of ripe berries and add to them two quarts of water and let them stand in the icebox. After two hours, strain and squeeze through a cheesecloth. Add this sirup to the juice of two lemons. Fill a glass full of crushed ice; on top place two luscious berries, sliced. Pour in the mixture and then prepare to enjoy it.

Pinar-J.—Mix together two cupsful of water, a cupful of sugar and the juice of three lemons and a can of shredded pineapple. Strain and pour over four cupsful of chopped ice.

Duchess Punch.—This is delightful when entertaining. Take one can of pineapple (the grated), four cupsful of sugar, three cupsful of water, one cupful of strong tea, the juice of five lemons, the juice of six oranges, two cupsful of strawberry juice, one cupful of maraschino cherries, a cluster of Delaware grapes and a few sprigs of mint. Boil the water, sugar and pineapple together for ten minutes. When cool add the other ingredients and five quarts of ice water.

Cherry Julep.—Cherry is a delicious fruit juice for summer drinks. Boil together five minutes two cupsful of sugar and four cupsful of water; then add one cupful of lemon juice, three cupsful of orange juice and three cupsful of cherry juice. This will serve twelve punch glasses.

Mint Tea.—This is a good remedy for headache and if you like mint will enjoy this refreshing drink. Pour boiling water on a large bunch of mint, let stand ten minutes and while still hot pour over ice and serve with lemon and sugar. Garnish each glass with a sprig of fresh mint.

We must be careful on what we allow our minds to dwell. The soul is led by its thoughts.—Sir John Lubbock.

Polliteness and civility are the best capital ever invested in business.—P. T. Barnum.

TEMPTING SALADS.

One of the important things to remember in preparing a salad is to have a good dressing. If oil is used it is not economy to buy anything but the best, for poor oil will spoil the most delightful combination of foods. Oil should be kept cool and dark; the light has an action upon oil which is said to injure it. At any rate it is easy to give it the benefit of the doubt.

Swiss Salad.—Cut one medium sized, peeled cucumber into dice; add a cupful of cold cooked lamb, cut into cubes; add half a cupful of shredded lettuce, one-half cupful of cooked green peas, one teaspoonful of mint juice, salt, and pepper to season, and a cupful of mayonnaise dressing. Mix lightly together and serve on a bed of lettuce. Garnish with stuffed olives.

Chicken Salad.—Wash carefully, remove all the outside leaves and cut in quarters, two heads of lettuce. Pour over four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a tablespoonful of chopped onion, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar; sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve well chilled, after seasoning to taste with pepper and salt.

Watercress Salad.—Wash and shake dry nice crisp cress. Put it into a salad bowl and slice over it thin slices of crisp cucumber. Pour over a French dressing, using a little tarragon vinegar and three drops of worcestershire sauce; serve cold.

Spanish Onion Salad.—Slice peeled Spanish onions and sprinkle with chopped green pepper, chopped red pepper and two chopped olives. Serve with French dressing.

Why Paint for Looks Alone?

Many property-owners paint for beauty's sake alone. Wise ones paint to preserve as well. The latter invariably use lead-and-oil paint, the kind that is made of and pure linseed oil, mixed on the job, by the painter, to exactly meet surface and weather conditions. Paint made this way of these prime materials neither cracks nor scales. It gives the utmost in appearance and protection, at the lowest cost per year. Buy of us. A complete line of painting requisites always in stock.

OUR NATIONAL PARKS

Brief Description of the Hot Springs Reservation in Arkansas

As different, almost, as possible from the great scenic national parks which we have been considering, but in its own particular way as extraordinary as any of them, the Hot Springs Reservation in the Ozark Mountains of Arkansas must be accorded a distinguished place among American resorts of national character and ownership. The reservation is the oldest national park, having received that status in 1832, forty years before the wonders of the Yellowstone first inspired Congress with the idea that scenery was a national asset deserving of preservation for the use and enjoyment of succeeding generations.

No aesthetic consideration was involved in this early act of national conservation. Congress was inspired only by the undoubted, but at that time inexplicable, power of these waters to alleviate certain bodily ills. The motive was to retain these unique waters in public possession in order that they should be available to all persons for all time at a minimum even a nominal cost.

The low, irregular mountain masses known as the Ozarks cover the greater part of southern Missouri and overlap northern Arkansas, where, in marked contrast with the surrounding plains, they become higher, more rugged and heavily timbered.

The country is one of much beauty. Hot Springs Mountain, from whose side flow the cleansing waters, is about fifty miles west by south from Little Rock. Here, as early as 1804, began the settlement which has developed into the handsome prosperous city of 16,000 inhabitants known as Hot Springs. It is a resort city, made wealthy from the many thousands of visitors seeking health from the adjacent Government springs and pleasure in the high and beautiful neighborhood country with its excellent drives and woodland paths, its mountain and river views, its social gayeties and its exceptional golf.

On the borders of the city at the mountain's foot lies the reservation, a tract of 912 acres enclosing all the forty-six hot springs. Eleven bath-houses are in the reservation and a dozen more in the city, all under Government regulation. There are also cold-water springs of curative value. In the city are many hotels and boarding houses with rates ranging from lowest to highest. The Department of the Interior has spent altogether more than a million dollars on the development of the reservation. The reservation contains, also, an Army and Navy Hospital.

Dr. William P. Parks, superintendent of the reservation, states in his annual report for 1915 that while the baths are constantly given for such ailments as seem to be benefited in the experience of physicians who have prescribed their use and carefully observed the results, there are still many physicians throughout the country who, never having themselves tested the springs, hesitate to send patients there.

"No physician who is thorough and looks for the best results from the medicines he gives," says Dr. Parks, "would think of prescribing a drug whose physiological effects and therapeutic value had not been scientifically proven and described."

A perfect explanation, this, of a natural scientific conservatism. The War Department's years of experience in the Army and Navy Hospital, however, is thoroughly convincing, and the medical staff officially affirm the waters' marked curative value for rheumatic and many grave ailments more or less kindred.

Recently the Department of the Interior has established on the reservation the Oertel system of graduated exercise which has proved so successful at the celebrated springs of Bad Nauheim, Germany. Courses have been laid out on the mountain slopes with distances scientifically established and plainly marked by monuments. The length and character of the walks are determined by physicians according to the condition and progress of the patient.

Tradition has it that the curative properties of the hot springs were known to the Indians long before the Spanish invasion. It is probable that they were known to De Soto who died in 1542 less than a hundred miles away. It is tradition that Indian tribes warred for their possession but that finally a truce was made which enabled all tribes to avail alike of their waters.

Government analyses of the waters disclose more than twenty chemical constituents, but it is not these nor

SENATOR WEEKS

Gives Solid Reason for Opposing 8 Hour Bill in Congress

In his speech opposing the eight-hour bill Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts said:

"This is the most important legislative crisis I have faced during my twelve years in Congress, and while I am well aware that what I say is not going to influence the action which the Senate will take today, I cannot let the occasion pass without a brief presentation of my views. Information in the press during the last year has given the general public an inkling of the differences which were said to exist between the managers of railroads and the trainmen; but there was no definite information on this subject either known to the public or in the hands of Congress until a few days ago, when the President summoned the trainmen to Washington to consult with them in regard to their contentions. The result of this consultation was a definite proposition made by the President approving the eight-hour day, compulsory arbitration, and the power to compel the operation of railroads, which with the exception of the eight-hour feature are not included in the bill which the Senate is now considering.

No Sane Consideration Given

"It must be apparent to the President, as it is to every one else, that no fair and sane consideration can be given to such questions as those in the midst of a political campaign, not to mention the fact that no time has been permitted to Congress to give the subject any real study. It is a most hazardous step to take from labor the individual and collective right it has heretofore had to make bargains with its employees and turn the question of the wage it shall receive over to a commission or to Congress, influenced as it must be by many extraneous conditions. We do not know whether railway trainmen are receiving a suitable remuneration and we cannot know it without being informed of the pay received in similar employments and, especially, the pay received by the other employees of the railroads. Even if it were desirable that Congress should fix wages, which I do not believe, to fix them without any knowledge of the facts is a revolutionary step and one which should not receive the approval of a single member of this body. It may be that these men should receive this additional pay; but it is almost a certainty that if they are entitled to it every other employee of the railroads is entitled to an increase, and it is as much our duty to guard and protect the million and a quarter who are not represented in this controversy as it is the less than half a million men who are making this appeal.

"Moreover, Congress must be familiar with the difficulties of financing railroads and operating them at this

Y. M. C. A.

Two New Officers Appointed for the Work of the Coming Season

Those interested in the Newton Y. M. C. A. will be glad to know something about the men who are to conduct the work there this year. These new workers will be glad to meet the residents of the city who are interested in Association work.

After his graduation he went to Pittsfield, Mass., where for the last two years he has been in charge of the Boys' Dept. of the Y. M. C. A. in that city.

The new Associate Secretary is Mr. George Grace of Oradell, N. J. He is a graduate of the Hackensack, N. J. High School of the class of 1916. In school he was active socially and athletically. He has won medals for pole vaulting and swimming and has had considerable experience in coaching general athletics. He has also been active in scout work. During this past summer he has served as a leader at Camp Beckett where he had charge of the setting-up drill and camp athletics. Mr. Grace is at his home for a brief vacation and will assume his duties in Newton on Sept. 15th.

Mr. H. R. White who has been Acting Secretary during the last few months will take up work with the Army and Navy Dept. of the Y. M. C. A. in connection with the troops on the Mexican border.

CHILDREN'S MUSEUM NOTES

Ever since the announcement of the "Leaf Contest" on June 17, young botanists have been studying the trees and shrubs on Boston's streets and parks, in the Arnold Arboretum and about their summer homes. They have consulted with the Museum force in regard to the comparative merits of mounting with glue or with gummed tape and have searched the public libraries for "tree books." This week the final collections for by five o'clock of Monday, September 11, all herbaria are to be placed in the Museum.

The judges will begin their work soon after that date, and announcement of the prize winners will be made in the daily papers as soon as possible. The few collections already submitted show a high order of excellence and the neatness of work and carefulness of labelling would be a credit to any adult botanist. The Museum plans to exhibit all prize-winning collections early in October.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

Entrance Examinations for admission to the Newton High Schools have been postponed to Friday, September 15 in Room 104, Technical High School. Special examination for Classical High School, September 15 and 16. Special examination for Technical High School, September 15.

NORUMBEGA PARK

There will be no matinee performances at Norumbega next week, but each evening an excellent programme of vaudeville and motion pictures will be presented.

The feature photo-play will be "Jordan Is A Hard Road," which was made from Sir Gilbert Parker's great story and produced under the personal direction of D. W. Griffith, identified with some of the greatest films ever made.

The picture features Dorothy Gish, Frank Campeau and Owen Moore, the husband of Mary Pickford, while the supporting cast is made up of capable players.

There will be the usual sacred concert on Sunday night.

Announcement

With pleasure I announce the opening of the Ford Market Company, 297 Centre Street, Newton. In the many years I managed the Knight & Co. store, across the street, I earnestly strove to give to the people of Newton and Watertown a good place to do their marketing at home. I feel that I have every right to ask my many patrons there to assist me in my new venture.

The system, planning of details, method of handling orders, ability to buy goods and handle same at a low cost was mine. These, combined with the efficiency and unfailing courtesy of my co-workers, will make my new store a success.

After all it is the kind words spoken by the satisfied customer that increase your business a hundred fold. Merit them and you can have nothing but success. You will find the same system of deliveries, the same method of securing orders, the same privileges I instituted in the store across the street.

You will find a well-equipped store, sanitary in every detail, where you may be served quickly and well. Come to our store. Assist us by your co-operation in making of this place in Newton an ideal market place.

GALA DAY

Interesting Program to be Held To-morrow
At Riverside

Everything is in readiness for the Third Annual Gala Day of the Auburndale-Riverside Canoe Association, to be held at Riverside, Saturday afternoon, September 9.

The heavy entries in all the events will necessitate running that particular event in heats, for the Racing Committee have received many entries from the various boat houses. Men's singles, men's doubles, ladies' singles, mixed doubles, tilting match, bucket match, and the usual war canoe teams are scheduled to appear.

The Auburndale-Riverside Canoe Association has a total membership of 200, composed of canoe enthusiasts from the six boat houses on the Charles River at Riverside and Auburndale. Prizes for the afternoon events, as well as for the best decorated canoe in the evening, will be given. An innovation is to be introduced—an orchestra, comfortably settled in a large motor-boat, will entertain the canoeists while they parade by the judges, and will furnish music for the entire evening.

The judges selected are as follows: W. W. Heckman, of the American Canoe Association and Newton Boat Club; Fred Brodbeck of the Dedham Boat Club; P. Leroy Ogden, Waltham Canoe Club.

The Racing Committee consists of the following: George Twombly, Norumbega Boat House, Chairman; Ernest C. Calkin, Robertson's Boat House; William Russell, Riverside Recreation Grounds.

E. T. Williams is chairman of the Gala Day Committee.

The Canoe Association, in deciding at what point in the river the Gala Day should be held, took into consideration the fact that the Weston bridge at the end of Commonwealth avenue had been torn out and the work on the new bridge is still in progress, and it is impossible for decorated canoes to go under the arch, the size it is at the present time. It is hardly possible for the Metropolitan Park Commission motor boats to go through, and for that reason the upper course along the banks of the Recreation Grounds was selected. Here it will be possible for more spectators to view the event from the shore, and a straight-away course is a great deal better for the entrants.

MELCHER-HAMMATT

On Tuesday, Sept. 5, Miss Alice Louise Hammatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. W. Hammatt of Water street, Newton Centre, was united in marriage to Mr. James Bartlett Melcher, son of Mrs. Alice J. Melcher of Berwick road, Newton Centre.

The wedding took place in the Unitarian Church, which was attractively adorned with golden rod and palms. The ceremony was performed at twelve o'clock by Rev. Oscar B. Hawes, pastor of the church.

The bride wore a beautiful wedding gown of white net and tulle. She was unattended.

The ushers were Messrs. Walter R. Main of New Haven, Conn., F. Marsena Butts of Newton Centre, Ward Jackson Parks of Sherborn, Mass., and Robert H. Hamilton of New York City.

A reception was held from 12:45 until 2 o'clock in the Sunday School rooms at the church and the bride and bridegroom were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Hammatt and Mr. Melcher.

Mr. and Mrs. Melcher left on a wedding trip to Nova Scotia, and on their return will reside at 15 Water street, Newton Centre, where they will be at home after Decmbr 1, 1916.

TO TENDER RECEPTION

Laymen's Retreat To Honor His Eminence
William Cardinal O'Connell
September 17th

In an age which, more than others, seems to be given over to the pursuit of fads, it is a source of gratification to discriminating people to come in contact with a religious movement which is at once sufficiently unusual to arouse interest and sufficiently reliable to command respect. And here in consists the reason for the continued popularity of the Catholic laymen's retreat movement, which had its beginning five years ago this autumn at Blessed Gabriel's Monastery in Brighton, and which, under the patronage of His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell, has in this brief space developed to that point where it engages the interest and active cooperation of many of the leading Catholic laymen of Boston.

Retreats for laymen are not a novelty in Catholic circles, as may be learned by reference to the history of the Church. And for many years the parish retreat has been an annual feature of local church work. But retreats for laymen as they are conducted at Blessed Gabriel's Monastery are comparatively new in this country and nowhere else is there a religious centre where they are handled upon the same scale and in a similar manner. The parish retreat is a valuable asset in the devotional life of the local church, and as such is growing in importance from year to year; but being a community affair it touches the life of the individual more as one of the community than as a single person, and hence does not readily reach the fountain head of religious life—the soul's relation to God. But in the work at Brighton it is first, and at all times, the individual that is ministered to, without regard to race, education, business and social affiliations, or parish connection; and the consequence is that out from this House of God from week to week go bodies of men whose brief retirement from the competition of business to the quiet meditation of the cloister has renewed them physically and readjusted their relation to the transcendent facts of life: God, eternity and the world to come. In this quiet sanctuary the retreatant finds relaxation and rehabilitation. From his place of retirement on the hill-top, he may look out into the distance over the roofs and streets of the great city, he can hear faintly at intervals the roar of its distant traffic, and the rattle of its business activities, and he can see thick around the monuments of its progress the smoke and dust of its industries; but its strenuous competition does not touch his life, and the echo of its discords does not penetrate the peaceful calm of his chamber. Beneath his feet he feels the soft crunch of velvet turf, the perfume of flowers is in the breeze, the song of birds is in the air. During the hours of recreation he makes the acquaintance of great and good men from all walks of life and forms friendships which he afterwards treasures among his dearest possessions. In the beautiful private chapel he sits at the feet of devout preachers whose lives have been given to meditation upon eternal verities and he learns from them the art of reflection. God and Heaven and Immortality become to him more real and tangible than ever before, and when the last exercise of his retreat has been dismissed he returns to the toil of his occupation better equipped to meet its temptations and better fitted to give efficient service in the prosecution of his work.

As yet too little time has elapsed since the founding of this House of the Passionist Order for one to predict with any degree of accuracy the scope of its future work for Laymen's retreats, but judging from the favor with which the work is being received by the men of New England, it is destined shortly to become what it was recently pronounced by one who is a convert to the Catholic Church: "The greatest work of the Catholic Church in New England," and His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell, may justly take pride in this great boon which he has been the means of conferring upon the Catholic laity of his See.

Last year saw a remarkable increase in the number of retreatants as compared with that of the earlier years of this movement—an increase which was made possible by the adoption of a program of weekly retreats in place of the monthly retreats which were given first. But this present year has seen an advance in numbers of more than twenty percent over the record year, thus taxing severely the limited accommodations of the Monastery. The work of the past year has been two-fold; first, an educational propaganda has been carried on for the purpose of acquainting the public more widely with the nature of the work; and second, a definite program has been carried out for the perfecting of the organization of the Laymen's Retreat Guild.

Early last fall preparations were made to present the interests of the work to various organizations of Catholic men throughout the diocese. Much of this educational program was carried on by personal work by former retreatants, and by the distribution of descriptive literature, but by far the most effective work in this direction was accomplished by means of a carefully prepared lecture, illustrated with excellent stereopticon views, which was given by Reverend Father George, the Director of Retreats, before many bodies of men during the winter. As a result of this propaganda, dates for retreats were booked months ahead, and in many cases an entire company of retreatants was made up from among the membership of a single organization.

The work within the Guild itself, while less spectacular, has been equally satisfactory. The first year the Laymen's Retreat Guild was of necessity experimental, but during this year, under the skillful direction of many of Boston's well-known Catholic men, the complete organization of the Guild work has been effected. The various departments have been enlarged and co-ordinated; new methods of handling routine business have been adopted; and plans for future work systematized and perfected. The result is an organization which can be used effectively for the promotion of a work which means more for the successful development of Christian character than any other one work which is engaging the attention of the Catholic Church in New England today.

In order that His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, may have the opportunity of reviewing the developments of this movement which his blessing and guidance has made possible, he will be tendered a reception by the Laymen's Retreat Guild on the Monastery lawn at Brighton on Sunday, September seventeenth, at 3:00 P. M. A program surpassing in excellence that of last year is being prepared, among the features of which will be addresses by the Rector of the Monastery, Right Reverend Father Alexis, D.D., and Maj. O'Keefe, President of the Guild, special music will be rendered by the student's choir of the Monastery and open-air benediction will be given. The house will be fittingly decorated for the occasion, and five hundred men will form an escort of honor for the Cardinal. The rising thousand members of the Guild, together with their friends, will be present, and the grounds will be open to the public and all who are interested, both men and women, are cordially invited to attend. Further announcements concerning the exercises will be made later.

Members of Newton Council, 167, of this city, will be participating in a retreat on this day.

MAKECHIEVE SCHOOL

With prospects favorable to surpassing last season's record attendance The Makechive Violin School is entering upon its fourteenth season. The only change in the personnel of the teaching force is noted in the violoncello department where Miss Helen I. Moorhouse is in charge. Miss Moorhouse is a former pupil of Mr. Makechive. She is a well trained and experienced instructor who is expected further to build up the 'cello instruction that was added several years ago as a logical complement to the violin courses. The viola is also included in the course of instruction.

For individual pupils the school combines class lessons and private lessons in such way as to secure the stimulus of the one and the close personal attention that is possible in the other. This system, the outcome of the director's studies in musical pedagogy, has been proved to advance pupils with marked rapidity and thoroughness.

Office hours, at which Ernest Makechive, director, will be glad to consult with prospective pupils or their parents, have been arranged as follows: Boston studio, 30 Huntington avenue, Thursday afternoon, from two to three o'clock; Somerville studio, 238 Elm street, West Somerville, every evening at seven o'clock. The school opens on the third Monday in September and continues for forty weeks.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—The Plymouth Theatre, now under the management of the Messrs. Shubert, has opened for the season with "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." The thousands of readers of the novel will immediately recognize the characters of the play as old acquaintances. It is based on a story which has gained for its little hero and his friend a warm place in the public heart. Mr. Walter has followed the book closely, and manifested fine skill in introducing all the characters. The role of Chad the "little shepherd" will be assumed by young Jack Davis, who as a boy actor has a number of successful impersonations to his credit. Matinees are given Thursdays and Saturdays.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—"Mut and Jeff's Wedding" at the Castle Square next week will show an entirely new scenic and electrical production, consisting of several sensational mechanical effects never before attempted in musical comedy. A new book is supplied by a popular playwright, and no expense has been spared to make the production complete in every respect. Mut and Jeff were originated for philanthropic purposes. They cheer mankind, and make every man, woman and child who sees them forget all real and imaginary troubles. They are depicted by flesh and blood actors who are physically fitted to represent them as Bud Fisher drew them, and they are supported by a capable company of actors, singers and dancers.

MACDONALD—FULLER

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Clark Fuller of this city to Mr. Charles MacDonald, Jr., of Tarrytown, N. Y., took place at Bustin's Island, Me., on Saturday, September 2nd, at 4 P. M. upon the spacious lawn in front of the Fuller cottage, the Outlook.

The event was the culmination of a romance begun several years ago, when the young people met on the island during their summer vacation. The day of the wedding was most auspicious. Sun, sky, and sea were at their best and the island itself never looked greener and fairer. The cottage and grounds were adorned with bayberry and pine. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Gay Charles White, Ph.D., pastor of the Pine Street Methodist Church of Portland, Me.

All the participants in the ceremony are college graduates. The bride is a member of the class of 1916, Wellesley. The maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth F. Woods of Lexington, the bridesmaids, Miss Frances Evans of Pater-son, N. J., Miss Arlene Westwood of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss Marguerite Schenck of Brooklyn, N. Y., are all alumnae of Wellesley College.

The bridegroom graduated from the University of New York and his best man, Mr. Ralph T. B. Todd, of Tarrytown, N. Y., is an alumnus of Rutgers. The ushers were Messrs. George Curtis of Tarrytown, Cornell and Columbia; Warren C. Fuller of Marshallfield, brother of the bride, Wesleyan University; and Charles Sells of Yonkers, N. Y., University of Colorado. Music was furnished by Mr. Donald E. Hosmer, violin, Dartmouth, '16, and Miss Miriam Hosmer, piano, N. E. Conservatory of Music, '12, both intimate friends of the bride.

As the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was being played, Miss Fuller escorted by her father and attended by her maid of honor and her bridesmaids, passed down the steps of the cottage, out upon the green lawn, beneath a white canopy. She wore white net over white satin with a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and white sweet peas; her veil was fastened with white sweet peas; her chief ornament was a bar pin of diamonds set in platinum, the gift of the groom. The young women attendants wore garden party gowns and hats of different colors and carried bouquets of pink sweet peas and roses. The double ring service was used. After the ceremony a reception was held and refreshments were served. The wedding gifts were displayed in the large living room of the cottage and testified to the interest and love of the many friends of the young couple.

Late in the afternoon, the launch, Nereus, came to the landing to receive the wedding party. The western sky was crimsoned with the colors of the setting sun. The new moon gave an additional charm to the scene. Friends on shore showered the bride and groom with rice and confetti and then waved farewells and spoke their good wishes as the boat rounded the point for the mainland at South Freeport, where a motor was waiting to take them to Portland.

The home of the young people will be in Tarrytown, N. Y., in a house specially planned and built for them. Mr. MacDonald holds a responsible position as county engineer of Westchester County, New York. He is the son of Charles MacDonald, Sr., who is a prominent resident of Newcastle, N. Y., and holds the office of supervisor of that town.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald will be at home to their friends after November first.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Completing its second month in Boston, "Where Are My Children?" that wonderful photoplay is as popular as it was the first week, and there are no signs yet at the Majestic Theatre that Boston is tiring of the play. The same crowded lobby and sidewalk, the same line of ticket purchasers attest the favor with which the show is held. The ninth week begins next Monday, September 11th. Of course the main attraction of the play is its truthful representation of condition, which though deplorable, are known to exist, and while it is not the expectation that the showing of the picture will entirely correct these conditions, it is expected that the attention called to them, will, in a great measure, ameliorate these conditions.

The four performances daily are given at 2 and 3.30 and at 8 and 9.30 P. M.

What is in paint is as important as how paint is put on. The best painter in the land cannot make worthless mixtures of crushed rock and ground earths stay put. Imitation paint lacks the clinching qualities and elasticity that paint made of

Why Put Off Painting?

You buy new shoes when the old ones fail to protect your feet or when they look shabby. Why do you put off painting when the weather eats into your house or your house has that run-down-at-the-heel look? It's good judgment to paint now with and pure linseed oil. Such paint is an armor-like protection against decay—tough, elastic, non-cracking, lasting.

time. With the general increased cost of operation and the relative lessening of the difference between gross and net earnings, even under present conditions, it is practically impossible to get new money to make improvements and developments which are essential if the public is to receive the best possible service. In affairs of this kind the public is invariably the loser; for, if the strike actually takes place and succeeds, either the public pays more for every person carried and every pound of freight hauled, or receives from the railroads a less efficient service.

"It is not surprising that the farmer whose granary is filled and ready for market deprecates a strike, or that the merchant who sees the possibility of not getting goods for his customer takes the same view and that they, like many others directly involved, make appeals in favor of this legislation. In doing so, however, they are in the same class with a person who takes a drug to relieve a temporary pain. It may answer their purpose for the time being, but it furnishes a basis for a habit which, in the end, will prove destructive. It is our duty not only to protect all of the ninety-seven millions of American citizens who are not connected either directly or indirectly with railroads, but even to protect them against themselves, if necessary, for in time they will learn that they are not only paying additional compensation for the service they receive this year, but it will apply in future years, for no one need assume for a moment that Congress will ever lessen an established rate.

Stand and Deliver

"This whole question has finally reached the stage where it puts the railway trainmen in the position of demanding that Congress shall stand and deliver. I do not mean to imply that they have willingly put themselves in this position. I have no doubt they would prefer to settle their own differences with their own employers and in their own way, but the President by inviting the managers and trainmen to Washington has not only involved himself and the Administration in this controversy, but by his recommendations to Congress has involved it as well. We need not analyze the probability of the threat of a strike because we are going to adopt legislation; but I for one do not believe that a majority of the trainmen wish to strike. I am confident and have proof that many of them are satisfied with present conditions.

"Practically speaking, there is no complaint on the part of those employed on passenger trains and I am convinced that with public sentiment almost completely against the strike, as it would be, even if it were ordered, it would be of short duration and would result in the humiliation of those conducting it; but by the course which has been followed in this matter, the delay in bringing it to the attention of Congress, we are put in the position of either assuming the responsibility of precipitating a strike or enacting legislation which undoubtedly could not be passed under other conditions.

End of Representative Government

"It is this later phase which appalls every thinking man and especially one on whom the responsibility of coming to a decision rests. If Congress accedes to this demand, it is in effect, temporarily at least, and end of representative government. It is the substitution of Government by coercion, with Congress lending a frightened ear to the side it thinks controls the most votes. If we take this action in this case, what is to prevent and why would it not be reasonable to take the same action in other cases?

Disturb Every Industrial Relation

"Moreover, what will happen to the industrial country if we establish an eight-hour day as is proposed by this legislation? Personally I am in entire sympathy with the proposition that eight hours of labor is a goal to which employees may look forward with confidence that it will come in time; but our whole industrial structure is founded on different conditions, and the establishment at this time of this policy by act of Congress will not only disturb every industrial relation which exists, producing strikes in other occupations, but demands which, if acceded to, are almost certain to put us in such a position that at the end of the war we will be unable to compete with any degree of success with European and Asiatic countries, resulting in a degree of depression and distress in this country unparalleled in our history. The employee who is receiving a weekly wage may probably not be able to see this and it is, therefore, all the more our duty to prevent action which will involve him and everyone else in the serious troubles which are sure to ensue.

"Taking all of these matters into consideration, I wish to enter my most vigorous protest against this method of procedure, against the character of the bill we are now considering, and against the time and conditions which have brought about this legislation.

"It is idle to assume that it has not political force or political effect. I am not the judge to pass on the conduct of others but I can not help believing that the railway trainmen in taking this step are doing an unpatriotic act and one which they themselves will regret.

"I should be very glad to provide the means to make a careful investigation of this whole question and when a report has been made to vote for legislation which is justified or is based on the facts; but I will not take any part in putting Congress in the position of standing and delivering. If it has the result which I believe it will have, it is a step which every one who is instrumental in bringing it about will live to regret. Therefore, with attempting to pass on the merits of this controversy and, even if I approved of every phase of this I would be forced to oppose it for that reason and that reason alone."

NEWTON FREE LIBRARY

One feature of the present war is the great number of personal narratives which are appearing in print, experiences of those actually present on the fighting line in one capacity or another. Four of the most notable are: A hilltop on the Marne, by Mildred Aldrich. FOT9.A36.

Miss Aldrich is an American woman, an artist, long resident in Paris. In 1914 she rented a country house on the river Marne and made her home there, declaring that what she desired was "calm and quiet—perfect peace." In three months a battle was raging about her house.

Kitchener's mob, by James Norman Hall. FOT9.H14.

"The author is a young American from Iowa, who was touring the British Isles on a bicycle when war was declared. He hurried to London and enlisted, and has given some account of his experiences in Kitchener's army." "Some things in the book are particularly well done, notably the very interesting and detailed account of the trench system."

My home in the field of honour, by Frances Wilson Huard. FOT9.H86.

Madame Huard is the daughter of Francis Wilson the actor, and through her marriage to Baron Charles Huard became mistress of a chateau near the Marne. Her book gives an account of her thrilling experiences during the first weeks of the war. The New York Times says: "One cannot read this little book without discovering in the author's unpretentious account of what she did and how she did it facts that will make us proud that she is an American. Efficiency, courage, endurance, even cheerfulness, under horrible hardships and exhaustion, these she showed unconsciously and simply."

Experiences of an American member of the famous Foreign legion of France during the battle of La Champagne. Ellery Sedgwick begins his preface to the book as follows: "When Sergeant Morlae turned up at the Atlantic office and with his head cocked on one side, remarked ingratiatingly, 'I'm told this is the highest-toned office in the United States' there was nothing to do but to assure him that he was quite right and to make him quite comfortable while he told his wonderful story." Thus the chapters of the book first appeared in the pages of the Atlantic Monthly. This is The Bookman's comment upon it: "So far the war has produced no more striking document than Edward Morlae's 'A soldier of the legion.'"

Other books of this character are the well-known book by the well-loved Fritz Kreisler. Four weeks in the trenches, FOT9.K87; With my regiment from the Aisne to La Bassée, by "Platoon Commander." FOT9.W77; Golden lads, by Arthur Huntington Gleason and Helen Hayes Gleason, FOT9.G47; By motor to the firing line, by Walter Hale, FOT9.H13. The first hundred thousand, by Ian Hay, FOT9.H32; The great push, by Patrick MacGill, FOT9.M17 g; Impressions and experiences of a French trooper, by Christian Mallet, FOT9.M29; Over the front in an aeroplane, by Ralph Pulitzer, FOT9.P96; My fourteen months at the front, by William J. Robinson, FOT9.R56; War letters of an American woman, by Marie Van Vorst, FOT9.V37 Friends of France, the field service of the American Ambulance, described by its members, FOT9.F91.

THE WOODLAND PARK

The management of the Woodland Park, has issued cards announcing an invitation Lawn Dance to be given at the hotel on Wednesday evening, Sept. 13th from 8 until 12. Teal's Band will be in attendance and Madame Grace Hamlin, mezzo soprano, and Donna George, solo dancer, will assist in the entertainment. The grounds will be illuminated with Westinghouse flood lights for the dancing. Refreshments will be served. It will be the opening social event at the hotel, and if the weather conditions are unfavorable it will be postponed until the first pleasant evening. The patronesses are Mrs. E. B. Haskell of Auburndale, Mrs. Albert E. Pillsbury and Miss Mabel Paul of Boston.

The extensive improvements at the Woodland Park are progressing rapidly and work has been commenced on the new ballroom.
 The dining-hall, which is very commodious, is, owing to the scheme of lighting and decorating, most attractive and inviting. Eight large inverted electric lights are suspended from the ceiling and silver candlesticks lighted by electricity are placed along the walls. The finish of the walls and ceiling is a beautiful and effective paneling, and good taste is everywhere apparent, making it one of the most charming dining-halls conceivable. The windows command delightful views of the woodlands, and in the evening during the dinner hour, the effect of the brilliant lights of this class, such as is rarely found outside of the leading cities.

The Woodland Park has long been the Mecca for automobile tourists. A tierproof garage is being installed and quarters for the employees will be

NEWTON ARCHERS

The Newton Archers are back in force after some time on vacation at Jackson, at Casco Bay, et al. The Club brought back from the National Tournament at Jersey City the big silver medal of the second prize for women—won by Miss Norma L. Pierce; the flight-shot, won by Geo. P. Bryant with a shot of 289 yards plus, within some 6 inches of the record (measure that off, down street, and see how far it is); the presidency of the Association, won by C. E. Dallin the sculptor;—and Massachusetts as the next tourney-place. Now they welcome visitors and are ready to make things interesting to all and sundry.

Are you aware that someone is shooting every fair Saturday afternoon and holiday of the snowless months throughout the year? Are you aware that it is most fascinating to watch them at it, no matter what the range, be it 100 yards or 40? Do you know the way to the Archery Ground—the western end of the playground in the angle made by Centre street and Commonwealth avenue. Then plan to saunter in, next fair Saturday, about 3 P. M. and look on for awhile. Columbus Day a regular tournament is expected, and practice-work is on meanwhile.

Here are some of the latest scores:

September 2.
American Round.
Tot. Hits Points
Mrs. Burton Payne Gray 82 438
W. P. B. Gray, Jr. 38 135

September 4
York Round
Geo. P. Bryant 83 376
C. T. Switzer 57 229
B. P. Gray 47 179
A. Shepherdson 50 140
H. A. Ives 32 102
J. C. Bushong (visitor, from Worcester, Mass.) 29 69

Duck Shoot, free for all Won by Shepherdson and True, tied, 2 hits each; but Shepherdson the better placed.

Mrs. Shepherdson and Mrs. True also shooting, but not for record.

It is worthy of comment that many archers are married, and their wives are archers. Some of them can shoot rings around their spouses—whose wedding rings they also wear.

Miss Harriet Elizabeth Silva, of Bridgeport, Conn., a graduate of the Newton Technical High School in 1913, has accepted a position in Bridgeport, Conn., as the editor of the Woman's Page of the only morning paper of that city, the Bridgeport Morning Telegram. Miss Silva has had some experience in journalism, but the news of the unusual accomplishment, in this field, of so young a girl comes as a source of gratification to a great many friends and professional acquaintances in Boston and Newton. Miss Silva is well known in Newtonville and Newton Centre. She is writing under the pseudonym "Patricia King" as a matter of convenience. While a student of the Bridgeport High School, she received a first prize in a short story contest, and also a first prize for an essay submitted in a writing contest at the Newton Technical High School in 1913. Miss Silva has been editing the Woman's Page of the Telegram for the past two months and has been very successful with her work.

POP CONCERT

The New Pops and Operatic Concerts that began in Symphony Hall Tuesday evening, September 5, to run for three weeks are proving to be a real sensation. Such a combination of fine orchestra, remarkable conductor and high class singers has never been presented in Boston at any similar concert. The orchestral part of the programme is along the general lines of the spring pop concerts, but there is no question that the presence of three distinguished operatic artists who sing arias in the second part of the programme adds much to the pleasure of the evening. The coming week, Tuesday evening, September 13, Myrna Sharlow, the charming American soprano, who was once a member of the Boston Opera Company and is now a member of the Chicago Opera Company, will be the soprano. Also, in the second week, Octave Dua, lyric tenor of the Chicago Opera Company, will be added to the programme. Mr. Nicolay and Miss Snelling remain.

FOUR DAY FAIR

The first week in October brings a four day fair in to be given by the Newton Centre Women's Club. It will be held in the old Batholomew house, now on the site of the proposed new club house, and promises to be a fine affair, as a large proportion of the members have been planning or working for several months.

The selling scheme will be worked out according to the Seven Ages of Man, with appropriate articles and decorations for each section.

Luncheon and Tea will be served each day, and one evening will be given over to a Dance at Bray Hall.

DEATH OF A BRIDE

Mr. William L. Thompson of Boylston street, Newton Upper Falls has the sympathy of his wide circle of friends on account of the death last Saturday of his bride of less than a week. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were married on Wednesday of last week and on last Saturday afternoon the body of Mrs. Thompson was found by some boys floating in the Charles River near the Boylston street bridge. Mrs. Thompson had left her home about ten o'clock on that morning with the intention of walking to Echo Bridge.

BRAE BURN CLUB

Cards have been issued announcing a Dinner Dance on Saturday evening, September ninth. Dinner will be served from six until eight. Dancing on the Bowling Green from 8.15 until 10.30. Quinby's Band will be in attendance. Send acceptances to the House Committee, W. B. H. Dowse, H. L. Ayer, F. B. Witherbee and P. J. Lyle. Cancellations not accepted after eight P. M. Youngster Felt Lonely.

On account of the crowded condition of the street car, my small nephew and I were obliged to take seats on opposite sides of the aisle, says a writer in an exchange. His place was between two extremely well nourished women, who, when they got off the car together after riding a few blocks, left what must have seemed to my tiny relative, a great space each side of him. He aroused me from the newspaper in which I had become absorbed, and amused the passengers near us by calling to me in a lonesome tone, "Auntie, won't you please come over here and take care of me?"

Citizen's Duty.

Kant's categorical imperative may be expanded in these words, if duty: No one may do that which, if done by all, would destroy society. In other words, the individual must see that when the gaining of his own poor little happiness involves an injury to a great human ideal it is better to put the happiness off and cast it from him than to do his part to bring the body politic to hell fire.

In a Class by itself.

One of the largest and most valuable timber trees of the country is the tulip tree, known to lumbermen as yellow poplar. It is related to the magnolias, but is the only tree of its kind in the world.

BRILLIANT FETE

Splendid Entertainment Marks Opening of Fall Season at Woodland Park

The Invitation Lawn Dance held Wednesday evening at the Woodland Park hotel, was one of the most brilliant and successful social events ever held in Newton.

It was the grand opening affair at this attractive hotel, which has, in a short space of time, been transformed into a veritable paradise, and bids fair to become one of the beauty spots of the Garden City.

This out-door affair was successful far beyond expectation, nearly 2,000 guests, representing the society of Boston, Brookline, the Newtons and other sections of the country, being present.

Mr. Methot, the new proprietor, received the guests and was overwhelmed with congratulations for his success in this new undertaking, and the evolution, at his hands, of this quaint old family hotel, into a de luxe suburban hostelry, where every conceivable comfort for guests, is considered.

No expense was spared to make it a success, and the result was most gratifying not only to the proprietor and the manager, but also to the large gathering of guests who thoroughly enjoyed the atmosphere of complete hospitality and home-like charm which pervaded the place.

The scheme of lighting and decorating which was under the direction of Johnnot, was wondrously beautiful, being an Edison work of art. A long line of colored lights were hung to the entire length of the driveway to the front entrance of the hotel, where a steady stream of automobiles deposited their occupants from early in the evening until near midnight.

The lawn was enclosed with canvas from the Woodland road side to the front entrance, and the enclosure where a canvas was laid for the dancing, was outlined in pretty varicolored fashion, and illuminated with the festinghouse flood lights, and Dame Nature lent her assistance to this gay and festive occasion, by furnishing an ideal summer night in September, and sent a wonderful moon of palest pearl, floating overhead, and shedding its soft beams over the picturesque scene.

It was a notable assemblage of beautifully gowned ladies and their escorts who came to enjoy the dance. Amid myriads of the varicolored and scintillating lights, the merry revellers enjoyed the terpsichorean pastime to the accompaniment of fine music by Teel's Band of fifteen accomplished musicians, which was placed in a stand erected for the occasion.

The management provided liberally for the entertainment. Madam Grace Hamlin, the noted singer, graced the occasion by her presence, and contributed several vocal selections, which were received with enthusiastic applause. She possesses a mezzo-soprano voice of marvelous range and sweetness, and her singing was most delightful.

Among the many attractive features of the evening program was the solo dancing by Miss Donna George, a beautiful and talented dancer, who charmed the spectators by her clever and artistic poses and complete mastery of the terpsichorean art.

During the intermissions the attendants of the hotel served refreshments from an attractive table arranged near the band stand.

The dance was the first in a series of social events to be held at the hotel, which will include afternoon teas, recitals, outdoor and indoor dancing, dinner parties and later in the season skating carnivals.

Wednesday evening's affair was attended by members of the various Woman's Clubs of Newton, the Junior Charity Club of Boston, the Brae Burn Country Club and Woodland Golf Club and other organizations.

The patronesses were Mrs. E. B. Haskell of Auburndale, Mrs. Albert E. Pillsbury of Boston, and Miss Mabel Paul, an officer of the Junior Charity Club of Boston.

The entertainment and dancing was under the direction of Mr. Winaloe U. Sternberg, the manager of the hotel.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot C. Chandler, Miss Gladys Chandler, Mr. Norman Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Henry W. Godfrey, Mr. Roger Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Spooner, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gooding, of Auburndale, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stiles, Mrs. H. L. Ayer, Mrs. William Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. Richard Bunting, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Martin, Miss Edith Thomas of West Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Ballou of the Brae Burn Club, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bartlett Cram, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Miss Margaret Pierce of Newton Centre, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk W. Hobart, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. St. Coeur of Newton, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Byers, Mr. and Mrs. William Cushing Bambridge, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Wilkins, Dr. and Mrs. David H. Tufts Will Win

Because the citizens of Middlesex County want as District Attorney a man who will give to the office the honest, meritorious, and wholly efficient service which has characterized the public career of Senator Nathan A. Tufts of Waltham.

No other candidate has the all-round equipment, the knowledge of statutory law, experience in dealing with people and in the general practice of the law that Mr. Tufts has had. Nominate him and secure the right sort of administration of the office of District Attorney.

His good sense and the admirable temper he brings to the decision of important matters, his consideration and courtesy for others, and his thorough mastery of questions which he undertakes have brought him the respect and confidence of all who know him.

He is a man's man, a hard worker, a straight-away talker, and capable from every standpoint. He has the habit of success in whatever he undertakes and is a positive fixture in the esteem of all those who know him.

The returns from Maine justify the growing belief that Mr. Hughes will be the next President of these United States.

Recent developments in the representative contest in this city seems to indicate that some candidates prefer endorsements from South Boston and Podunk to those from Newton.

RIVER CARNIVAL

The Auburndale-Riverside Canoe Association held an enjoyable Gala Day last Saturday on the Charles river at Riverside. The program included races in the afternoon and music and illuminations in the evening. The committee in charge included Messrs. George Twombly, Ernest C. Calkins, E. T. Williams and William Russell.

Miss Bertha Edmunds, wearing the colors of the Norumbega Boathouse, who has taken practically all the honors on the river this season in canoe races again distinguished herself by winning the singles race for girls and, with F. E. Welch, took first honors in the mixed doubles. The men's doubles furnished the best race of the day, the winning team, J. E. Welch and A. H. Hutchinson, beating L. H. Young and David Gaw by a few feet. The boats were nipped and tuck from start to finish.

In the war canoe race Robertson's Boathouse beat the Recreation Grounds crew by 15 feet. The Gray and Frost crew, which had been conceded first honors, finished last.

The judges were C. W. Whitney, W. W. Hockman and Fred Brobeck. Leroy Ogden of the Waltham Canoe Club was the starter and James Burghin of the same club referee. The racing committee comprised George Twombly, Ernest C. Calkins, William Russell and E. T. Williams. The summary:

BRAE-BURN CLUB

A prominent social event of the past week was the Dinner Dance on Saturday evening which opened the Autumn season at Brae-Burn.

Owing to the fact that a great many of the club members and their friends have not yet returned from their summer homes, the dance was not so largely attended as Brae-Burn affairs usually are, and yet it was an occasion which was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The dinner preceding the dance was served in the club house from six until eight and Quimby's Band was placed on the lawn directly outside the dining hall, in a space illuminated with incandescent lights, and furnished a very delightful program during the dinner.

Dancing was enjoyed on the Bowling Green from 8.15 until 10.30 and the grassy sward was reduced to such a velvet softness and smoothness, that it could scarcely be distinguished from the green canvas. The beautifully kept lawns are one of Brae-Burn's chief attractions, and it was the first club to introduce outdoor dancing, which is now becoming so popular at other clubs.

The dancing scene was enhanced by hundreds of tiny electric lights of various hues and an immense American Flag, hung at the woodland side added greatly to its effectiveness.

The affair was in charge of the house committee, Mr. William B. H. Dowse, Mr. Harry L. Ayer, Mr. Frank B. Witherbee, and Mr. Frank J. Hale. Miss Ethel Gertrude Farnum, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude E. Farnum of Waltham, was married on Monday evening, September 11, to Mr. Arthur Chester Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon C. Carter of Washington Park, Newtonville.

The ceremony was performed at noon by Rev. Peter Black, pastor of the Newtonville Methodist Church. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Carter, the bridegroom's mother, only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were guests.

ENJOYABLE OUTING

Members and ladies of the Massachusetts Press Association were the guests last Saturday of Hon. John N. Cole of Andover. The party numbered about one hundred and were received by Mr. Cole at his office in Andover, the home of the Andover Press and the Andover Townsman. After inspecting one of the most up-to-date printing plants in the state, automobiles took the party to Mr. Cole's beautiful home on "Boulder Brook."

Games of all kinds furnished entertainment for most of the party and a substantial lunch was served under the trees, and with a most attractive background. Governor McCall and Lieut. Governor Coolidge honored the Association and Mr. Cole by their presence and made brief addresses. Among those present from this city were Mr. Frank W. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. John Temperley and J. C. Brimblecom.

The fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the Lincoln Park Baptist Church in West Newton is to be fittingly celebrated by exercises extending from Sunday, September 24, to Wednesday, September 27. On Tuesday evening at 8.00 o'clock there will be a concert by the Copley Quartet of Boston, assisted by Miss Genevieve Frizzell, reader. The price of admission to this concert will be forty cents. On Wednesday the exercises will be brought to a close by the annual Good Fellowship supper. This supper will be served in the vestry at 7.00 o'clock. MASSACHUSETTS NAUTICAL SCHOOL

Fresh from the seas where French and English men of war are prowling, the hundred and four boys on the Massachusetts Training ship "Ranger" due here this week, are expected to bring back with them tales more or less exciting of life on the main. The youngsters should be in fine trim after five months of cruising and drill. This school qualifies young men for positions as deck officers and engineers in the merchant marine. The cruise this year offered an unusual opportunity for education, as it included a stop at the Danish West Indies—Port of St. Thomas—just now of particular interest to Uncle Sam. The cadets also visited Havana, Cuba, Norfolk, Va., Yorktown, Annapolis, Washington, Newport News and places nearer home.

As the boys always enjoy shore leave at these places, they will have some good stories of travel to spin when they tie up at the wharf on the 14th. This cruise is open to boys of Massachusetts between the ages of sixteen and twenty.

Special interest centers this year on the presentation by the alumni association, of two prizes, one each for excellence in seamanship and in marine engineering.

Capt. P. W. Hourigan, U. S. N. (retired) commanded the "Ranger" on her present trip.

OPENS SEPTEMBER 21

The New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, will open for the first term of the school year 1916-7 on Thursday, Sept. 21. From the volume of correspondence received prior to registration, beginning Thursday, Sept. 14, it would appear that the attendance is likely to exceed that of last season when 2,699 students were registered, representing 46 American states and 17 foreign countries.

The Conservatory starts the season with essentially the same faculty of 74 members which taught last year. Two additions are noted, Madame Carolina de Fabritius, who has previously assisted Charles A. White in the department of voice culture and the art of singing, is now listed as a faculty member. She was graduated from the Conservatory in 1901 and has already had much successful experience as a teacher. Mrs. Emil Mahr, whose late husband was for many years head of the Conservatory violin department, has been chosen instructor in German. She has previously done much private teaching of this language.

The Rebecca F. Sampson scholarship, representing the income of $1,000, has been added to the list of free scholarships which are awarded each spring to pupils of the Conservatory who fulfill the requirements as to ability and grade of advancement, and who are in need of assistance. The Simfonia fraternity and three sororities will each offer a scholarship as usual.

LAWN PARTY

A lawn party is to be held by the Club House Committee of the Auburn-dale Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Brown, the president of the club, 405 Wolcott street, Auburndale, on Sept. 27, in the afternoon, from 2 till 5.30. The committee in charge are Mrs. A. D. Becker, Mrs. Henry W. Godfrey and Mrs. W. A. Stiles, chairman. Home made cake and candy will be for sale, also ice cream and hot coffee. Some of the attractions will be a fortune teller and music by a hurdy-gurdy.

Miss Ruth Allen will entertain the guests with one of her delightful dances. Auction bridge will be a large feature.

There will be numerous grab bags and other entertainment for the children. Some of the ladies who are assisting are Mrs. Charles Butler, Mrs. H. Lewis Hardy, Mrs. E. Arthur Robinson, Mrs. J. Arthur Furbush, Miss G. E. Wightman, Mrs. Chester M. Robbins, Mrs. Henry S. Dawson, Mrs. J. W. Weinberg and Mrs. Fred Cartwright.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

Public interest in the subject of Christian Science is so apparent in the Newtons, that the announcement of another lecture on it will be welcomed. The lecture, under the auspices of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Newton, will be given by Mr. John W. Dooley, C. S. B., in Players' Hall, West Newton, Sept. 22nd, at 8 P. M. Mr. Dooley is from England, where the Christian Science movement is making rapid progress we understand. In London the growth has been quite remarkable, with eight churches, one of them costing $250,000.

Inexpedient was voted on request of the school committee for $500 for preliminary plans for additions to the Newton High Schools and the President authorized to appoint a committee to confer with the school committee on the matter. President Blanchard subsequently appointed Alderman Price, Cole, Flitts, Winslow, Angier, Clement and Harriman.

Two Gold Medals—Highest Award

at The Panama Exposition, 1915

Glenwood Coal Ranges, Gas Ranges, Furnaces and Heaters, awarded Two Gold Medals, at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

Glenwood Ranges are the product of New England's largest and best known foundry. They are designed by makers of life-long experience. They weigh more, are put together better and burn less fuel than most ranges. The castings are wonderfully smooth and easy to keep clean.

They are handsome, convenient and mechanically right—no modern feature lacking. Smooth cast, Colonial design, plain finish, compact structure, big roomy ovens, easy working grates and countless other features.

Owing to their sturdy construction and fine workmanship, they will stand hard usage, do better work and last much longer than the ordinary kind.

They certainly do "Make Cooking and Baking Easy".

NEWTON OPERA HOUSE

In all the thousands of motion pictures which have been given to the public, never has a star been gowned with the sort of frocks, hats, shoes and lingerie that Miss Billie Burke is to wear in "Gloria's Romance," the new motion picture novel from the pen of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, which Manager L. C. Fisher of the Newton Opera House has booked, and the first chapter of which will be seen on the screen on next Monday and Tuesday.

In stageland Miss Burke is famous for the wonderful gowns that have graced her person, each season seeming to have found her with a more gorgeous array than the preceding one, but during the course of the new animated novel she is going to wear costumes especially designed for her by Henri Bendel, Lucile and Balcom, that will outshine any gowns in which she has been seen in the past. Dramatic critics in mentioning Miss Burke on the speaking stage have worn threadbare such adjectives as "adorable," "exquisite," and "lovely," and all of them have fallen far short of describing this fascinating little star. Photography cannot flatter Miss Burke, for it requires a Henner to portray the wonderful red goldness of her hair, the milk-whiteness of her skin and the slender girliness of her figure. In "Gloria's Romance," in which Miss Burke portrays the role of a wealthy society girl, a $15,000 Russian sable coat will be seen, together with a $12,000 ermine coat, a $9,000 chinchilla coat, a blue and gold and metal embroidered evening coat, trimmed with silver fox fur, valued at $2,500, and a dinner gown trimmed with lace that was priced at $150 per yard. Feminine picture goers will find the picture a regular fashion bazaar and undoubtedly will follow it with interest.

THE MILLINERS' CONTEST

One of the features at the convention of the New England Retail Milliners' Association was a prize contest for the most original design. The hat winning first prize was a large flat rounding sailor effect with a dome-shaped crown. The under facing is of velvet; the upper and crown is made of satin antique; its decoration is an impenetrable bird. Its designer is Albert A. Allendörff, of Boston.

The second prize is a blue velvet hat ornamented with a beautiful spray of golden rod executed in chenille. The third prize creation is a calla-lily hat carried out in blossoms and leaves of this plant. The latter two are the designs of Mlle. Caroline, Boylston street, Boston.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—"The Heart of Dixie" the attraction at the Castle Square next week, is a comedy drama of the present day South and is declared to sound a big deep human note and to carry an appeal to every human heart. The author has sought to provide a play that would entertain with dramatic thrill, romance, pathos and a broad vein of comedy and not to present any weighty social problem to be solved. The scenes are laid in Western North Carolina and the characters are said to be true to that district as were the "types" made famous in "Way Down East," "Shore Acres," "Arizona," and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." The company includes Bertha Julian, Dorothy Hays, Ethel Wichman, Charlotte Langdon, Richard La Salle, Jerome Bruner, and Lawrence Atkinson. Characteristic dances and the melodies of the past and present will be furnished by a chorus of darbies.

A reception at the Brae-Burn Club will follow the ceremony.

LODGES

The three Odd Fellow Lodges in this city, Newton, Home and Waban, were well represented last Sunday at the parade and Service held at Fenway Park, Boston by the Triple Link League of Mass.

WILBUR THEATRE—With the opening of the sixth week of the engagement of "Very Good Eddie" at the Wilbur Theatre, next Monday, Sept. 18, and with not the slightest evidence of any falling off in the interest in this charming musical play as produced by the Marbury-Comstock company, the assurance of a long and successful run is made certain. Night after night the house is sold out, and night after night throngs of delighted patrons of the theatre crowd the sidewalk. The reason for this state of affairs is not hard to find. In the first place the play contains all that is necessary to an evening's pleasure at the playhouse. There is comedy of the better sort interpreted by able comedians, music of the catchy kind that you hum for days afterwards, pretty girls of the class that you cannot forget, and an ensemble that it would be difficult to improve upon.

MARRIED AT BELLOWS FALLS

Word was received yesterday of the marriage of Miss Florence Amelia Chant and Mr. Robert Gordon Blue at Bellows Falls, Vt., on Tuesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alfred C. Wilson of the Episcopal Church at that place. This announcement will come as a great surprise as Mr. Blue's friends supposed he was leaving on his annual vacation and also because the bride's sister was married at the same place some few weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Blue are well known in Newton, having resided here most of their lives. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Clara Chant of Jefferson street, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Blue of Charlesbank road. He is employed in the accounting department of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., in Boston.

After an extended trip thru Vermont and New Hampshire Mr. and Mrs. Blue will reside at the home of the bride's mother, at 28 Jefferson street, Newton.

DWYER-BURNS

The marriage of Mr. John Dwyer, a popular business man of Boston, and Miss Mary Louise Burns, an estimable young woman of Newton, took place at the home of the bride's parents in Newton, Monday afternoon, September 11th.

The bride was gowned in white duchess satin, chantly lace trimming, and was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Burns and Mr. James Coughlan of Fall River was groomsmen. The bridesmaid was gowned in pink crepe meter.

The gift to the bride was a beautiful sunburst diamond pin, and to the bridesmaid a diamond pendant.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple being assisted in receiving by the bride's mother, Mrs. H. G. Hatchell of Newtonville, the bride's sister, and the Misses Agnes, May and Kathleen Dwyer of Fall River.

After an extended honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer will reside in their recently purchased home, Powder House Boulevard, West Somerville.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"Katinka," the musical play by Otto Hauerbach and Rudolf Friml, begins the fourth week of its successful run at the Shubert Theatre next Monday night, September 18th. This newest Hammerstein production which has a year's New York run to its credit is attracting large audiences daily to the Shubert playhouse and from present indications, will have to remain in Boston a few more weeks in order to satisfy the demand of the theatregoing public. T. Roy Barnes, the clever young comedian, who deals out comedy every second that he is on the stage and never fails to get a laugh, and Ada Meade, as the wife of this American, head the cast. A special feature of "Katinka" is the singing chorus of sixty well-trained voices. In addition to the evening performances, two matinees of "Katinka" are given each week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

FIELD DAY

Arrangements have been completed for the annual field day of the Improved Order of Red Men. This promises to be one of the largest and best events ever held by this organization. It will take place in Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, on Saturday, September 16.

A fine card of field sports will be provided including six open amateur events, a five mile race for professionals and seven events for members of the Order.

Mayor Curley will start the professional five mile race in which will be seen some of the best in the world.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"A Pair of Queens," a three act farce which has met with extraordinary success in Chicago and later in New York, will begin an indefinite engagement at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, beginning Monday night, September 18th. H. H. Frazee produces this farce and it has a trinity of authors in the persons of Otto Hauerbach, A. Seymour Brown and Harry Lewis. Mr. Frazee has assembled an excellent cast of fun-makers to present this farce. The leading players will be Kathleen Clifford and Maude Eburne, the latter who made such a tremendous hit as the slavey in "A Pair of Sixes." The story is woven around two men who go to dine at a late hour in an all night restaurant. Both are respectable law-abiding citizens and when a row starts they hasten to get away the married man of the two carries with him a stranger's overcoat. This overcoat contains a sum of money for which the secret service agents and the police are searching. The three acts of the farce are full of uproarious moments, and its all good, clean fun. The Matinees at the Plymouth are on Thursday and Saturday.

TREMONT THEATRE—Again Boston theatregoers are proving the worth of their judgment in the matter of appraising a production that comes with the enthusiastic endorsement of New York and Chicago. Thus has Thomas Ince's marvelous photo spectacle been met with a succession of crowded houses at every performance at the Tremont Theatre. With one accord the critics of the press sounded their praises unstintedly, proclaiming the production of such magnitude as to baffle the conception to estimate. Not one whit behind-hand have been the public who have shown their belief in the spoken and printed praise. They have seen here a mighty drama, a drama that takes for its stage the world with unhampered limits, for the camera now knows no compassing confines. Great wide expanses of scenes whereon move multitudes of people in pageant or active array flash on the screen with vivid realism enacting before the vision a drama seething with thrills more poignant than ever spoken word conveyed. Romance in greater plenitude is here disclosed than has clothed many a lengthy story or play. And for the control of the emotions, there is a wider diversity of appeal than can be imagined.

Admitted to Mass. Bar 1903

Member of Mass. and Middlesex County Bar Association

"In affairs of the House, Representative Naphen proved himself a forceful, keen and logical debater and had the distinction of being one of the best orators and most forceful speakers in the Legislature. He was the most active opponent of the lobby and the most fearless member of either branch in pointing out the clauses and sections in various bills put there through the activities of lobbyists. This was no mean task, for it requires an astute mind at times to pick out the fine work of the gentlemen who constitute the third house. He was in fact one of the Progressive Republicans imbued with a spirit of good government and all times placed the interest of the taxpayers above that of special privilege."—Practical Politics.

ON THE BORDER

Interesting Letter from Capt. H. D. Cormerais of Co. C., 5th Regiment

Major Fred P. Barnes, West Newton, Mass.

My Dear Major:—

I am in receipt of the check for $500. sent by Mr. Melcher and have acknowledged to him. It was certainly some relief to me to receive a telegram stating that the money was on the way, as I had taken a chance and contracted for lumber. You have no idea of the condition of the company street on the night of the big storm a little over two weeks ago. The water was knee deep in the street and in the tents. A few of the men elected to sleep on their cots and the water was almost up to the canvas and I was obliged to crowd the majority into four or five tents and even made arrangements to take some of the men into my own tent had it been necessary. In the morning we got busy and dug a number of pits about six feet deep and drained the water off in these so that it would seep thru the sand and by night while the street was the same as a mud hole the men were able to be fairly comfortable. In the meantime I contracted for enough lumber to floor and frame all the tents hoping that I would receive the money some way and if it had not come from Newton, the men would have probably taken the money out of their pay. I sent a picture showing the flooded condition of the camp and it doesn't half show actual conditions. When we arrived at this camp there was a big hole in the middle of the street. This meant a great deal of work for the men to fill it in. After we got the tents boarded up I had several wagon loads of cinders brought into the street and fixed it so that we are dry in case of a storm. We have built our mess-hall of lumber furnished by the regiment and labor by men of the company. The kitchen is entirely screened, shelves erected and I had the floor concreted. The only kitchen in the brigade, as far as I know, that has a concrete floor. You know that adobe forms a crust on the surface which is almost like cement but when wet it sticks to everything it comes in contact with and there is always more or less water in the kitchen, so the men now work in a clean dry place.

Yesterday morning, General Sweetser comes down the line and informed Col. Stover and Graves that our street was the cleanest and best street in the brigade. This was very pleasing to both myself and the men, as everyone is working hard to be as near perfect as possible. There is none of the litter kicking around that you used to see at militia camps but everything is kept picked up and looking neat.

In our mess-halls there are fourteen tables, enough to accommodate 120 men. They are covered with clean white oil cloth. Men are chosen to serve the squads. So you see the money has been well spent. There seems to be no dissatisfaction over conditions. Of course the men are more or less anxious to go home but I don't think there are any other cases of complaints.

I understand that their is something being done in the line of taking care of dependents. All congressional action on discharges pending under the dependents clause were cancelled.

Should congress appropriate enough money to take care of the families as they should, I hope that any surplus in the fund will be held in case any more money is needed for the troops down here, of course, I would leave this to your best judgment.

Lieutenant Everson is detailed with the 23rd. regulars and of course, making good. He is trying for a regular army position and I am in hopes he will get it as he will make a valuable army officer. We have been thru our field and equipment inspection and I was told we were by no means the poorest in the regiment. Of course the officers would not give me any satisfaction of knowing just how good we were until the report comes in. This month starts us in the battalion field work. We have completed our company work. Next month we have regimental and maneuver.

There is no information as to when we are coming home, although there are all kinds of rumors flying around, and I presently look for no general exodus before the first of November.

Mrs. C. is on her way down here, arriving in El Paso, next week, Tuesday. Quite a number of officers' wives are with us and more are coming. The conduct of the men still remains excellent. Only one man having faced the summary court, and he is from Watertown. I hope that this will be the only case as I would like to go home with the best record for conduct in the regiment. The officers of our battalion and the sergeants of Co. C. are well taking Spanish so that we are liable to go home and surprise you. Thanking you for all that you and the committee are doing for us, and I trust it will not be long before I shall be with you again, I am,

Sincerely yours,
Henry D. Cormerais

James E. MacPherson
Of Framingham For SENATOR

From First Middlesex District

WHAT THE NEWTON PAPERS SAY ABOUT HIM

"Newton will appreciate Mr. MacPherson's services in this connection (defeating redistricting plan linking Newton and Brighton in Senatorial district) as well as in other matters."—Newton Graphic.
"With an aggressiveness characteristic of his work in the legislature he is making rapid advances in his candidacy for the Senate. One strong factor in his success in Newton is the appreciation so generally felt here for his efforts in defeating the plan to link Newton and Brighton in a senatorial district. With the Republican leaders of Ashland, Hopkinton, Holliston and Sherborn also out for Mr. MacPherson, who last year polled a record vote in his own town, 'Newton will well repay him for the fine support he was largely instrumental in giving Senator Ellis in Framingham.'"—Newton Times.

WHAT THEY SAY TO HIM

PRESIDENT MASSACHUSETTS SENATE

"Your faithfulness and your energy and activity in all matters affecting your district, give an assurance of the same fidelity and tireless work for a Senatorial district."

HENRY G. WELLS.

SPEAKER MASSACHUSETTS HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

"We shall miss you in the House where you made a fine record, especially in your work on the important Judiciary Committee. However, it is natural that you should desire promotion after faithful service, and I wish you all success."

CHANNING H. COX.

NEWTON AND WESTON REPRESENTATIVES

"Dear Mr. MacPherson:—

We are glad to know that you are a candidate for the Senate to succeed Mr. Ellis in the First Middlesex District.

As your colleagues in the House of Representatives have had opportunity to judge of your integrity, ability, and energy, and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in you and our sincere belief that you will be a fitting successor of Mr. Ellis in our district.

Sincerely yours,

J. WESTON ALLEN,
THOMAS WESTON, JR., BENJAMIN LORING YOUNG."

(Representative Henry W. Jarvis of Newton has also expressed himself as favorable to the candidacy of Mr. MacPherson for Senator.)

TAKE AN ACTIVE PART IN HIS NOMINATION

BECAUSE—

1. He has the experience from service on the important Legal Affairs, Bills in Third Reading, and Judiciary committees to care for this Senatorial district in a most efficient manner.
2. He is in touch with the Legislative problems of today from his service of the past two years.
3. He has a wide acquaintance and popularity with the present legislators which peculiarly equips him for achievement.
4. He has consecrated himself to his duties so faithfully, energetically and effectively as to call forth the public commendation of the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House, and of the press and public men generally.
5. He has the confidence of all his colleagues from Newton.
6. He has been in the forefront in the enactment of moral legislation.
7. He has obligated the people of this district to him by his attention to our interests and his good service merits the endorsement which it is our habit to give good legislators.
8. His nomination will help to unite all factions and solidify the Republican party.
9. He is entitled to the nomination for geographical reasons; Framingham, with a strong Republican vote, has had but one Senator in twenty years.
10. He is a self-made man. He gained his education at Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School upon his own resources and efforts.

TAKE AN ACTIVE PART IN HIS NOMINATION

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC

Published Every Friday at 8 Centre Place - Newton, Mass.
Entered at the Post-office at Boston,
Mass., as second-class matter.

The editor of the Graphic believes most heartily in the principle that every public official who is worthy and well qualified, ought to be retained in office, and in past years has strongly advocated the election and re-election of such gentlemen as Senator George H. Ellis, and Representatives Henry E. Bothfield and Thomas W. White. This year the Graphic urges every Republican in this city to renominate Representatives J. Weston Allen and Thomas Weston, Jr., as their services to the state and city have been of the highest character. Mr. Allen has drafted and secured the passage of some of the most important legislation of the session and Mr. Weston, as an influential member of the Metropolitan Affairs committee has done splendid work for the city.

The editor, himself, is a candidate opposed to the renomination of Representative Jarvis. That Mr. Jarvis' record the past session has been far from satisfactory is indicated by the fact that Newton men best acquainted with conditions on Beacon Hill, are not found among his supporters. Is it not a significant fact that Mr. Jarvis, representative from Newton and for Newton, has to go outside this city for his legislative endorsements. Just consider for a moment what this must indicate.

Mr. Jarvis is the first Newton representative to help weaken the civil service laws of the state, the first Newton man to vote for a "professional" labor bill and the first Newton man to vote to let down the bars of our defenses to the public health. On many matters, where he eventually voted right, his vacillating and uncertain action previous to the actual vote, lessened his influence and destroyed the prestige which Newton has hitherto enjoyed of being represented by able and independent men.

For these reasons, the editor appeals to the Republicans of this city to support his candidacy.

The editor of the GRAPHIC tenders a sincere apology to the Mass. Anti-Saloon League for failing to give the League the credit for drafting the liquor transportation bill which was passed Mr. Davis only calls attention to an article in the GRAPHIC on June 9th, but for fear that Mr. Davis might look over his clippings again, the editor desires that this apology shall cover a similar article, dated March 24th, where the same mistake was inadvertently made. The apology would have been made at that time had our attention been called to it earlier. It is needless to say that these mistakes were mere inadvertence, and it might also be said that in view of all the circumstances, the enactment of this much-desired legislation carried glory enough for everyone interested.

Mr. Davis, however, by his inexcusable insinuations regarding Mr. Bishop, hurts the Anti-Saloon League far more than he does Mr. Bishop. Every friend of temperance sympathizes with the objects for which the League was organized, but the temperance cause will never be helped if League officials allow themselves to be used for political purposes by unscrupulous persons, and certainly the temperance cause will gain nothing by abusing men like Mr. Bishop, whose life and character are so well and favorably known in this city.

May the best men win next Tuesday.

The GRAPHIC has no hesitation in advising all its readers to vote to nominate Mr. Frederick M. Esty of Framingham for the office of Register of Probate. By every principle of true civil service, Mr. Esty who has been the Assistant Register for many years should be elected to the office, which he now holds by gubernatorial appointment.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Considerable interest is being taken in the nomination next Tuesday for County Commissioner for Middlesex County, and it is universally conceded that County Commissioner Erson B. Barlow of Lowell will have no difficulty in winning a re-nomination for that office. Mr. Barlow was nominated three years ago at practically the first direct primary ever held for a County office, and his popularity was manifested by the fact that he was an easy winner in a field of five or six worthy candidates. Mr. Barlow was elected that fall receiving about 36,000 votes, his Democratic opponent having about 26,000. Mr. Barlow had a legislative record before his advent in county politics, having been elected to the House of Representatives from Lowell during 1909, '10 and '11, and representing that city in the Senate in 1912, receiving the largest vote ever given a Republican candidate in that senatorial district. In the Senate his career as County Commissioner was predicted by his selection as chairman of the Committee on Counties.

Mr. Barlow is engaged in the insurance business with the well known firm of Thos. C. Lee Insurance Co. of Lowell. He is 33 years of age and is one of the youngest County Commissioners in the state, if not in the country.

Senator Nathan A. Tufts, republican candidate for District Attorney of Middlesex County, announced today that he had completed a canvass of the district. In Mr. Tufts' campaign for this office he has been fortunate in having behind him the solid vote of his senatorial district. However, the brightest indication of his success is the manner in which he has been received in other parts of the district. The Everett Free Press says, "Nathan A. Tufts represents all that the office calls for. He has the ingredients to make a splendid official, thoroughly honest and efficient." The Somerville Enterprise, says, "He has every qualification for the position, ability in the practice of the law, a splendid knowledge of the statutes gained through his legislative experience, and best of all an open, fair mind which makes him an ideal candidate." "Every honor which he has received has been at the hands of the people," The West Medford Review.

In the light of these remarks, the Tufts Campaign Committee feel that they are justified in predicting a victory at the polls next Tuesday by an easy majority.

Mr. Tufts says, "Too often the office of District Attorney has been regarded as an office for private uses rather than as an office for public purposes. If nominated next Tuesday, and elected in November, I guarantee that the office will not be used in an attempt to build up a personal reputation for myself or in giving experience to my assistants in the trial of cases before judge and jury, but rather for the good of the people of the County whose representative I shall be."

POLICE NOTES

The tie for the Massachusetts State Police baseball championship was played off by the Boston Police and Newton Police clubs at Fenway Park yesterday morning, and the Boston team was victorious, 10 to 6. The game was a much better one than the score indicates.

SENATOR ELLIS' LETTER

September 20th, 1916.

To the Editor of the "Newton Graphic."

My dear Sir:

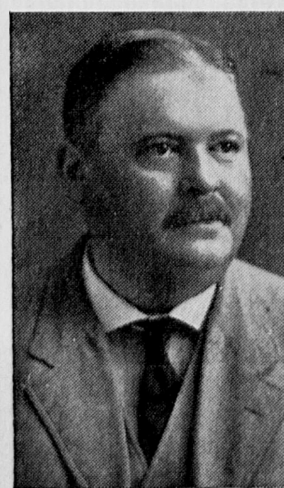

I have read with great surprise and a large measure of indignation the letter which appeared in one of the Newton papers last week signed by Mr. Davis of the Anti-Saloon League. This letter so entirely mis-states the situation, as I remember it, that I sincerely hope you will print the letter and the facts in the case, as you can easily obtain them, in this week's "Graphic."

If my memory serves this will clear Mr. Brimblecom and our other respected fellow-citizen and solicitor, Mr. Bishop, from most, if not all, of the charges therein made and will convict the writer of intentional or inexcusable misrepresentation. My indignation is especially aroused by the publication of this letter, on the eve of the primary election, intended to influence the nominations for representative to the next General Court from the City of Newton. It is apparent that its publication was secured by someone interested in these nominations and as the only candidates as to which there is some doubt of nomination are Mr. Brimblecom and Mr. Jarvis, it is as evident that this publication must have been secured by Mr. Jarvis and I regret to say that it is in line with some of the methods said to have been pursued last year by either him, or some of his injudicious friends. If this is true I do not believe that the honest and fair-minded Republican voters in Newton whatever may be their friendly feeling for either candidate can endorse any such action, notwithstanding the many perfunctory endorsements of Mr. Jarvis' record in the last legislature, a copy of which I have received.

Hon. Henry E. Bothfield than whom no one has served with greater honor and effectiveness in the Massachusetts Legislature, but who is at present out of the State, joins me and authorizes me to say that he endorses this statement.

GEORGE H. ELLIS.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER NOMINATE CHARLES H. MCINTIRE OF LOWELL

MIDDLESEX DISTRICT ATTORNEY-SHIP.

To the Editor of The Graphic. Newton, Sept. 19, 1916.

The Republican voters of Middlesex County have a rare opportunity this year to nominate a candidate for District Attorney who by training and experience meets the requirements of this very important office. Mr. Nelson P. Brown of Everett, as City Solicitor of that city from 1908 to 1912, as Assistant District Attorney for Middlesex from 1912 to 1913, and now as First Assistant Attorney General of the Commonwealth, has demonstrated his qualities in a most exceptional degree for the office of District Attorney.

There is no position in the modern community more powerful, and no power the abuse or misuse of which can do more harm than that of District Attorney. The work of the office as a whole, under present day conditions, requires a man with the best possible legal equipment to start with, and with ability to develop with the demands of the position. The effectiveness of the criminal law depends in a very considerable measure upon the efficiency of the District Attorney. The position will rise very little above the level of the man who occupies it. Not only must the District Attorney be a lawyer of first rate ability, but also what is even more important he must possess judicial qualities in the highest degree. A very large proportion of the work of the office requires the application of these qualities. Every case or possible case passes under his judgment, but only part of the cases, and such part as he may determine, pass to the judge and the jury.

It is particularly necessary that the District Attorney should be free from political influence, and also free from such political affiliations and obligations as may in any way affect his conduct of the office. In other words the office of District Attorney is in no sense a "political job." I can think of no man at the Middlesex Bar who is better fitted by character, experience and training for the position than Mr. Brown. The best judges of his fitness for this position are undoubtedly the lawyers of the county who are acquainted with him, and familiar with the work which he has been doing. The tremendous endorsement which he has received from the bar ought to satisfy the public that he is the right man for the place.

74 ELMWOOD STREET, NEWTON

THE LATE MR. THATCHER

In the passing away of Franklin Nye Thatcher last Friday afternoon on his 81st birthday at his residence at 971 Beacon street, Newton Centre, the community lost a worthy and valued citizen. His last illness, of some four years' duration, interrupted an active business career. For fifty years he had been a commission merchant in Boston, and for forty of those years he was a partner in the firm of Alfred B. Hall and Co., at 144 State street, and upon the senior member's retirement from the firm he continued its operation, until sickness compelled him to relinquish his post, under his own name.

Mr. Thatcher belonged to one of the old Boston families. Born in 1835 in Mount Vernon street, he was the son of Peter Thatcher, a Boston merchant, who was a direct descendant from Rev. Thomas Thatcher, first pastor of the Old South Church and nephew of Rev. Anthony Thatcher, who was rescued from the historic shipwreck in 1835, which occurred as he and a fellow clergyman and their respective families were attempting to round Cape Ann, and which later gave his family name to Thatcher Island. In 1865 Mr. Thatcher was united in marriage to Eunice H. Cheney, daughter of Jonathan Cheney of Boston, and she, with an only daughter, Mrs. Harry P. Dewey, wife of the pastor of Plymouth Church, Minneapolis, Minn., survives him.

He was a man who drew others to himself by the personal characteristics which are universally admired and prized. He was eighty-one in years, but there was no touch of age upon his spirit. Children and youth rejoiced in his companionship. He believed in the goodness of human nature. He made charitable judgment of the weaknesses of his fellow men, and sought for and so elicited their virtues. He had no room for jealousy or envy. He could not harbor resentment. In abounding unselfishness of heart he eagerly welcomed every opportunity to say an appreciative, helpful word and to do a deed of thoughtful kindness. His chiefest satisfaction was in the thought that he was adding to another's pleasure or profit and contributing to the sum of human good.

Unassuming, cherishing honor and truth, hopeful, courageous, gracious in outer bearing, the consummate gentleman, a sincere lover of his fellow men, devoted to his home, diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, his life was a rare blending of gentleness and sweetness with strength, and a contagion of beneficent influence. The earnest and unreserved tributes which were paid to him at the funeral service last Sunday afternoon by Dr. Edward M. Noyes of Newton Centre, and Dr. H. P. Dewey of Minneapolis, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, expressed the regard and affection felt by all who have been associated with him.

THE SENATORIAL CONTEST

All indications point to the overwhelming nomination for the State Senate of Rep. James E. MacPherson of Framingham, who is opposed by Ex-Rep. William Napheon of Natick. When Senator Ellis announced his retirement in June there were five aspirants talked of, but the race finally narrowed down to the present contestants.

MacPherson's vote in Framingham last year broke all records there and he also seems to have the pretty solid support of Republicans in Weston, Ashland, Hopkinton, Holliston and Sherborn. His experience from service on very important committees, his knowledge of the present legislative problems, and his acquaintance with the present legislators, finally equips him for effective work for this district; his work the past two years has the commendation of the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House, and of his colleagues from Newton; his candidacy will help solidify the party, for he has had the support of Republicans and Progressives alike. These and other reasons Newton will do well to insure Mr. MacPherson's nomination. Newton Times.

SHUBERT THEATRE—Everybody prophesied that "Katinka," the latest musical comedy, offered by Arthur Hammerstein, written by the author and composer of "High Jinks" and "The Firefly," would be even more popular than its predecessors. Time has proved that the prophets were not over-enthusiastic, but rather lukewarm in their praise, for the new musical offering of Otto Hauerbach, and Rudolf Friml, responsible for "High Jinks" and "The Firefly," not only lived up to the reputation of the former two but greatly eclipsed them, both in drawing power and creation of enthusiasm in their audiences. The fifth and last week of the engagement at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, will begin next Monday, Sept. 25th, for which seats are now on sale.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"A Pair of Queens," a new three-act farce, which has gained success in other cities, produced at the Plymouth Theatre (Boston) by H. H. Frazee, will start on its second successful week Monday, Sept. 25th. Otto Hauerbach, A. Seymour Brown and Harry Lewis are the authors of this new stage offering. Kathleen Clifford and Maude Eburne head an excellent cast of farceurs. The other players are Scott McGinn, Hugh Cameron, Elsie Scott, Regina Conelli, Harry Stubbs, Charles Butler and Charles H. Goodrich. Maude Eburne is at her best in eccentric comedy parts, and in this new farce she plays the role of a housekeeper who tries to run a household on the efficiency plan. Miss Clifford, who is best known to vaudeville and musical comedy patrons, acts a straight part in this farce, that of a female secret service agent. The two other parts that have helped greatly to make the farce a success in other cities are those of detectives, played by Hugh Cameron and Frank McGinn.

CONTEMPTIBLE CHARGES

Unwarranted and Malicious Attack on City Solicitor Bishop

MASSACHUSETTS ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Boston, September 11, 1916.

To the Editor,
 The Newton "Graphic,"
 Newton, Mass.

Dear Sir:—
 Today while looking over some newspaper clippings bearing on the Liquor Transportation Bill preparatory to filing the same, I came across one from the "Newton Graphic," of June 9, 1916. The article I refer to was headed "Under the Gilded Dome," and was signed by J. C. Brimblecom. I quote from this article as follows:

"The Legislature has also passed the bill introduced by vote of the Aldermen of Newton and drafted by City Solicitor Bishop to prohibit the transportation of liquors into no-license communities except by licensed expressmen. This is now in effect although it will probably be several weeks before its practical operation can be noted."

This statement is absolutely false and misleading and in view of the deep interest evinced by Newton citizens in the Transportation Bill, they certainly will be glad to know the truth regarding this measure.

The bill enacted was not the one drafted by City Solicitor Bishop but rather the measure introduced by the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League in response to a wide-spread demand on the part of public spirited citizens throughout the length and breadth of the Commonwealth. The successful passage of this bill was the culmination of a three years' fight on the part of the temperance interests.

Soon after the Legislature convened and before it had been introduced, I was handed a copy of the Bishop Bill and was asked my opinion of it. It was clearly defective in that it only dealt with spirituous liquors, the words "or intoxicating" which are used repeatedly in our Massachusetts statutes being omitted. The practical effect of this bill would have been to prohibit the transportation of whiskey, brandy, etc., into no-license communities such as Newton,

(SEE SENATOR ELLIS' LETTER ON PAGE 2.)

MR. BISHOP'S REPLY

Boston, September 14, 1916.

John C. Brimblecom, Esq., Editor, Newton Graphic,
 Newton, Mass.

Dear Sir:—
 I thank you for showing me the letter written to you under date of September 11th by Arthur J. Davis, Superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League. I also appreciate your courtesy in asking me to make a statement in reference to that portion of the letter which relates to my connection with the bill introduced on the petition of the Mayor of the City of Newton.

The statements made by Mr. Davis in reference to the bill and my action fall so far short of a true statement of the facts that I am forced to the conclusion that Mr. Davis has deliberately, and for motives which do not appear on the surface, made statements which he either knows to be false, or concerning which he has made no effort to investigate the truth.

The facts are as follows:
 On December 6, 1915, the Board of Aldermen, on motion of Alderman Jarvis, passed an order directing the Mayor and City Solicitor to petition for legislation to prohibit the transportation of intoxicating liquors into no-license municipalities. On Friday, December 17th, I conferred with H. Huestis Newton, Esquire, legislative counsel for the Anti-Saloon League with reference to the form of the bill. At Mr. Newton's suggestion I afterwards made drafts of several bills. On December 23rd, I sent drafts of two proposed bills to Mr. Newton and to Henry W. Jarvis. It was understood that these were preliminary drafts and both Mr. Newton and Mr. Jarvis were requested to examine the drafts and make suggestions and criticisms.

The draft which I had lettered "A" read as follows:
 "Section 1. No person, firm or corporation to whom licenses for the sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquors are granted shall transport or deliver into or in a city or town in which licenses of the first five classes for the sale of intoxicating liquors are not granted. But the provisions of this section shall not apply to the transportation of spirituous liquor through a city or town in which licenses of the first five classes for the sale of such liquors are not granted, to a place beyond."

Section 2. Whoever violates the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars for each offense, and upon a second conviction his license shall become null and void."

You will note that the effect of the omission of the word "intoxicating" in the second sentence of Draft A is entirely different from the construction placed upon it by Mr. Davis.

Draft B was as follows:
 "Section 1. No person, firm or corporation to whom licenses for the sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquors are granted shall, with the intent to deliver such liquors in a city or town in which licenses of the first five classes for the sale of such liquors are not granted, transport such liquors into or in but beer and ale although intoxicating are not spirituous liquors and would have come in without restraint.

 Note—See copy of Bishop bill below.)

Was this omission intentional or was it due to ignorance? Had the bill been drafted by a novice one might have concluded that the omission was accidental but in view of Mr. Bishop's experience as City Solicitor and his knowledge of the liquor laws gained perhaps in connection with his endeavors to secure licenses for some of his clients, are we not justified in feeling that this omission was not entirely attributable to ignorance? Which ever horn of the dilemma Mr. Bishop chooses, he is left in an unenviable position.

Fortunately the bill that was passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor McCall was well thought out and carefully drafted and not one that "the brewers big horses" or auto trucks can easily be driven through.

But why does Mr. Brimblecom misrepresent the facts of the case. Does he not know that the bill finally introduced by Mr. Bishop or his conferees was given "leave to withdraw"? Was the article written in ignorance or was it willful misrepresentation?

If Mr. Brimblecom was so greatly interested in the Liquor Transportation Bill surely he followed it step by step through its legislative course and must have known all the facts relating to it. Why does he go out of his way to give credit to one to whom no credit is due? What was Mr. Brimblecom's motive?

The citizens of Newton are entitled to know the truth regarding the whole matter. With the purpose of bringing out the facts of the case this open letter is being sent to the Newton "Times," the Newton "Circuit" and the Newton "Journal," with a request that the same be published in these papers.

Very truly yours,

ARTHUR J. DAVIS,
 Superintendent Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League.

such city or town. The fact that such liquor is addressed or consigned to a person or place within such city or town or that it bears no address shall be prima facie evidence of intent to deliver within such city or town.

As above stated, these drafts were sent to Messrs. Newton and Jarvis on December 23rd. At that time I had not seen any drafts of the Anti-Saloon bills. Mr. Jarvis informed me that he had taken the drafts up with the Anti-Saloon League and on December 30 he wrote me returning my drafts together with the draft of an Anti-Saloon League bill which was very different from the bill finally introduced on petition of Mr. Jarvis. Accompanying Mr. Jarvis' letter was a letter from J. Arthur Davis which, in my opinion, shows that he had at that time seen my drafts, and that he thought, quoting from his letter, "one or two minor changes may be desirable." After further consultation with Mr. Newton, and at his suggestion, I prepared a bill which was more elaborate and rather different from the bill which was to be introduced by the Anti-Saloon League. This bill was sent to Representative Jarvis on January 8th and filed by him on January 10th. The bill is printed as House Bill No. 472. It was on January 11th referred to the Committee on Mercantile Affairs. The Anti-Saloon League bill was introduced on petition of Arthur J. Davis and was numbered House Bill 565. Both bills were heard by the Committee on Mercantile Affairs on March 2nd, and both bills were given leave to withdraw by that Committee on March 17th. I was in consultation with Mr. Newton and representatives Jarvis and Monk of Watertown in reference to the course to be pursued, and on March 22nd House Bill 565 was substituted in the House for the report of the Committee. The bill was afterwards amended and as chapter 168 of the General Laws was approved by the Governor on May 2nd.

One other statement and I will not bother you further. Mr. Davis infers that I have been counsel for the liquor interests. As this statement has been made before, I take this opportunity to say that never in nineteen years' practice have I, so far as I can remember, appeared or acted as counsel for or against a person engaged in the manufacture, sale or transportation of liquor in a case or matter involving any liquor question. I have one client, Fiorangelo Gasbarri, who has been engaged in the general express business and as such has transported liquor into Newton. While I have advised him as to the law on that subject, I have declined to act for him in any matter involving transportation of liquor. I did at one time when he was an applicant for a license to transport liquor, write two letters, one to ex-alderman Blakemore and one to ex-alderman, now Representative, Jarvis. These letters speak for themselves.

EBB-Y
 Yours truly,
 E. B. BISHOP.

THE BISHOP BILL

House—No. 472
 Filed June 11

Section 1. No person, firm or corporation to whom licenses for the sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquors are granted shall transport such liquors into or deliver such liquors in a city or town in which licenses of the first five classes for the sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquors are not granted. But the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prohibit and shall not apply to the transportation of spirituous or intoxicating liquors through a city or town in which licenses of the first five classes for the sale of such liquors are granted, provided that all vessels or packages containing such liquors are plainly and legibly marked in a conspicuous place on the outside with the name and address, by street and number, if there be such, of the seller or consignor and of the purchaser or consignee. The fact that a vessel or package containing such liquor is addressed or consigned to a person or place within a city or town which does not grant licenses of the first five classes for the sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquor, or that such vessel or package does not bear the name and address by street and number, if there be such, of both the seller or consignor and the purchaser or consignee, shall be prima facie evidence of intent to deliver within a city or town in which licenses of the first five classes for the sale of spirituous or intoxicating liquors are not granted.

Section 2. Whoever violates the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars for each offense, and upon conviction his license shall become null and void.

WILBUR THEATRE—It is the same old story at the Wilbur Theatre, the same capacity houses, the same enthusiastic audiences, the same catch music and the same wholesome fun. And all because "Very Good Eddie" remains at that beautiful playhouse. And unless something unforeseen happens this charming musical comedy will be playing until snow flies at this same beautiful playhouse. And why should there be a change? It would be difficult to find another attraction that would give half the satisfaction to audiences that is given nightly by this Marbury-Comstock production. The chief members of the cast that made the piece such a go in New York, where it is still going, and in a third theatre, is seen in the production at the Wilbur. The seventh week of this delightful musical comedy begins Monday.

FOR THE NERVES

(From the Boston Herald.)

Whistling for cabs between 10 p. M. and 7 A. M. has been prohibited in London, and not only on account of the hospitals and nursing-homes for wounded soldiers. Now that the Home Office has acted, London journals declare that the whistling was a petty social ill which a wise community would not have tolerated for a moment. Schopenhauer in an essay on noise inveighed bitterly against the cracking of whips in Frankfurt. He was spared the torment of taxi-cab whistles and walls and blasts and screeches of automobiles.

There was a time when Boston was a quiet city, not like the town of the sybarites whose hammer was heard, where no sound of a handi-craftsman broke the stillness, but a city reasonably peaceful. Today it is noisy, unnecessarily, hideously noisy. In the Back Bay there are roaring railway trains and the crash of freight cars shunted. The subway gives some relief from surface tumult, yet there are the huge street cars pounding their way over lightly constructed road beds. In the West end the once restful Charles street reminds one of a boiler factory. In the South end there is the elevated railway, in the North End there are the cries of hucksters. Everywhere is the tooting of the automobile horn. Citizens of Boston visiting New York above Washington square are struck by the comparative quietness. Only on the extreme west is there a reminder of railways.

In dreams the Bostonian sees cars from the South station drawn by electric locomotives through Back Bay. He no longer hears the terrible approach and thunderous passing of the surface cars. He is able to talk and listen as he walks on Boylston street. But he is soon noisily awakened, not by the sound of a musical instrument, as the young Montaigne at the command of his educative father.

It is not easy now to find absolute quiet in remote hillside villages or along rough seaside roads. The prying automobile sounds its warning, or its joy as an adventurer. When a wanderer at last is at rest, when his ear is not stabbed, his nerves rasped, the stillness is disconcerting, overpowering. He misses noise as the dream drinker his accustomed draughts. M. Adolphe Rette once dreamed that Mr. Noise was dead and there were invitations to the funeral. It was a pleasing fancy, wittily elaborated. They that read it laughed and went out to join in the din, to add to it.

"BABY TALK"

Little Kenrick has just passed his fourth birthday (or to be grammatically correct the anniversary of his fourth birthday).

His parents, from the beginning have endeavored to train him in the right use of language. No "baby-talk" has ever been permitted and all lapses from correct English, promptly corrected.

One day his grandmama making an unexpected call saw a new and very charming photograph of her small grandson—"Why, where did this come from? What boy is this?" questioned the visitor. "Me," laconically replied Kenrick. "It would sound better to say 'It is I, grandmama,' was the mild correction. The little fellow dutifully repeated his grandmama's words and rushed out to play.

A half hour later he came running up to her waving a large pasteboard and mindful of his lesson with a beaming smile said, "Here is another picture of I grandmama."

A NEW DEPARTMENT STORE IN NEWTON CENTRE

On November the twenty-third and twenty-fourth a department store will be opened in the Bray Halls of this village.

Orders may be placed now for jellies, jams,—a fine black currant jam being a special and favorite conserve—preserves and pickles, which will be sold in the appropriate department of the store.

Ladies intending to replenish their household linen at this season, or brides-to-be in need of such furnishings, should order at once.

All orders should be sent by mail to Mrs. H. H. Kendall, 876 Beacon street, Newton Centre.

As is usual in the best department stores, lunch and supper will be served in the cafe. Afternoon tea at the usual hour.

There will be a fine art exhibition with many novel features.

FRIEND OF CIVIL SERVICE

Boston, September 20th, 1916.

My dear Sir:—

I have been asked by some friends interested in the Civil Service to make a public statement of the active hand taken by Mr. J. Weston Allen in the matter of the Civil Service, which was before the Committee on Public Service in the Legislature of 1916. Mr. Allen was House-Chairman of this Committee, of which I was Senate-Chairman.

As is well known a Bill was drafted which had been enacted would have set the view of the Governor and of those interested in Civil Service to an extent never before attempted. This Bill as finally passed by both branches of the Legislature was so seriously amended that it accomplished but little, but this was no fault of the Bill, or of the members of the Committee who were interested in it, and it was Mr. Allen who in frequent consultation with the Governor drafted the Bill.

I hope that this or some similar Bill will meet with better success in our Legislature in the near future and Mr. Allen can very materially aid in its passage.

Yours very truly,
GEO. H. ELLIS.

WOMEN'S CLUB FAIR

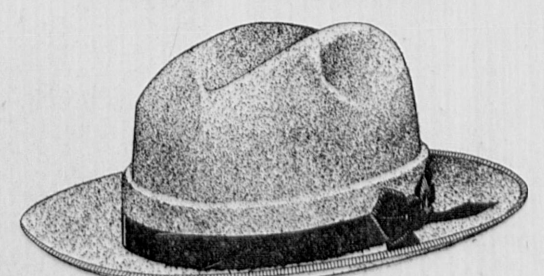

The plans for the Fair to be held by the Building Fund Committee of the Newton Centre Woman's Club the first week in October are maturing fast. On account of the general prevalence of Infantile Paralysis, it has seemed best to postpone until the winter the play to be given by the children. But even then there will be entertainment enough for all.

Mrs. John F. Capron, who has charge of the Dance to be given in Bray Hall on the evening of October 4th, promises one of the big events, not only of the Fair but of the season. The patronesses are: Mrs. Frank E. Anderson, Mrs. Henry H. Kendall, Mrs. Frank H. Stewart, Mrs. William E. Shadd, Mrs. S. Hardy Mitchell, all of whom have served the Club as President.

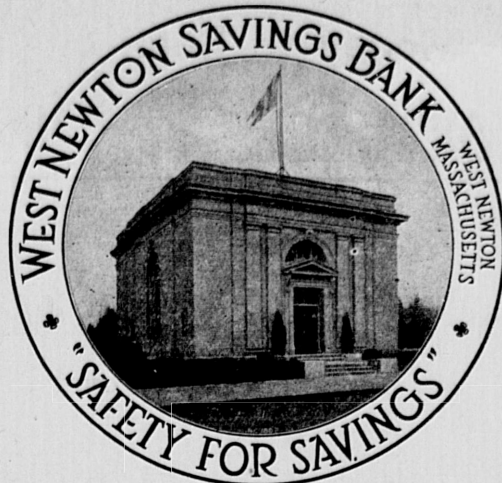

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Ernest Alley, Dr. E. A. Andrews, Mrs. Frank E. Anderson, Mrs. John F. Capron, Mrs. George Holmes, Mrs. Albert McAuslan, Mrs. S. Hardy Mitchell, Mrs. Frank Nathan, Mrs. William M. Rice, Mrs. Frank H. Stewart, Mrs. Frederick M. Stuart, Miss Margaret Spalding.

Paint can't be Told by Looks

Paint of the sham variety was never known to produce permanently satisfactory work.

It may pass muster for a while, but looks alone cannot stand up against persistent, ravaging attacks of rain and shine. Looks must be backed up by weather-resistance as it is in paint made from and pure linseed oil. Protects against decay and gives good looks at minimum cost. Just the thing, too, for inside walls and woodwork.

Dutch Boy Red Seal White Lead

We are headquarters for high-class painting necessities. Write, phone or call about paint for your property.

JAMIESON-JONES

Notable among the society events of the week was the wedding of Miss Marion Manson Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Herbert Jones, and Mr. Philip Starr Jamieson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Jamieson of Newton.

The wedding took place Thursday evening at the residence of the bride's parents on Waverley Avenue Newton and the ceremony was performed at quarter past eight by Rev. Laurens MacLure, D.D., rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Newton.

The bridal party stood in a floral bower arranged with palms, ferns and purple asters in the drawing-room, and which was lighted effectively with candles.

The staircase down which the bridal procession passed, was festooned with greenery twined with white satin ribbon, and Handley's Orchestra was in attendance and played Wagner's Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, and the Mendelssohn Wedding March as a recessional. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an exquisite wedding gown of ivory white embroidered satin with tulle veil, cap effect, fastened with a spray of orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was a magnificent full shower of lilies of the valley.

The bride was attended by Miss Priscilla Alden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Edwin Alden of Wellesley, as maid of honor; she wore a gown of apricot taffeta and tulle and carried a bouquet of flowers of the same shade as her gown.

The bridegroom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Joseph B. Jamieson, Jr., of Fitchburg, as groomsmen and the ushers included Mr. Webster Jones, brother of the bride, Mr. Roland March, Mr. Ernest Greenwood, and Mr. Sprenger of Newton.

A large and brilliant reception was held from half past eight until ten. Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson were assisted in receiving by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Herbert Jones and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jamieson.

Mrs. Jones wore a beautiful gown of lavender charmeuse trimmed with point lace and carried a spray of pink Killarney roses.

Mrs. Jamieson was handsomely gowned in pearl gray charmeuse trimmed with white lace.

A wedding supper was served by Martin of Boston. The dining room was attractively decorated in a combination scheme of white and pink. The table decorations were most elaborate. A large swan chased out of ice, was arranged as a centerpiece, and surrounded by pink Killarney roses, and lighted by pink shaded candles, and the effect was wondrously beautiful.

The orchestra played during the reception and the guests enjoyed dancing in the billiard room.

On their return from a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson will reside at 29 Bates road, Watertown, where they will be at home after November 15th.

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

Word was received this morning of the death yesterday afternoon at Washington, D. C., of Mr. George Hill, a well known former resident of Hunnewell terrace, Newton. Mr. Hill has been in poor health for some time and his death was not unexpected. He was a member of Immanuel Baptist Church since 1867, and a member and past commander of Charles Ward Post G. A. R. of this city. He is survived by a widow and two sons, Messrs. G. Sidney Hill and Richard Hill, all of Washington. Funeral services will probably be held at Immanuel Baptist Church tomorrow afternoon.

SHOOT HIS WIFE

Arthur E. Houde, also known as Hood, entered his father-in-law's house on Centre street, Newton Centre, about midnight Wednesday and shot his wife, in the left arm. He then left the house before the police were able to reach the scene. Mrs. Houde had separated from her husband some time before. Her condition is not considered serious. On Thursday morning Houde visited his father where he was at work in Newtonville and was promptly taken to the station house and locked up.

A GARDEN BRIDGE PARTY

The ladies of the Newton South Allies Relief Association have arranged a series of bridge parties to raise funds for the noble work to which they have been devoting their energies for the past year.

The first will be a Garden auction bridge party on Tuesday, Sept. 26th at 2:30 P. M., at the Braeside, Waban Hill road, Chestnut Hill.

The parent organization is providing surgical bandages and comforts for 4000 hospitals in our sister republic; the local branch has done their share in so helping the boys who have suffered in fighting for principles dear to Americans.

The ladies meet every Friday morning at Trinity Parish House.

ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual meeting of The Newton Highlands Sportsman's Club, Inc. Sept. 18th, Mr. L. E. Lowry was elected president and Dr. C. A. Thompson, vice-president. L. E. Lowry, L. F. Curtis, H. V. Bowen, Dr. C. A. Thompson, Dr. C. M. Haskell, F. I. Jordan, and J. Weston Allen, Esq., were elected Directors for one year. Mr. H. V. Bowen was unanimously re-elected Field Captain with a vote of thanks for his efficient work in this position during the past year.

The treasurer reported the Club's finances in a gratifying condition and the other reports showed many and varied activities of the Club. A commodious and convenient shelter was erected last Fall at the trapshooting grounds. The trap record of breaking grounds, 99 out of 100 birds at sixteen yards, unknown angles, is held by Mr. L. E. Lowry. The Club has held regular trapshooting events over its own traps throughout the year. Seven team matches with other clubs have been held. The Newton Highlands Club winning four out of seven of these events. It is a matter of gratification that two of the best trap shots of this section of the country, Mr. L. F. Curtis, and Mr. L. E. Lowry have been developed through this club. These men have won distinction at State and National events.

During the year the club has received from the Fish and Game Commission 3,000 white perch which were deposited in Crystal Lake, 30,000 trout fry which were planted in a brook "somewhere in Newton," and 20,000 large mouthed bass which were put into the Charles River. Six pheasants and eight mallard ducks have also been received and liberated.

The membership of the club at present consists of 42 stockholders.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—Joe Welch will appear at the Castle Square next week in Hal Reid's four-act comedy drama entitled "The Peddler." In this play Mr. Welch scored one of his biggest successes some years ago. The play this season has been revived and brought up-to-date by Maurice Jacobs, who has equipped the company with new scenery, costumes and electrical effects, and who has spared no expense in securing the very best talent obtainable to support the famous star in his role of Abraham Jacobson, "The Peddler." Joe Welch is not a caricaturist of the Hebrew; but he is a highly finished actor whom many have tried to imitate, and failed. He portrays, faithfully and naturally a certain type of Hebrew whose various traits and eccentricities have been known for decades past, the East Side Jew of New York.

BUSINESS SCHOOL

TO HAVE BIGGEST YEAR IN HISTORY

With the largest enrollment in its history, the Bryant & Stratton Commercial School of Boston began its year's work Tuesday, September 5. The success of this well known school is a striking testimony to the value of efficient methods in business education.

The Bryant & Stratton teaching plan is the individual system, based on the particular requirements of each pupil. Actual practice is combined with study. The different courses fit students not only for general business, but for secretarial and stenographic positions, civil service examinations, accounting, auditing and teaching of commercial branches in high schools.

The Bryant & Stratton School has day sessions only, from 9 to 2, with no classes on Saturdays or evenings. A tribute to the high standing of the school is the fact that all patronage comes unsolicited—no canvassing or other methods practiced by other business colleges being used to obtain pupils.

EDITORIAL

For President
CHARLES E. HUGHES

For United States Senator
HENRY CABOT LODGE

For Governor
SAMUEL W. McCALL

I am most grateful to the many friends, known and unknown, who honored me with their votes last Tuesday for the Republican nomination for representative from this city, and I deeply appreciate the splendid compliment paid me by my friends and neighbors of ward seven.

If this nomination is ratified at the State election, I shall endeavor to serve the entire city to the best of my ability.

J. C. Brimblecom.

The state primary on Tuesday proved to be more popular than the preliminary estimates and brought out a very good Republican vote. The results, with one exception, were generally forecasted. Senator Tufts sweeping the city for district attorney and Mr. MacPherson being an easy winner for state senator. The defeat of Representative Jarvis for renomi-nation was contrary to all precedent in this city and was accomplished by hard and effective work. The majority given Mr. Mansfield over Mr. Cole for the Democratic nomination for governor was also unexpected, as it was felt that this city would certainly favor General Cole.

It is a matter of great satisfaction to every citizen interested in good government to learn that Alderman Henry L. Harriman of Ward 7 is willing to accept a re-election to that office.
Mr. Harriman has done some exceedingly effective work the past two years and is one of the leaders in the present board of aldermen.

There is a strong popular prejudice against making any trade in exchange for Edmunds Park and it is doubtful, even if the Edmunds heirs were willing, that the matter would be allowed to culminate without action by the courts.

With the many questions to be voted upon at the state election, only six weeks away, the intelligent voter should make an early start in studying the questions and determining what action he shall take.

Congratulations to the members of the Second Church of West Newton on the completion of their beautiful house of worship. It should be a great inspiration for everything good.

Mr. Davis' statement that his recent open letter to the GRAPHIC was "suppressed" is neither justified by the facts nor by the results.

60TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Tompson of Newtonville observed a most unusual anniversary last Sunday afternoon and evening, when their many friends came to congratulate them on the sixtieth anniversary of the marriage. The reception was entirely informal. Mr.
Tompson presenting the guests to his wife, and they were both assisted by their daughters, the Misses Grace and Lizzie G. Tompson.

Another unusual feature of the anniversary is the fact that Mr. and Mrs.
Tompson have resided in their present home on Otis street for 57 years and that the family circle has never been broken by death or marriage.

The marriage of Mr. Tompson and Miss Margaret F. Weeks of Portsmouth, N. H., took place in that city, Sept. 24, 1859, and three years later they made their home in Newtonville.
Mr. Tompson is one of our best known citizens, and is prominent in the Masonic bodies of this city.

CITY MANAGER SUGGESTED

At Regular Meeting of Board of Aldermen Meeting on Monday Evening

An interesting incident of the meeting of the aldermen on Monday evening was the passage of an order for a select committee to consider the availability of securing legislation to allow the city to appoint a city manager.
The committee is to report before December first. Alderman Murphy believed that nothing should be done until the report of the city expert was received after October first but he made no objection to the order.

President Blanchard was in the chair and Aldermen Cobb, Harriman and Kendrick were absent.
No one appeared at hearings on taking land for sewer in Nottingham were favorably acted upon.

The following persons were drawn to serve as jurors from October 2nd—
James F. Sweeney, Ridge avenue,
Frank E. Kneeland, Bowen street,
Walter S. Cunningham, Beach street, and Lorenzo F. Muther, Elgin street.

The Board of Health sent in the petition of Dr. D. C. Greene and others for drainage of wet land off Boylston street, and other petitions were re-to horse, M. L. Flaherty for license for

PATCHETT-BOSWORTH

A very pretty home wedding took place Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Bosworth, 1595 Washington street, West Newton, when their daughter, Mae Frederika, was married to Mr. Clement Patchett, son of Mr. and Mrs.
James Patchett, formerly of Halifax, England.

The ceremony was performed at 4
P. M. by the Reverend Harry Beal, rector of the Church of the Messiah, Auburndale. The bride party stood in a bower of palms and ferns beautifully arranged in the parlor. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Sadie Bosworth, an aunt of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in a beautiful dress of white embroidered net, with net veil over a lace cap, and carried with orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was white bride's roses.

The bride was attended by Miss Annie Scott as maid of honor, who was gowned in white net, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The bridegroom was assisted by Mr.
Carl A. Bosworth, brother of the bride,
as best man.

After a wedding supper, a large reception was held in the evening from 7.30 to 9.30 at which Mr. and Mrs.
Patchett assisted by their parents, received a large number of their friends.

ture of the early Autumn affairs at the

CITY HALL

The Newton Board of Appeals held a meeting Monday afternoon at City Hall for the purpose of acting on the appeal taken by the builders of the new gymnasium at the Country Day School, Newton, which Public Buildings Commissioner Walter R. Forbush had taken exceptions to. Mr. Forbush ordered the builder to construct the walls of the building a little different from the plans and the Board of Appeals supported him in his demands.

BRAVES FIELD FIREWORKS

At Braves Field next Wednesday evening will be given the final and best in the series of fireworks displays that have been featured at "The Home of Big Things" this summer. It is unanimously agreed by the press, as well as by the thousands who have witnessed these wonderful pyrotechnic exhibitions this year, that never before have such pretentious displays of fireworks been given in Boston or elsewhere. In presenting these programs of fireworks the management has adopted the policy of showing set pieces very largely, these having made the greatest hit with the crowds. The program this week, as it is to be the last and the best of the season, will be radically different from those that have preceded it. One of the set pieces will be a reproduction of a rapid firing gun which will fire one hundred shots a minute making the same amount of noise as a real gun.
There will also be many novelties introduced which have not been shown at any of the exhibitions given earlier in the season; one of the most interesting of these will be a bicycle rider looping-the-loop. The piece "par excellence," however, will show a house on fire, the fire will be allowed to get a fairly good start when the alarm will be given thereupon a motor engine will cross the field and several lines of hose will be played on the fire until it is completely extinguished. The grand finale, alone costing upwards of $700 will result in an aerial display, the bombardment of noise and illumination of which will be heard and seen for miles around. The fireworks will start at 8.30 and will be prefaced by a concert given by Palladio's Military Band beginning at 7.30. The usual prices will prevail 25c for pavilion seats, 50c for grandstand seats and 75c for the reserved box seats.

HUGHES AND WILSON

Washington, D. C., Sept. 24—A comparison between the records of President Wilson and Governor Hughes is not to the credit of Mr. Wilson in the eyes of organized labor. It is immensely to the credit of Governor Hughes.

President Wilson has never shown solicitude for the laboring men's welfare—his efforts to settle the railroad embroglio was the first time the President manifested the slightest interest in labor's affairs, and that interest was not due to any love for labor but to the spur of public opinion which demanded there should be no strike.

The dispute had been brewing many months but the President waited until a little more than sixty days before the National election to summon the brotherhood chiefs and the railroad heads to Washington.

Perhaps there was a "psychological" reason for that, if not the reason of political advantage.

Labor unions are justified in looking askance at the President in view of his spoken and written utterances regarding labor.

In Mr. Wilson's "History of the American People" he says: "The Chinese were more to be desired as workmen, if not as citizens, than most of the coarse crew that came crowding in every year at the Eastern ports."

The "coarse crew" the President described as "crowding in" included the millions of foreign-born persons of every nationality who are now loyal citizens of the United States.

In the same book the President said:
"And now there came multitudes of men of the lowest class from the south of Italy, and men of meaner sort out of Hungary and Poland, men out of the ranks where there was neither skill nor energy nor any initiative of quick intelligence."

What do American citizens of German, Italian, Hungarian, Polish, or any European ancestry think of that?

On June 3, 1909, in an address to the graduating class of Princeton University, Dr. Wilson expressed his remarkable views on labor in the following words: "You know what the usual Fitzgerald of 9 Hals street. Funeral services were held this morning at 9 o'clock at the Church of Mary Immaculate of Lourdes and the interment was at St. Mary's Cemetery, Needham.

—The First Methodist Episcopal Church will observe Rally Sunday, Oct. 1 and also celebrate the 150th anniversary of Methodism. At 10.45 the pastor, Rev. J. W. Stephens, will preach "The Gospel of the Glad Hand" and selections will be rendered by the choir, at 12.10 the Rev. James Clement Sharp, of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Waban, will give a brief talk to the Sunday School and there will be a roll call of classes. At 6 P. M. the three societies of Christian Endeavor connected with this church will be addressed by Rev. Mr. Berry of Boston University School of Theology. The subject for the 7 o'clock service will be "Methodist Pioneers" and will consist of readings, recitations by children of the Sunday School

Governor Hughes has never written or spoken a single word inimical to labor. On the contrary he was the greatest friend of labor that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany.
Legislative records at Albany show that during his two terms as governor of New York he signed 56 labor laws.

In New York State, during 132 years, only 162 labor laws were passed. One-third of these were signed during Hughes' two terms as Governor.

With these records known it will be easy for organized labor to select its candidate in the November election.

PREFERENTIAL VOTING

At the State Election on November 7th, 1916, the voters of the City of Newton will vote upon the acceptance or rejection of Chapter 261, Special Laws, General Court of 1916, relative to Preferential Voting at Municipal Elections in Newton.

The question will appear upon the ballot in the following form: "Shall an act passed by the general court in 1916, to authorize preferential voting at municipal elections in the city of Newton, be accepted?" If a majority of the votes cast thereon are in the affirmative, this act shall take full effect for the next regular city election on December 12th, 1916, and no City
Primary will be held this year.

At the City Election this year there are to be elected seven Aldermen-at-large, one from each Ward, and two Members of the School Committee, one from Ward Two and one from Ward Six, all elected by the voters of the city at large, also seven Aldermen-by-wards, one from each ward elected by the voters of the ward. In order for the candidates for these offices to have their names printed on the city election ballot each must file a nomination paper, signed by at least fifty voters in the case of Aldermen-at-large and Member of School Committee, and by at least twenty-five voters in the case of Aldermen-by-ward.

No party or political designation or mark will be printed on the ballot and there shall not be appended to the name of any candidate any such party or political designation, mark or anything indicating his views or opinions.
The names of candidates will appear in alphabetical order, with residence, street and number. By means of columns at the right of the names of candidates, voters will be enabled to vote for three different candidates for each office to be filled, designating his first choice, his second choice and his third choice for the office.

Upon receipt of returns of the election from the different precincts, the City Clerks determines the successful candidates in the following manner:

If any one candidate has a majority of first choice votes for the office, he shall be declared elected. If no one has a majority, the first and second choice votes shall be added together and if this results in a majority for any one candidate, he shall be declared elected. If there is no majority, the first, second and other choice votes for each candidate shall be added together and the person who receives a plurality of this result shall be elected.

Are Your PICTURES Suffering?

How many years since an expert has examined them?

It is the rule for owners of pictures to neglect them until their condition is so bad that the expense of their restoration is many times as great as if they had received proper care.

We give especial attention to restoration, framing and re-gilding and the quality of our work is unsurpassed.

Our Carriage-Rohane Shop, headed by Mr. Hermann Dudley Murphy, unquestionably America's most original and artistic designer of frames, has been the leading influence in the development of taste in framing for the last dozen years.

THANKS HIS FRIENDS.

I desire to express to the citizens of Middlesex County, who so splendidly indorsed my service as County Commissioner, my sincere thanks and appreciation for their generous support at the primaries Tuesday.

I wish also to convey to the newspapers of the County that so fairly permitted in their columns an open and impartial review of my public service and insured that service, my sincere thanks and gratitude.

My every endeavor will be to continue by my public acts, to merit the approval and good will of the citizenship of Middlesex County.

EDMUNDS PARK

Sept. 25, 1916

Newton Graphic,
 Newton, Mass.
 Gentlemen:

Cannot you find space in an early publication for the enclosed article by Mr. Kellaway, which I discovered in my Advertiser Friday morning? If the citizens of Newton realized that Edmunds Park might be exchanged, I believe such a protest would arise as would immediately close further discussion. I know of no other tract possessing so much natural beauty and equally accessible to Newton, Newtonville and Newton Centre. Instead of losing this tract, it is highly desirable that we secure the strip of land lying between Edmunds Park and Cabot street. In these days, nation, states and cities are securing more land for reservation purposes. Besides this fact, we must bear in mind the effect that the exchanging or selling of this tract would have upon other citizens who might seriously consider similar gifts.

Very truly yours,
 CHARLES WOOD BOND.

THE UNITED STATES PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ASKS DO YOU

RECREATION CONGRESS

The Recreation Congress will be held this year at Grand Rapids, Mich., on October 2-6, and an elaborate and interesting program has been announced. All interested in this Congress are invited to communicate with the Playground Commission, City Hall, West Newton.

CHURCH CONSECRATED

Episcopal Parish at Waban Celebrates An Important Event

An interesting event last Sunday at the Church of the Good Shepherd of Waban was the consecration of the church edifice by Bishop Lawrence. There was a large attendance, the Bishop was received at the church entrance by the church wardens and vestrymen and was assisted in the service by the rector, Rev. James Clement Sharp and Rev. Albert Crabtree, diocesan chaplain of Massachusetts.

Edmund Winchester, the senior warden, read the instrument of donation, which was followed by the consecration of the church and the bishop's sermon.

Plans are now under consideration for the erection of a parish house adjoining the church property on Beacon street, work on which is expected to begin the present year. The accompanying cut gives an outline of what the parish has ultimately in mind.

The church was organized and built in 1895, as a Union Church with an Episcopal minister in charge. The first rector was Rev. William Hall Williams, now located at Austin, Tex., who remained at the head of the parish until 1904. The present rector was called the following year and since he has been in charge the church has been purchased from the Waban Church Corporation. It has been made an established Episcopal church, and the outstanding mortgage of $3000 has been wiped out.

Rev. Mr. Sharp was born in Newton and lived in Watertown up to the time he entered Harvard. He was graduated from Harvard in 1894 and from the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge in 1897. From 1897 to 1904 he was assistant rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Springfield.

The church organization includes, Edmund Winchester and Donald M. Hill, wardens; David A. Ambrose, Lewis H. Bacon, Archie C. Burnett, Lester B. Cardell, Everett W. Conant, Lucius B. Folsom, Herbert R. Lane, Nelson H. Marvin, George N. Roberts, and Herbert O. Stetson, vestrymen; David A. Ambrose, clerk, and Herbert O. Stetson, treasurer.

WOMAN'S CLUB FAIR

The first big good time of the season, at home, will be staged in Newton Centre next week—October 3d to 6th inclusive. With wide vision and unlimited energy the Building Fund Committee has undertaken to please old and young, and those between, in this "Seven Ages" Fair. Whether you wish a rattle for Baby or woolen socks for Grandfather, you can be accommodated. Likewise, there will be a variety of good things to eat, all the way from ice cream cones to real suppers, and whatever the service or article, prices will be reasonable. Incidentally one may purchase for gifts against the coming holiday season hand made things which few stores have to offer at any price.

The entertainment to be given by the children, under the direction of Mrs. Tucker, has been postponed until January.

Some question having been raised as to the strength of the stairs in the Bartholomew house, the Committee had them examined. They are pronounced absolutely safe but to allay any possible fears, they have been newly reinforced. And so the last preparation has been completed by the following committees:

Baby Table—Mrs. F. H. Williams, Mrs. S. S. Widger.
 Debutante Table—Mrs. C. B. Gordon.
 Housekeeping Table—Mrs. W. B. Neal, Mrs. F. A. Schirmer.
 Grandmother's Table—Mrs. W. H. Flanders, Mrs. W. H. Bundy.
 Children's Table—Mrs. E. A. Andrews.
 Bride and Groom's Table—Mrs. M. B. Jones.
 Mothers' Table—Mrs. G. A. Holmes.
 As candy, refreshments and dancing would be enjoyed by all ages, the following committees have been added:
 Candy—Mrs. H. A. Tinkham.
 Refreshments—Miss Elizabeth T. Bartlett.
 Dance—Mrs. J. F. Capron, Mrs. Wm. H. Rice.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD

Mr. Benjamin Franklin Barlow, for many years the village blacksmith at Newtonville, died last week Thursday at his home on Parsons street, West Newton, after an illness of many years. Mr. Barlow was born at Fulmer, Me., and was 73 years of age. He resided in this city for nearly forty years and was one of its most respected citizens.

He was a charter member of Newton Lodge, I. O. O. F., and a member of Grden City Encampment and deeply interested in all phases of Odd Fellowship. He was married three times and survived by a widow, three daughters, and one son, Mrs. Peter Wood of Manomet, Mass., Mrs. Otto Rehann of Chicago, Miss Lena Barlow of West Newton, and Mr. Fred Barlow of San Bernardino, Cal.

Funeral services were held at his late residence on Parsons street and there was a large attendance of friends and relatives, including Mrs. Ira M. Cobe of Northport, Me., a daughter of Mrs. Barlow. The services were in charge of Rev. Rufus H. Dix, pastor of the Universalist Church of Newtonville and the burial ritual of the Odd Fellows was under the direction of William Skelton, N. G. At the request of Mr. Barlow, three members of the quartet in which he was interested, a quarter of a century ago, were present and sang his favorite hymns, "cannot always trace the way," "Still with Thee" and "Gathered Home." They were Messrs. H. Woodberry, Wm. T. Rice and Wm. Rand. The place of Mr. H. C. Newe, the fourth member of the quartet, was taken by Mr. Dana Libbey. The burial was in the Newton Cemetery.

IS THERE NO REMEDY?

It was stated in a morning paper, by a man well known throughout the country, that we had 75,000 laws—some good, many useless, and some actively bad.

In the face of such a statement, it seems futile to ask for more legislation, and yet with a crying need for a law, a need pressing urgently upon the property owner all the time, is it not possible that the unnecessary laws, and evil laws can be overlooked long enough to make and enforce one, which shall at least allow a man to possess and enjoy, what he owns and is taxed for, namely the fruit, vegetables and flowers he is at pains to raise, and the right to say who shall invade his premises without regard to the ownership thereof.

Two things have occurred to the writer within twenty-four hours. First: A group of quite large boys were playing ball in a vacant lot behind the writer's home, despite constant prohibition, and notwithstanding the excellent playgrounds provided by the city, within easy walking distance.

The Monday's washing hung in the yard, but the ball frequently lodged among it, and the boys dashed after it, regardless of linen or anything else. Finally the owner's daughter remonstrated, at the same time reiterating what they already knew, that they had no right to play there.

Last evening there was a noise on the piazza, and investigation found the front door tied fast, and that the owner's clothes line had been cut and used for the purpose. A gentlemanly joke indeed! And what redress is there, even if we know very well who to suspect?

Today two little grandchildren, tiny tots of three were playing merrily behind the house, when two half-grown boys appeared, one of whom pushed the little ones to the ground and pelted them with pears, which they had come to steal, but didn't find ripe enough to be palatable. The small boy and girl were badly frightened and not much hurt, but of course the guilty boy escaped.

Both these things were reported to the police, and the "bad boy's" name given to them, but as the officer himself said, when he takes him to the judge he will dismiss him with a reprimand. If officers were allowed to carry a rawhide and use it, or parents were compelled to use corporal punishment or pay a fine if their hearts were too tender, these outrages would soon cease.

These are only two out of hundreds of cases. The principals of the grammar schools will confirm the opinion of the officer of the futility of the rulings of the juvenile court to change conditions.

We do not want the boys, alien or native, sent to jails, prisons, or even reform schools, except in incorrigible cases, but we, or rather the parents and lawmaker, are training them right in their homes and communities to become criminals, as surely as any prison can do so when lawlessness and theft meet with no punishment from any source.

The strict injunction, "thou shalt not steal," and the equally strict one, "thou shalt not covet," have not been eliminated even from the revised commandments, and why are there no laws to enforce them unless they mean money and valuables, taken from houses, stores or banks? Are not the apples on my trees as truly mine as the silver forks in my sideboard? If I shoot the man who tries to take the latter, the law will excuse me, but the boy who brings a flour sack and robs me of fruit I must pay larger prices for in the market, escapes unharmed, for if in my anger I should catch him and shake him I am liable to be haled to court and fined fifty dollars for—Heaven save the mark—assault and battery! Are we dummies or are we men and women? These things are absolutely unnecessary and we allow them, except perhaps relieving our feelings by a useless sputter to somebody not in the least to blame.

Law making time is approaching—will you do nothing, those who have the power, to remedy this constantly increasing evil?

A SUFFERER.

EVENING CLASSES AT NEWTON Y. M. C. A.

Beginning Monday evening, Oct. 9th, there will be educational classes conducted at the local Y. M. C. A. There is to be a course in Spanish and one in mechanical drafting. Other courses will be added from time to time as the need is felt.

The increasing American interest and trade in Porto Rico, Cuba, Panama and the Philippines, and our ever broadening relations with Central America and South America, make a conversational knowledge of the Spanish language a real business asset. Spanish is an easy language to learn and possesses a wide and interesting literature that adds another attraction to its study.

Every man employed as a mechanic, sheet metal worker, toolmaker, etc., should have a quick and familiar knowledge of the blue print—how to read it, how to make it. The Association is offering the opportunity to the young men of this community to become more familiar with these two subjects at a very nominal cost.

FACTORY AND SALESROOMS, BALCH, PRICE & CO., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

The well-known firm of Lamson & Hubbard Company, by its recent acquisition of Balch Price & Co., Brooklyn, becomes the leading furriers of the United States. Balch, Price & Co., one of the landmarks of the mercantile life of New York, has been established nearly a century. This amalgamation is incorporated under the Massachusetts laws.

The house of Lamson & Hubbard is a monument to the industry, integrity and business acumen of Jarvis Lamson and Orrin C. Hubbard, who are typical representatives of the best New England business men. Both Mr. Lamson and Mr. Hubbard are actively associated in the interests of the present merger.

The transfer of ownership was completed September first, though rumors about it had been current for several months. Fur experts state that by taking over the Balch, Price & Co.'s interests, the present Lamson & Hubbard Company becomes the largest manufacturing and retailing furriers in the United States. The already far-reaching facilities for obtaining pelts direct from the trappers will be practically doubled; therefore, because of the immense purchasing power, the firm will be in a position to acquire the choicest selection of raw skins, and by its ability to manufacture garments on such a large scale, every economy resulting from volume production can be taken advantage of, and the benefits will accrue to the customer.

Lamson & Hubbard have for years been New England's leading furriers as well as extensive hat manufacturers doing business throughout the United States. The concern conducts a large factory, besides having retail stores in this city, as well as at Newport, R. I., Magnolia, Mass., and Palm Beach, Florida, where they serve the first families of America and the most exclusive sets in the Summer and Winter Colonies.

The aim of the house has always been to provide only merchandise of absolute reliability and to leave no stone unturned to accomplish the complete satisfaction of every customer.

Such a policy maintained without deviation has built up a far-reaching prestige so that today Lamson & Hubbard is synonymous with fur and fair dealing. Similarly the founders of Balch, Price & Co. established their business upon this identical principle, which will further increase the confidence of the public in this new combination.

Merchandise for both Brooklyn and Boston establishments will be manufactured in the splendid new factory just completed in Brooklyn at Fulton and Smith Streets, which will be the most modern as well as the largest in the world.

One of the most interesting parts of the business is the fur storage plants, which are far in advance of any now in use. Every device for the safe storing and renovating of the furs has been installed. The combined annual storage business of the two concerns reaches the astounding figure of over $6,000,000.

Today there is hardly a city or town in New England where the Lamson & Hubbard hat is not well established in the minds of the people, and their sale extends all over the country. To this wide-spread distribution will be added that of Balch, Price & Co., which has always enjoyed a reputation as hat makers second only to their standing as furriers. The hats for both the wholesale and retail branches of the Company will be produced in the Lamson & Hubbard factory.

At present the Lamson & Hubbard Company occupy the five-story building at the corner of Bedford and Kingston Streets, the adjoining building of five stories at 39 Kingston, a four-story building for the Wholesale Department at 25 Kingston Street, and the five-story hat factory, corner of A Street, South Boston.

Dignity of Manual Labor.

The trouble with most young men is that they do not understand the dignity of manual labor. They do not realize that honors and fortune may be more readily gained outside of the so-called learned professions than in them; and that it is just as honorable to swing a hammer or to hold a plow as it is to make a speech in court or to amputate a limb. The lesson young men should be taught as early as possible is that it is not so much what a man does for a living as how he does it, and that manual labor is as honorable as any other.—Lubbock Avalanche.

A PROBABLE CAUSE

In an address given at the opening of the thirty-sixth annual session of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Dr. Oliver Van Dyne of Newton, president of the Alumni Association, declared the bed-bug was largely responsible for the spread of infantile paralysis and warned the large audience, composed of both the profession and laity to not think that cold weather would stamp out the plague.

"While the cause is unknown," said Dr. Van Dyne, "we do know that blood from an ape having the disease, can be injected into a healthy ape producing the disease in him. Hence, any animal or insect which bites through the skin of a person and takes blood containing the poison, is going to leave some of that poison in the next person he bites. This is shown in the lessening of yellow fever by the destruction of mosquitoes. Infantile paralysis occurs in all climates from Norway and Sweden to Australia. The most cases occur during August when insect life is greatest. That fleas, flies and mosquitoes spread the disease is proven, but because the bed-bug in cold and heat; in famine or plenty; by night or day; on train and vessel; with rich or poor; in city and country; in hospital and hotel; at seaside and mountain and carried unnoticed in your trunk, travelling bag and clothing from Boston to San Francisco; from New York to Petrograd, lies an explanation for the spread of the disease, in the same year, over such an expanse of country.

Dr. Van Dyne quoted statistics showing that in 150 cases occurring in 111 homes, this insect was present in 31 homes and explaining how a physician at the bedside of a patient in these homes could easily carry away one bug, filled with blood, in the cuff of his trousers to the next stop—train, auto, hotel or hospital—where the bug would transfer to other quarters—baggage, bed or clothing—to be carried miles away and finally placed in a position to infect a perfectly healthy child in the new home.

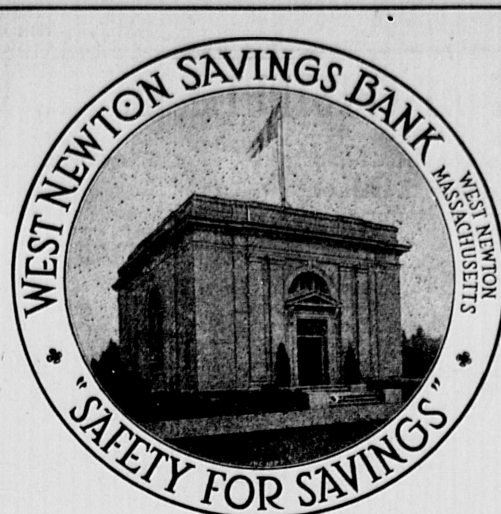

"Only one course can be followed," said Dr. Van Dyne, "don't say 'there are no bedbugs in my house' but place a sheet on the floor and carefully examine on it all clothing which has been away from home and is still packed, also the container; then spray every possible crevice, using some good germicide."

N. H. S. FOOTBALL

The Newton High School football team has just passed through two of the most discouraging weeks in the school's history. It may be said that never since Coach Dickinson first took charge of athletics at Newton have the football prospects seemed so poor during the early season.

The first practice was held at Claffin Field on the afternoon of Thursday, September 14. Less than twenty candidates reported that day. Since then the squad has been working out regularly, and some improvement has been shown, though the number of candidates has never exceeded twenty-eight. This scarcity of material may possibly have been caused by the late opening of schools, but unless a considerable increase is shown Monday, it must certainly seem as though interest in football were lacking in the Newton High School.

Most of the local supporters were greatly disappointed by the poor showing made by the team against Needham Tuesday afternoon. However, considering the very unfavorable conditions under which Coach Dickinson has been forced to work, the players really showed much better football than could reasonably have been expected. The Needham team was composed of nine veterans, yet it was only on an unexpected piece of luck that the visitors managed to win. It is a most deplorable fact that when the game began there were only nineteen players on hand who were eligible to represent Newton.

The team suffered still another misfortune Wednesday morning, when it was learned that Systrom, the star halfback of last season, has been forbidden by his parents to play football again this year. This will deprive the eleven of one of its two most consistent ground-gainers as well as a valuable man on defense.

Somerville High School this year has a heavy squad of about forty candidates, while Medford has seventy. There is absolutely no reason why the Newton High School, enrolling at present about one thousand boys, should not turn out a football squad of over thirty. Newton High has always been represented by a strong football team, and the eleven of the past ten years have never failed to be among the most successful in Greater Boston. It will surely be more or less of a disgrace to the school if the orange and black must this year be reduced, through lack of candidates, to the level of schools not half its size.

Coach Dickinson proved last season that he is able to develop a powerful team from green material. But it is certainly asking rather too much when he is expected to turn a winning eleven from a squad of twenty candidates.

This season's schedule is hard enough to tax a team of veterans. Unless the Newton High School football squad of nineteen eligible candidates is considerably increased during the next week, there can be very little reason to hope for a successful team.

GARDEN BRIDGE AT CHESTNUT HILL

Mr. and Mrs. George Duthie Strachan Hosts at Entertainment of Newton South Allies

The initial society event of the week was the Garden Auction Bridge, which was given Tuesday afternoon at Chestnut Hill, for the benefit of the Newton South Allies' Relief Association.

Mr. and Mrs. George Duthie Strachan, opened The Braeside, their beautiful residence on Waban Hill Road, for this worthy object, and members of Boston's, Brookline's, and Newton's social set, assembled in large numbers to assist in the good work, and were amply rewarded by an afternoon of rare enjoyment, and the charming hospitality extended them by the host and hostess.

The Braeside is a delightful spot situated on the summit of the hill, and commands a fine view of wonderful scenery overlooking Chestnut Hill Reservoir, with its picturesque environment. The house itself is a handsome and imposing structure, prominent in the surrounding landscape, and for this notable occasion it was most elaborately decorated in the National colors. The decorative scheme was exceptionally fine, and was carried out artistically with flags and bunting, red, white and blue predominating. Flags representing the various nations at war, were hung along the garden and lawn, in which enclosure the card tables were arranged attractively. The exterior of the house presented a very beautiful sight, many large American flags being draped on all sides, and centering each arrangement of flags, the American Eagle shone forth conspicuously. It would be difficult to overpraise the beauty of the scene, especially when viewed under the influence of a clear blue sky and brilliant sun, such as shone on Tuesday, and on every side the scenery was of the most charming description, beauty succeeding beauty in great diversity.

The guests were conveyed to the grounds in motor cars decked out in red, white and blue, and a line of the cars were in waiting at the Waban Hill steps. The estate is most admirably adapted for an out-door event of the sort, and the verdant lawns, and gardens, laid out with such exquisite taste, made an ideal setting for the large assemblage of attractively gowned ladies seated around the card tables, and for the wonderful dancing scene around the fountain, which was a novel feature of the entertainment.

Leading to the gardens are narrow flower-lined pathways of stone slabs, which extend to the stone steps of the terrace, where old-fashioned flowers, gladioli, dahlias, petunias and asters abound in a wealth of beauty. The sun had full play on the gorgeous flowers, and on the cool glistening waters which flow from the splendid fountain that adorns the garden, and the music lent additional pleasure and enchantment to the scene.

The interpretative dancing by Miss Marion Harding of Chestnut Hill, was among the many interesting features. In her dance, "The Spirit of France," which was illustrative of the victorious ending of the war, she was the personification of "the poetry of motion." The interpretation of the dance was a story of how she fell asleep and dreamed of the war. Dressed in a filmy costume of rainbow hues and waving an American flag, she glided around the fountain with sylph-like grace and her artistic posing won great admiration and applause. She was assisted by Miss Harriet Harding, her sister, a fairy-like little vision, in pale gray, who represented the dream.

The dancing was to the accompaniment of the National airs, and great enthusiasm prevailed when twelve adorable little children representing the warring nations, marched around the fountain and saluted the American flag.

Each child was dressed in the colors and carried the flag of the nation which he or she represented. Belgium was represented by Sylvia Allen, carrying a black, yellow and red flag. Whitney Osgood represented Russia and carried a white, blue and red flag. Kent Allen, as Italy, carried the green, white and red flag, with shield, and Katherine Osgood, as France, a red, white and blue flag. Christine Strachan, the daughter of the host and hostess, represented the Navy of Great Britain, and George Duthie Strachan, Jr., her little brother, represented the Army of Great Britain. John Tracy, in Highland costume, appeared as "Scotland," and Myrtle Williams, as "Canada," was arrayed in the costume of a Red Cross nurse, and carried the Red Cross flag. Wendell Carr carried the flag of Australia, with a cross in the corner and six stars and Elizabeth Bail represented "Servia." Agnes Squire was a fine representation of "America."

Mr. Strachan, the host, was a striking figure arrayed as a typical "Uncle Sam," and looked and acted the part to perfection, and it was a most beautiful and effective sight when the children assembled in a group with Uncle Sam, in front of the fountain, and to the accompanying strain of "The Star Spangled Banner," wa'd their flags toward the admiring spectators.

At the close of the entertainment the guests repaired to the house where delicious refreshments were served in the dining-room, and sun-parlor, which were resplendent with floral decorations. An informal reception was held, and the music-loving guests who were present, were afforded a rare treat and crowded into the music room, where Mrs. Leon J. Willen of Chestnut Hill, a wonderfully gifted singer, delighted her hearers with the selections "Chanson de Florian," by Godard, "Mattiata," by Tosti, and "My Castle In The Air," by d'Hardelot. Mrs. Willen is the possessor of a rich soprano voice of that rare sweetness and sympathetic quality which touches all hearts, and she was liberally endorsed. Her accompaniments were played excellently by Miss Elizabeth Carlini, of the New England Conservatory of Music.

In a room on the lower floor known as "The Shop," a large collection of paintings, flags and souvenirs, were on exhibition which proved of great interest to the guests. The guests wore little bouquettiers of red, white and blue flowers and the prevailing color scheme was carried out in the souvenirs, which were beautiful.

Having started without a penny, they have succeeded in accomplishing wonderful work, which has been most gratifying. The present officers of the association are Mrs. Guilford M. Stewart, Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. Elbert Allen, Mrs. Henry J. Ide, Mrs. Seward W. Jones, Mrs. George C. Squire, Mrs. Henry E. Williams, Mrs. Chas. S. Johnson, Mrs. E. S. Drown, Mrs. S. L. Eaton, Mrs. James Liddell, Mrs. C. T. Bartlett, Miss Elizabeth Bartlett, Miss Armstrong, Miss Lois Irving, Mrs. A. W. Jennings.

This delightful affair was the first in a series which are being arranged by the Newton South Allies' Relief Association, which is providing surgical bandages and comforts for 4000 hospital in our sister republic and the local branch has done its share in so helping the boys who have suffered in fighting for principles dear to Americans.

As a matter of interest the Association has only been organized since November, 1915, and it now has a membership of 200. During the entire summer, large meetings have been held and the members have done a large amount of work for the hospitals and Allies.

Having started without a penny, they have succeeded in accomplishing wonderful work, which has been most gratifying. The present officers of the association are Mrs. Guilford M. Stewart, Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. Elbert Allen, Mrs. Henry J. Ide, Mrs. Seward W. Jones, Mrs. George C. Squire, Mrs. Henry E. Williams, Mrs. Chas. S. Johnson, Mrs. E. S. Drown, Mrs. S. L. Jennings.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Odd Fellows Hall, Newton Highlands. Both the church and hall were decorated with yellow and white cut flowers. The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Miss Lillian Dawson and Mr. Joseph Slater and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dawson. Refreshments were served. Guests were present from Londale, R. L. Lynn, Boston, Revere, Waltham, Needham and the Newtons. After a brief honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Henderson will reside at 237 North Harvard street, Allston, and will be at home after November 1st.

The wedding of Miss Thekla Paulina Twining of Waban and Mr. Paul Emerson Sargeant took place last Saturday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Lamb on Beacon street, Waban, in the presence of the immediate families of the bride couple. The bride was given in marriage by her step-father, Mr. John G. Sutherland and the ceremony was performed by Rev. James Clement Sharp, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd. The bride wore white tulle and chignon, without the usual train, a tulle veil with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was a maid of honor, Miss Louise Hill, daughter of Mrs. Warren Mary Hill of The Fenway, who was in a gown of white tulle and carried an armful of white cosmos. Mr. French Sargeant, a brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Mr. Sargeant and his bride have started on a journey which they will make by automobile.

WHITTLESEY-WILLIAMS

A wedding of interest took place on Saturday evening in the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre, when Miss Dorothy Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Williams of Glenwood avenue, was united in marriage to Mr. John Eddy Whittlesey, Tech. '12, son of Mr. Henry L. Whittlesey, a prominent Boston attorney, and Mrs. Whittlesey, of Regent street, West Newton. The church was effectively decorated for the occasion, the wedding color scheme being white and green, and Easter lilies were arranged upon a pedestal at the chancel.

The ceremony was performed at half after seven by Rev. Emory W. Hunt, D.D., pastor of the church. The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a very beautiful wedding gown of ivory white satin embroidered in silver. Her bridal veil was Rose point lace fastened in the back with a spray of orange blossoms, and silver band around the head, and she carried a shower bouquet of Bride roses, white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Prior to the ceremony an organ recital was given by Mr. John Herman L. O. and as the bride and groom entered the church, the organ played Wagner's Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, and as a recessional, a special wedding march which he had composed and dedicated to the bride.

Preceding the bride was a little flower girl Barbara Marston of Newton Centre, who wore a dainty frock of white dimity, with blue sash and blue ribbon bows on her hair, and carried a basket of tea roses suspended from her neck with a silver ribbon. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Priscilla Williams of Newton Centre, as maid of honor, who was attractively gowned in silver cloth and blue tulle with Dresden ribbons, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaids, Miss Helen J. Copeland of Newton Centre and Miss Miriam V. Sweet of Melrose were becomingly attired in turquoise tulle embroidered in silver and carried pink roses and Baby's Breath.

Mr. Harvey W. Benson of Melrose assisted the bridegroom, as groomsmen and the ushers included Mr. Walton Spencer Redfield of West Newton, Mr. Ellis W. Brewster, Tech. '12, of Plymouth, Mr. Carleton W. Burr, Harvard '12, of Newton Centre, Mr. Harry N. Sandell, Harvard '12, of Dorchester, Mr. Harold E. Keblon, Tech. '12, of Boston and Dr. Thomas Almy of Fall River.

There were about eight hundred guests of social prominence present from Boston, Brookline, Plymouth, Melrose, Fall River and the Newtons. Mr. and Mrs. Whittlesey left on a wedding trip, which they will spend motoring thru the Berkshires and on their return will reside at Wellesley Hills.

AUBURNDALE WOMAN'S CLUB
Club House Idea Growing in Favor
Club House Fund also Growing

Over four hundred persons attended the Lawn Party held by the Club House committee of the Auburndale Woman's Club on the afternoon of September 27th at the home of the president, Mrs. Charles A. Brown. The spacious grounds had been most attractively arranged; an efficient corps of workers including children was on hand; while the crowning touch was given by the weather, a perfect summer day.

Under the trees were yellow and green booths where home made cake, candy, and hot coffee were sold, also ice cream and mysterious packages for the children. Auction bridge tables, games on the lawn, and a gypsy tent where Miss Walker told fortunes furnished entertainment. Two amusing clowns, Mrs. Butler and Miss St. Amant, enlivened the scene, dancing to the strains of a hurdy-gurdy, and carrying a placard, "U-need-a Club House. Most artistic and delightful was the interpretative dancing on the lawn by Miss Dorothy Paine, Miss Muriel Conn, and Miss Ruth Allen.

A considerable sum of money was realized, and the afternoon was enjoyed by all. Much credit is due the committee, Mrs. W. A. Stiles, Mrs. A. D. Becker, and Mrs. Henry W. Godfrey for their enthusiastic work. They were assisted by Mrs. J. E. Carney, Mrs. Charles Butler, Mrs. H. Lewis Hardy, Mrs. E. A. Robinson, Mrs. H. A. Wiley, Mrs. J. Arthur Furber, Miss G. E. Wightman, Mrs. Chester M. Robbins, Mrs. Raymond A. Robbins, Mrs. Henry S. Dawson, Mrs. J. W. Weinberg, and Mrs. Fred Cartwright.

The committee announces a series of entertainments to follow, for the purpose of increasing the Club House fund which was started last spring. An adequate Club House will be not only a benefit to the Woman's Club, but a civic and social asset to the entire community. Let everybody help.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

By John W. Dooley, C.S.B., of England, One of its Authorized Exponents

An audience that filled Players' Hall to overflowing last Friday evening listened to a very strong presentation of the Christian Science teaching on the subject of "God, and His Christ."

Mr. Wm. F. Ferrin, First Reader of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Newton, in introducing Mr. Dooley said: "As we look out on the material world, with its strife, turmoil and discord, we believe that every sincere person desires to know the God that can lead him out of bondage, into peace and harmony."

Christian Science is giving to us an understanding of this God, divine Mind, lifting our thought to that which is real and eternal, enabling us to demonstrate, in part, God's spiritual law of harmony, heaven on earth. "Good will be the result of the law," Mary Baker Eddy says in her text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." "Soul has infinite resources with which to bless mankind." One of these resources, the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, is doing its missionary work throughout the whole world; and it is now my privilege to perceive pleasure in the presence of John W. Dooley, C.S.B., of Leeds, England, a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston. Mr. Dooley spoke as follows:

It is safe to say that nothing has ever meant so much to mankind as the Scriptural record of the Christ. Prophets have foretold the good news that some day humanity, peopled with the sons of his appearing, and mankind has been sustained and comforted by the assurance that the Christ would eventually deliver it from evil of every kind.

That Christ was realized and even demonstrated throughout the ages by men and women who were spiritually minded enough to perceive him, is recorded in the Scriptures, and indeed the whole of our progressive civilization and our ideals are built up on the record of how Christ was shown to be a practical reality by many men and women of old, and especially by Jesus of Nazareth and his followers; and it is of this tender, loving Christ, healing the sick, saving the sinner, and comforting the sorrowful, that Christian Science is today telling us more fully.

It is a fact, however, that few of us really desire to know God and His Christ until we have wearied of mortal existence through its pains or its sorrows, or perhaps through its inability to satisfy our highest longings, and it is therefore chiefly to those who are, like Abraham of old seeking a better land, whose ideals are impelling them to gain a deeper understanding of God and of Christ, that Christian Science makes its appeal.

With those who are not driven either through human distress or by spiritual longings to seek this higher understanding, Christian Science has no quarrel, nor has it any desire to influence unduly those who feel that their own religious beliefs will bring them to a full knowledge of Christ.

Christian Science is, however, exact and scientific in its teaching about God and about His Christ, and it declares unswervingly that their true nature can and should be understood practically and intelligently here and now, and indeed that to attain any measure of real health and salvation, we must first follow the injunction to "acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace."

GOD AND HIS LAW

The questions therefore arise, How are we to acquaint ourselves with God, and how are we to know that our view of Him is the correct one? To both these questions Christ Jesus, whose teachings all Christians acknowledge as absolute and final, has given direct answers, and Christian Science has proved these answers to be practical, religious, and scientific facts to be used in daily life. To the first question, How are we to acquaint ourselves with God? Christ Jesus replied, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." In fact he stated that the Father must be known through the Son, and through the Son only; and to the second question as to how we were to decide when we had known God aright, his reply is, "These signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

The Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, was raised from what seemed likely to be her death-bed through her study of the Scriptures. She had grasped the nature of God, and had also perceived that Christ Jesus was not using some specially bestowed power when he performed his marvelous and convincing works, but that through his exact and comprehensive knowledge of God, he was simply utilizing the ever-present divine law, which might be unknown to those who were ignorant of the Father's true nature, but which was ever available to all who understood God aright. This divine law had formerly been utilized to some extent by Abraham, by Moses, by the prophets, and later by Christ Jesus and his followers, and it is this law that Paul describes as the "law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus" which he declared had made him free from the law of sin and death.

Christian Science then accepts the fact that there is an ever-present divine law which, if understood and used, will free men from the law of sin and death. It further declares that since God is the divine law-maker, the divine law, His manifestation or expression can only be the very Christ himself, forever present, explaining and expressing God, indeed the "Lo, I am with you always"—both before and after the earthly ministry of Jesus of Nazareth—and

To sum up, therefore, Christian Science teaches that God is the infinite One, indivisible, and not included in anything but including all true being in Himself; that He is divine Principle, Love, and that He is also infinite Mind, or Spirit. These are all conclusions which are not only taught by the Scriptures, but, what is equally important, they can be proved in daily life in the same way that Christ Jesus proved them, by any one who is willing to understand these conclusions and to govern his life by them.

THE TRUE NATURE OF CHRIST

Having gained a correct sense of God, we are now in a position to know what the Christ, His expression, must be; for even if Christ Jesus had not revealed to mankind that God and His Christ were "one,"—that is, one in quality,—it would be evident that the infinite creator, or divine Principle, could only create that which is infinitely like Himself. Christian Science therefore recognizes that the Christ must be the same as God, and that he must always be one in quality and essence with the Father; that he was therefore, "before Abraham was," and that he never began and could never end.

Christian Science also recognizes that Christ must be wholly godlike,—that is, spiritual or mental,—and that he must forever be governed by divine law, or as Christ Jesus expressed it, he must be forever after his Father's business.

It is sometimes erroneously stated that Christian Scientists do not appreciate Christ Jesus as other religionists do, but is this statement in accordance with the facts? Do not Christian Scientists appreciate Christ Jesus and his teachings so fully that they have on them unconsciously, not only for their own health and happiness, and indeed their very lives, but, what is even more important to them, for the health and happiness of their loved ones? Other religionists who claim that we do not appreciate Christ Jesus, because we have a more practical sense of his life-teachings, should remember that they are not willing to do these things.

It is true that Christian Scientists do not believe that the human Jesus of Nazareth was God, but they know that the spiritual man, or Christ Jesus, was the manifestation of God, and is indeed Immanuel, or "God with us." They also understand that this real man, or Christ Jesus, was not the material body of Jesus, which he himself declared must go away, but that his true Christness was the mind or consciousness which was in Christ Jesus and that this consciousness was the spiritual reality of Jesus, which, he stated, was forever present.

Is it not evident that the material body of Jesus could not still the tempest when he was asleep in the boat, but that his awakened consciousness stilled it at once? And so in some cases of healing it is recorded that Jesus was far distant from the people he healed, clearly proving that it was not his bodily presence, but his consciousness, or what he knew of God and of true being, that healed those cases. This consciousness or spiritual understanding, Christian Science recognizes to be the real Christ, the man of God's creating, the image and likeness of infinite Mind, or of God.

There is no body of people on earth who recognize more the importance of Christ Jesus as the Saviour of humanity, or who accept his divine Sonship more clearly, or who are more humbly and gratefully conscious of the loving, unparallelled, and selfless sacrifice of Christ Jesus, than are Christian Scientists, and they are trying to prove this, not so much by saying "Lord, Lord," which mere verbal expression means nothing, but by doing the will of the Father "which is in heaven."

Mrs. Eddy declares of Christ Jesus (No. 34): "Love bruised and bleeding, yet mounting to the throne of glory in purity and peace, over the steps of uplifted humanity,—this is the deep significance of the blood of Christ. Nameless woe, everlasting victories, are the blood, the vital currents of Christ Jesus' life, purchasing the freedom of mortals from sin and death. This blood of Jesus is the only remedy for sin and faith. Without it, how poor the precedents of Christianity!" St. Paul declares, "Henceforth know we no man after the flesh; yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more;" and can it be said that Christian Scientists do not recognize Christ Jesus fully, follow his teachings, and understand that the Christ, the man of God's creating, the very Son of God, must be wholly spiritual or mental, and not material? It is the understanding that it was Jesus' mentality, or his knowledge of God and of true being, which enabled him to be Jesus the Christ, that has now enabled Christian Scientists to accomplish in some measure his work.

Mankind, from its personal point of view, has been misled regarding the material personality of Jesus as its Saviour rather than his spiritual individuality, forgetting that Christ Jesus himself perceived this erroneous condition so clearly that he told his followers that if he, the Comforter or spiritual truth, his divine reality, would not be bound to the flesh, would not be understood by them. He saw that his followers were relying on his human personality and not on his Christliness or his spiritual individuality. As a matter of fact the Holy Ghost, or consciousness of spiritual being, did not come to his followers until the human personality of Jesus had disappeared before his full recognition of his divine Sonship.

On one occasion, when some more than usually personal addressed Jesus as "good Master," Christ Jesus rebuked him with the remark, "Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God." He recognized that his questioner was regarding only his human personality, and not his divine reality, or spiritual selfhood, which alone was good, or godlike. Jesus understood more clearly than any one has ever done the nothingness of human personality and the all-importance of spiritual individuality, and he spent his life trying to turn the thoughts of men away from the human to the divine, both with regard to himself and to everything else.

Upon careful examination it will be found that all the woes and discords of existence are based upon human ignorance of God and of His Christ, or on divergent views about these subjects. Does any one suppose, for instance, that war would be possible between nations or individuals who understood the teachings of Christ Jesus so that they could prove them as he did? It would be utterly impossible. Therefore, it is all important that we should lay aside every wrong preconceived notion about Christ, and gain the one true and therefore scientific sense of him which the Scriptures teach, and which can be proved, for this understanding alone can unite all humanity in one universal brotherhood. This understanding of Christ will bring to pass Samuel Longfellow's words:

From hand to hand the greeting flows,
From eye to eye the signals run,
From heart to heart the bright hope glows;
The seekers of the Light are one.

One in the freedom of the truth,
One in the joy of paths untrod,
One in the heart's perennial youth,
One in the larger thought of God.

Both Christian Science and the Scriptures teach that the Christ is the full and perfect expression of God, that is, of infinite Mind, of infinite divine Love, or of Principle; and to be the full and perfect expression, Christ must include all true being, for if he did not include all true being, then Christ would not be the full expression of God.

Christian Science therefore accepts the fact, which the Scriptures teach and which is essentially logical, that the Christ must include the truth or the spiritual reality, not only about Christ Jesus but about everybody and everything, as St. Paul clearly states when he declares, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

Christian Science thus teaches that the truth or spiritual reality about you, and about me, and about all things, is included in the Christ; and it further teaches that this spiritual reality of Christ Jesus and of all things is what constitutes true being, spiritual and perfect, and that this is God's creation, or is that which God has made and which He declared to be "very good," and consequently that this true being is the Christ.

Mrs. Eddy illustrates Christ in her writings by a simile, using the sun as an example to explain God and His Christ. She says: "If we say that the sun stands for God, then all his rays, collectively stand for Christ, and each separate ray for men and women." (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellaneous, p. 344.)

The Christ, therefore, is all that manifests or expresses God, and this Christ necessarily be all that God has created.

What then has God created? Since God is infinite Mind, or Spirit, it is evident He could only create that which is the likeness of Mind, or that which is mental and spiritual; and as infinite Mind is that which eternally knows, therefore Mind's creation must be that which always expresses knowledge, or must be conscious existence. Also it is quite clear that infinite Mind, or Spirit, could not create its opposite, finite material things, but that it could only create its likeness, spiritual thoughts or ideas, and that each of these ideas must be eternal in its individuality and perfection, for "whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it." Thus God's only creations must be spiritual thoughts or ideas, each one perfect and eternal, and forever conscious of existence; and this consciousness of true being, or this true conscious being, is what we in a human way call spiritual understanding, or right knowing.

Christ, therefore, is all that God has created, and consists of infinite spiritual ideas, each perfect and eternal and forever conscious of God and of true being; and this true and conscious being, or this consciousness of true being, is spiritual understanding or right thinking.

Christian Science thus teaches that it was his spiritual understanding, or his spiritual reality, which was in Christ Jesus and that constituted him Jesus the Christ, and also that spiritual understanding is what always constitutes the Christ.

Is it not perfectly clear that every man's individuality or spiritual reality must be what he knows that is true about God and about all being, or is his spiritual understanding? It is the statement that the Christ, the expression of God,—that is, of infinite Spirit, or Mind,—must be wholly mental or spiritual, and must therefore be spiritual understanding or true conscious being? Of course, if humanity insists on regarding God as a glorified human being, it will naturally desire a glorified man for its Saviour, and the remain in the same condition as Thomas, looking for the Christ in matter instead of in Spirit, or Mind; but that is not what the Scriptures teach, nor can it ever help any one to attain the knowledge of God or of true salvation.

When humanity understands that God is infinite Mind or intelligence, it will naturally perceive that it was his spiritual understanding, or the Mind which was in Christ Jesus that made him the true likeness of God, and it will then be willing to go a step farther and see that spiritual understanding is always the likeness of God, i. e., of infinite divine Mind, and is therefore always the Christ. Such understanding, however, as we have seen, is not the true being, or true being, or is true and conscious being, the spiritual reality of Christ Jesus, of you, of me, and of all that God has made; and this is the Christ which is revealed throughout the Scriptures from Genesis to Revelation, the man of God's creating, the spiritual man, including the spiritual realities of all things, as opposed to the mortal man or mortal existence of the carnal mind's creating.

PROGRESSIVE REVELATION OF CHRIST

It is this Christ which is revealed in the first chapter of Genesis as God's image and likeness, the spiritual man, infinitely good and having dominion over all things. It was this perception of true being, or of spiritual being, which came to Abraham, and which impelled him to leave the false gods of his fathers and to go out to seek a higher sense of God and a more spiritual sense of being. It was this Christ which he later beheld as Melchisedec, "without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God," and to whom he gave oblation. It was the understanding of this Christ revealing the divine nature, which enabled Jacob to perceive that the truth of his being was always "Israel," a prince of God, and not a mortal; and it was the vision of this Christ at the burning bush and in Mount Sinai which enabled Moses to guide the Israelites through many trials and to give them a better sense of God and a better sense of his law. It was this Christ who appeared to Job and revealed to him the altness of spiritual being and the nothingness and nakedness of material existence; and it was his perception of this Christ or spiritual man which eventually delivered him from his afflictions.

It was this Christ, or the true sense of being, which enabled the prophets to foretell the eventual appearing of that man who would prove that the spiritual man was the real man and that the material man was merely the mistaken human concept of man, and who could declare, "Destroy this temple," speaking of his material body, "and in three days I will raise it up," that is, will prove that the spiritual or true man is the real man, indestructible, and eternal. It was also the vision of this Christ, or spiritual man, which enabled the Virgin to perceive the divine fact that God alone is the Father of man, and that the true man was not born of a material father and mother, but forever co-existent with God; and this understanding enabled her to bring forth the man Christ Jesus.

It was the complete understanding and attainment of the Christ which later enabled Jesus of Nazareth to admonish, "Call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven;" and which also enabled him to prove to perfection with certainty and they usually refuse to believe it. In fact, they will admit that evil thinking can have an evil effect, but they cannot admit that right thinking, or spiritual understanding, which is the expression of God and is the very Christ, and is therefore Mind, or "God with us," can have any power or influence at all either to produce a good effect or to remove an evil one. Yet we call ourselves a Christian people.

Suppose again, that some one has a disease through what is called the law of heredity, that is, because his father or mother or some forebear had the same disease. What is the use of performing a surgical operation to remove that disease? Will not the law of heredity, which originally produced that disease, continue to produce it again and again until that false law is destroyed by the operation of the divine law of which Ezekiel the prophet spoke in these words, "What mean ye... saying, the fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?" Also, in the case of heredity, all must admit that the trouble is in the mortal mind, since according to medical theories it is claimed that the material body is entirely altered every seven years, and therefore certainly could not contain an inherited complaint in a person over seven years old, unless it was in the person's mentality.

Christian Science in its healing differs wholly from every material curative system, in that it deals primarily with the carnal mind, the supposed cause of all evil, instead of dealing only with its effects, sin, disease, and death. Christian Science recognizes the practicality of Jesus' question, "How can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man?" The strong man is, of course, the carnal mind, the mist, or ignorant false sense that many mistake, or a false sense of being, is real. Christian Science deals with its harmful effects by first destroying the belief in the so-called carnal mind itself, through the spiritual understanding that there is and can be but one infinite Mind, God, who is all-presence and all power.

MORTAL EXISTENCE DEFINED

Christian Science explains, as the Scriptures also do, that all we need to be made free from, is the so-called carnal mind and its effect, mortality; and that all sin, disease, and death are but effects of the mistaken belief that there can be a so-called carnal mind opposed to the one infinite Mind, God. These phenomena,—sin, disease, death, and all mortality,—being the effects of a false belief about a so-called mind, must necessarily be mortally or mistakenly mental, or are in fact a false sense. This false sense, mortality, seems true to the mistaken physical senses, trained to think wholly along mortal lines, but it is as untrue from the divine standpoint as is the belief that two and two are five from the mathematician's viewpoint. This belief that two and two are five may seem very real to the person who does not know any better, and it may even cause him a great deal of trouble; and so it is with mortal existence. That is, it seems very real to mortals, trained to believe in it and to think wholly according to the testimony of the mistaken physical senses, but Christ Jesus dismissed mortality from his calculations with the statement that "the flesh profiteth nothing."

Mrs. Eddy in her book "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," dealing with the problem of material existence, answers the question "What is matter?" in a way that will one day be recognized as supremely scientific and sublimely Christian. She declares (p. 310) that "matter is made up of supposititious mortal mind-force."

It is interesting to note that even physical scientists from their material viewpoint are slowly but surely coming to the conclusion that what we call matter or material existence is but a kind of force, and later they will see that this force which is supposed to constitute material existence is but the supposititious activity of the so-called carnal mind.

Is it so difficult to perceive that the knowledge of true being or of immortality, which is divinely mental and expresses infinite power and intelligence, can have no difficulty in over-must be through true godlikeness, that is, through right thinking or spiritual understanding, or through the consciousness of true being.

He is thus availing himself of the truth about his fellow man, or of God's law, and this truth is Mind or God with us. It acts with infinite power and intelligence upon the mortal or mistaken sense about man, and causes the mortal mind to relinquish its lie about man, the lie that man is either mortal, sick, or sinning, or that he is ever unlike God.

Thus the Christian Scientist in his prayer associates himself through right mental activity or spiritual thinking with the divine law, or the truth; and that which heals, therefore, is the divine law, which would operate equally well for any one who was willing to avail himself of this law, to understand it, and to be governed by it. The Christian Scientist's prayer is in fact his spiritual understanding of what God has done—that is, of spiritual being or true being, or of God's Christ—and this prayer is the true prayer of faith, or of spiritual understanding.

CHRIST JESUS' MISSION

Christ Jesus undoubtedly revealed Christ to humanity, but the great question today is, whether humanity is content, like the nine lepers, when it has felt the healing touch of the Christ, only to go and show itself to the priest, that is, only to accept a religious belief; or whether, like the one leper, humanity is willing to turn back from religious creeds and to cast the mortal down at the feet of the Christ, the spiritual man, and thus to glorify God, and to be not only cleansed like the nine from physical beliefs, but to be healed like the one from the belief in mortality also.

Christian Science healing is in no way associated with the action of the human mind, either as mesmerism or hypnotism, as theosophy, spiritualism, so-called mental science, suggestive therapeutics, or any other healing method based on the action of the human or mortal mind. But is purely the result of letting that Mind be in us "which was also in Christ Jesus," i. e., of understanding God and His creation aright. Therefore Christian Science healing and reformation is in the highest sense the healing of Christ.

The practicality of Jesus' work, and its application to every human condition, at once becomes apparent when we perceive that his mission was a constant effort to reveal to mankind the Science of spiritual being, that is, the truth about himself and about everything. Indeed, he himself described the full purpose of his mission when he declared to Pilate, "To this end was I born, and for this cause I have come into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth." He lived and practised this Science of spiritual being consistently in order that he might be able to demonstrate it for us, and thus show us how this Science, or exact knowledge of true being, might be used to free the mortal from his mistaken sense of life and existence.

The motive of Christ Jesus' life was his desire not only to save himself, through this divine way of knowing, the truth, but it was to bring salvation to others, and this same motive has been particularly manifested in the life of Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science.

THE REVELATION OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

It is this understanding of true being, of the infinite reality of spirit and being, which Mrs. Eddy discovered, and which years of struggle to live above the mortal, had revealed to her. She discovered the Science of spiritual being, or of Christ, because she was the one in this age who was pure enough in thought to perceive it, and because, like all other reformers who had discerned the Christ, she was willing to give up the material and finite sense of being, and to follow that revelation which led her into the light of spiritual being. Mrs. Eddy's many years of suffering and the vicissitudes of her mortal life, combined with her intense longing to know God, all fitted her for this revelation which has done so much to bless mankind and which has already saved a vast multitude from sin, from disease, and even from death.

It is not wonderful under the circumstances, that this multitude should arise and call this Christlike woman blessed, especially when it is apparent to them that her whole purpose since discovering Christian Science, has been to turn the thoughts of her followers away from herself, and to direct them wholly toward the contemplation of God and His Christ; to make clear to them the practical nature of Christ Jesus' mission to mankind; to show them that if they too would partake of the benefits of that mission, they must go and do likewise. Through Mrs. Eddy's revelation Christian Scientists have been enabled to use this understanding in some degree as Christ Jesus did, to free themselves and others from the ills of human belief and ignorance.

After her discovery of Christian Science Mrs. Eddy spent three years studying the Scriptures, and as the true nature of God and His Christ was revealed to her, she saw that she too must prove this revelation by healing the sick and the sinning. She therefore turned her attention to this work, in which she healed all manner of sin and disease.

As she herself relates in her book "Unity of Good" (p. 7), "When I have most clearly seen and most sensibly felt that the infinite recognizes no sin, this has not separated me from God, but has so bound me to Him as to enable me instantaneously to heal a cancer which had eaten its way to the jugular vein. In the same spiritual condition I have been able to replace dislocated joints and raise the dying to speedy health. People are now living who can bear witness to these cures."

Mrs. Eddy then wrote her text-book "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," giving to the world her discovery in a clear and concise manner and turning all her followers to the daily study of the Scriptures. This text-book is not only in no way a substitute for the Bible, but it is safe to say that no book has ever been written that has caused a deeper or more consecrated study of the Scriptures than has this book.

Mrs. Eddy partook greatly of the humility which was ever ready to rise to the mightiest accomplishments because she relied wholly on God, not at all on herself, and when truth demanded it, she was brave enough to make the most fearless statements as to the mission of Christian Science. She realized that she had discovered the Christ or spiritual law, which would make men free from sin, disease, and death, and she declared the divine nature of her discovery to mankind in spite of the bitterest persecution and misrepresentation.

At first Mrs. Eddy stood alone in this mighty work of letting men know of her discovery, but later spiritually-minded men and women, whose longings had not been satisfied by creed or dogma, began to see the logic of her teaching, to study it, and to receive from it the benefits which knowing God might ever bring. To-day this mighty multitude confesses itself beholden to the teachings of Christian Science about God and about His Christ for their health, their holiness, and their peace of mind; and they feel sure that in time, when the teachings of Christian Science are understood, all men will accord to Mrs. Eddy her rightful place as a consecrated, Christlike woman, who has described Christ (S. & H. Pref., p. ix.) as "a willing disciple at the heavenly gate, waiting for the Mind of Christ."

THE CONCLUSIONS OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Christian Science does not ask anybody to believe any of its teachings, for it says that we have already believed too much about God and about Christ, but it does desire that every one should honestly begin to try to prove them, in fact use our second conclusion as to whether we know God and His Christ or not: "These signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." In your daily life realize that the spiritual is the real because there is but one creator and one creation, and you will begin to give up your belief in material existence as real. Strive every minute of your life to remember that nothing has presence, power, or influence but that which is of God, that is the spiritual and the good, and you will see that the beliefs of the mortal mind, including sin, disease, and death, will begin to disappear from your lives, and health, holiness, and happiness will appear as the reality, because you are gaining the Mind of Christ.

Christian Scientists are grateful beyond measure to Jesus the Christ for his unique example and life-work, and they recognize in him the Saviour of mankind because of his knowledge of God and of true being, and they know that only as they gain spiritual understanding and live above the mortal will they too be attaining the Mind of Christ, and become fellow-heirs with him.

Christian Scientists in no way believe that salvation can be accomplished either through intellectualism or through a moral cultus, for they know that true salvation can only be gained through Christ. In fact Christian Science teaches one God, infinite Spirit, or Mind, unchangeable and eternal, and one Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, including all that God has made, also spiritual or mental and forever the same; and it declares that to understand the Son of God, or true being, is to know that which alone expresses or declares God and of true being, and that the Christ, and is true being, the spiritual reality of Christ Jesus and of all that really exists.

In conclusion may I draw your attention to Mrs. Eddy's wonderful description of the Christ as given in one of her poems (Poems, p. 75):— Saw ye my Saviour? Heard ye the glad sound?
Felt ye the power of the Word?
'Twas the Truth that made us free,
And was found by you and me
In the life and the love of our Lord.

Sinner, it calls you.—Come to this fountain, Cleanse the foul senses within;
'Tis the Spirit that makes pure,
That exalts thee, and will cure
All thy sorrow and sickness and sin."

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

The Waltham School of Business, which has been conducted for a number of years by George F. Spring, has been purchased by Fisher Business Colleges, and is to be carried on by them as one of their regular schools. Many Newton people who have attended the Waltham school in the past will be interested to learn of the change of ownership.

The acquisition of the school by Fisher Colleges is in line with the general tendency of the larger educational institutions to place their courses directly at the disposal of the smaller cities.

Fisher Colleges have made for themselves a high place because of their liberal and progressive policy, and their students are regarded highly by the leading business houses in Boston and vicinity.

The courses of study in the Waltham school are to be identical with those of the other Fisher schools, and there will be both day and evening sessions.

The manager of the Waltham school is Horace C. Carter. Mr. Carter is a graduate of Tufts College, and for several years has been in charge of one of the departments at the Winter Hill school.

WILBUR THEATRE—Shows may come and shows may go, and quite a number of them are going bad, this season, but "Very Good Eddie," which enters upon its seventh week at the Wilbur Theatre Monday, is still going good, and at present writing there is not the slightest sign of a frost in the region of that charming little playhouse. Big attractions and small do not affect in the least the attendance that has been the rule ever since the opening of this latest of the Marbury-Cornock productions to appear in Boston. When "Over Night" was given in Boston two seasons ago it made a great impression upon the theatre-goers of the city; but "Very Good Eddie," which is "Over Night" set to music is the hit of the season here as it was and is in New York, where it is playing in the third theatre since its opening there nearly a year ago.

SHUBERT THEATRE—Only eight performances remain of that incomparable musical play "Katinka," beginning next Monday, October 2, which concludes its Boston engagement at the Shubert theatre Saturday night, October 7th. Eminent entertainment, as any book and lyrics of Hauerbach's are bound to be, richly tuneful, as are all the works of Priml, and complete and colorful as Hammerstein knows how to make any production, the piece is easily the foremost offering of its kind which Boston has so far had the opportunity to see. That the public appreciates this fact is attested by the uniformly large houses which have greeted all the performances. Altogether, it is an "all-wool-and-a-yard-wide," a regular "A-1" musical show that the Shubert is offering next week, and the times, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2.15 and evenings at 8.15.

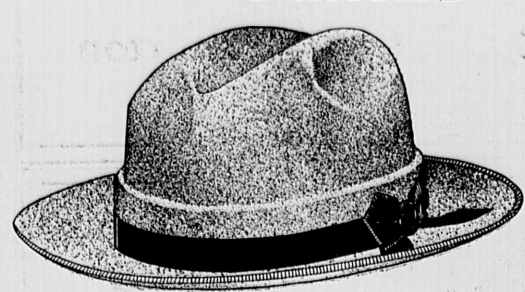

CASTLE SQ. THEATRE—One of the strongest dramatic stories ever put on the stage is found in "The Devil's Harvest," which will be brought to the Castle Square Theatre next week. This latest output of the pen of Edward E. Rose, author of "The Rosary" and other successes, has taken a grip on the popular sentiment of the day. In "The Devil's Harvest" is shown the birth, growth and horrible development of the drink habit, related in a series of stirring situations. It is a play of action, a play that is so fair in its interpretations of a nation wide problem as to make of it a thing apart from the usual attempt to handle great questions on the stage. It will be acted by a capable company for one week only at the Castle Square.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"The Silent Witness," a new drama by Otto Hauerbach, was produced at the Plymouth Theatre on Wednesday night, September 27, with great success. Mr. Hauerbach is a prolific writer for the stage, but up to this time he has been known solely to Bostonians for the lighter entertainment he provided. This is his first venture in the realm of the serious drama, and his play has met with success in New York, where it has been running for the last two months. H. H. Frazer produces "The Silent Witness."

AN OPEN LETTER

Mr. U. G. Wheeler,
Supt. of Schools,
City of Newton.

Dear Sir:

I wish to call to your attention several matters pertaining to the High School.

I am writing this open letter because after seeking some light from you at a public meeting in Newton Centre and having previously sought some information and possible correction from the principal of the High School and from a member of the school committee from my own ward on the subject of Tutoring their own pupils by the teachers I must say that in all three instances I failed utterly to get the information I sought or at least any encouragement that this practice would be stopped.

Let me give one instance of the evil results of such a practice. In one of the courses a student failed in recitation he had not evidently prepared his lesson, for there was a much easier way for him at least. This particular scholar was paying this particular teacher for private instruction, and instead of being penalized and made to study and keep up with his class and prepare his lessons, he was told by the instructor, "I think you better come to me for an hour or so in this subject." You can imagine the effect this not unusual instance made upon the rest of the scholars. They must prepare the lesson or be dropped or disqualified or penalized in some way but this unfaithful scholar could do as he pleased, for he could make up his delinquency by hiring the teacher (at three dollars per hour) to help him.

When this occurrence was repeated, as it doubtless was in the homes of the other students, it may have caused some comment and its effect upon the scholars themselves can readily be seen or imagined.

When I asked you, Sir, about this matter your general reply was to the effect that if students studied hard and long, if they had fewer social duties then tutoring would be unnecessary. After that meeting a reporter for one of the city papers informed me that that question of mine had often been replied to, but up to that time it had not been answered. The Principal, Mr. Adams, perhaps very properly didn't reply to a letter of mine (sent in reply to a general letter he sent out two years or more on the subject of abolishing the Clubs of the High School).

The school committeeman admitted that the control of the activities of a teacher of the school out of hours was something that the committee at least had no control over, but he did attack very freely the social Clubs then in existence.

Do you think, Sir, that when a teacher is occupied outside school hours in private tutoring he can give his best efforts and his unbiased efforts to the whole class?

One more bit of information extracted from the committeeman which should have been mentioned above, he was fearful lest too rigid enforcement of power circumscribing the outside activities of the teachers might result in Newton losing the services of most capable teachers, for other cities were rather in the habit of taking away some of our best instructors and, therefore, some latitude was permitted, for better salaries were offered as an inducement.

Another important subject for your consideration is the anomalous five year course in the High School. The High School has, I believe, become so large and unwieldy by housing the ninth grade, that it calls for special comment and investigation. Pupils "graduate" still in four years; there is hardly such a thing as a fifth year class. The fourth and fifth year classes in the High School, get inextricably mixed up socially and in other ways. Four classes and four only seem to be represented in sports. College aspirants make up the fifth year, the class has practically graduated in its fourth year. Class spirit and interest is gone. The fifth year scholar, while doubtless instructed, has lost all identification with his class; at least this I saw it seems to the writer and he has asked many about this.

Scholars in the ninth grades in the Grammar Schools can receive better instruction from good teaching principals and their assistants than it is consigned in large numbers to the tender mercies of young teachers, untried teachers perhaps, and possibly incompetent ones as has happened? The Grammar School principal and higher teachers know their scholars better, and they are tried, experienced, instructors. This is a large subject, but I have the opinion of teachers agreeing with my own opinion and am confirmed in my opinion by an expert educator, who has long taught teachers how to teach.

In this connection it has actually happened that incompetent teachers have tried to instruct these large classes, the ninth grade, within the High School; the fact that they were not properly equipped to impart instruction was not found out until too late and in consequence whole classes have suffered, the failure in this respect was acknowledged and promises and late efforts were made to make some amends but such delinquencies were not making more incompetents who must seek the benefits of private instruction, especially if any attempt to pass a college examination paper were contemplated.

Just one more subject for your consideration and that is the gymnasium and physical training.

Nearly a year ago the writer inspected the gymnasium and found that for the thousands of pupils of the High School, more or less, there were but eight pairs of chest weights and of these but two pairs in all were in commission. I mentioned this to one in authority and was told that chest weights were not much used at the present time. At Graduation time, nearly eight months after that, a second inspection showed the same number of weights out of commission; fifty cents worth of rope would have repaired all of them. My days as an athlete are behind me, yet I recall entering the "Gym" with the enormous chest capacity of about thirty inches and thanks largely to the chest weights I left college with a good thirty-six and better. It may be most important to have teacher-athletic-instructors to drill in the rudiments of foot ball and base ball and win games for the school, but when I see the puny chests, the curved backs, the athletic crouch, and worse still, the stoop, which is copied in the advertisements for collars and ready made clothes and affected and posed for even in class photographs, it seems as if it might be worth while to put more chest weights in and keep them in repair and in use. Thirty days at Plattsburg will do more for a young man's physique than five years of High School training! The great numbers by far who do not go out for or make teams should have proper setting up. Vaulting horses, however, seemed to be both numerous and in repair. I can recall going in to a superannuated gymnasium of a very flourishing theological school, the gymnasium was plentifully supplied with vaulting horses, but not so many apparently as the Newton High School Gymnasium. The theological school is now departed and probably the vaulting horses can be purchased at bargain prices; in my opinion they are obsolete and not the chest weights. A recent visit to the Hemenway Gymnasium at Cambridge revealed the fact that chest weights had increased in number since the writer's day.

Pardon this long letter, Sir, a Superintendent can not know everything about his schools in a year or two, and we all have opinions. The writer does not know what the essentials are for qualifications as a school committeeman; we used to send members or rather vote for those who wished to become members (and they were elected, too), who had not attended our public schools, who did not happen to be blessed with children of their own or possibly who, having children, preferred to send them to private schools. This may have been a custom peculiar to ward six and not generally the custom. Possibly, too, these men were not at all familiar with modern gymnasium or athletic games or instruction.

The writer has had five children graduate from the High School, he has paid good money to one teacher for private instruction in the very department of that same teacher because the elementary instruction given in the ninth grade was admittedly not what it should have been, the instructor was young and incompetent and not until long afterward was any attempt made to make up to the pupils for this serious short coming and the attempt was delayed far too late.

Very respectfully yours,
PARENT.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE NOTES

Items of Interest to Friends of the Cause

Nothing in his entire trip through the West, Mr. Charles Evans Hughes declared in his recent speech at Reno, was more significant than the interest he found among the women voters. Mr. Hughes reiterated his views on the federal suffrage amendment in an address to the Woman's Party of Nevada. He declared that he could not add the amendment to the platform of his party, but added that he wanted his own views to be known.

"This has been a trip of very delightful experiences," said Mr. Hughes, according to the Nevada State Journal; "nothing, however, has been more significant than the deep interest that has been manifested by women in the political question of the day. It has confirmed a conviction I arrived at long ago, namely: That the success of the movement for woman suffrage throughout the country was assured. It seemed to me, and has seemed to me for some considerable time, that the opposition to that movement could not possibly defeat it.

The advanced stand taken by Mr. Hughes on the suffrage question has brought him praise from the friends of equal rights, and abuse from the opponents. On one point, however, he is admitted to be right by most men who are clear-sighted in public affairs, no matter whether they are suffragists or not. This is when he says that the coming of woman suffrage is inevitable.

A big bouquet of yellow roses, "From suffragists to a suffragist," was handed ex-President Theodore Roosevelt as he entered the Worcester City Hall, last week. The flowers bore the card of the Worcester Equal Franchise Club.

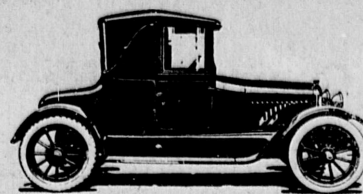

Accompanying the bouquet was a yellow "Votes for Women" banner, and both flowers and banner graced the automobile of the distinguished guest as he made his tour of the city.

Both the Democratic and Republican parties of Missouri and the Republicans of New Mexico have declared for equal suffrage in their State conventions.

The vote on a suffrage plank in the recent West Virginia Republican Convention was over two to one in favor.

Glenwoods are Brim Full of Good Things

The Glenwood Balanced Baking Damper is far ahead of any other—it is as positive as the turning of a railroad switch—open to start the fire, closed to bake—just this one damper for kindling or baking and best of all, it can't warp or stick.

The Glenwood Revolving Coal Grate is easy to shake at all times, and simply fine for removing clinkers. It is triangular in shape, with three different sides for wear.

The Ash Pan rests on a roller bearing frame—just open door and it rolls out at the slightest touch, neat and clean.

The Glenwood Shelf Under Oven Door is not stationary—it automatically raises and lowers as oven door is opened or closed. It is always level with oven bottom—a great convenience when basting meats or removing food.

The Glenwood Sectional Top is interchangeable—cross pieces can not warp—a wash boiler can be placed at the back as well as in front for quick heating, leaving the front holes free for cooking.
